LONGEST AMERICAN FLIGHT BY BROOKINS

With Two Stops He Goes in Wright Biplane from Chicago to Springfield, 187 Miles.

LOSES WHEEL, BUT GOES ON

Declares It Was a Trying Experience —Believes Chicago to New York Race Is Practicable.

BY WALTER S. BROOKINS.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 29, 1910.

I had a most successful passage from Chicago to Springfield, though I would not care to repeat it again for a time. I had never before been in the air over an hour at a time, and this trip of nearly 200 miles was very trying on both body and nervous system.

I was under a great strain, though my biplane worked fine. At one time I was nearly paralyzed in the arms, and had to use my knees to assist me. The propeller worked nicely, and I was only compelled to descend to the ground because my supply of gasoline was giving out and needed replenishing. The distance, after deducting stops, was made in five hours and forty minutes.

I was unable to hear any sounds from the earth, not even the whistling of the locomotive of the Illinois Central train which was running with me, as I kept at a high altitude owing to the current of air in which I was traveling.

I consider from the light of my experience to-day that THE NEW YORK TIMES-Chicago Post race between Chicago and New York next week is perfectly feasible. WALTER S. BROOKINS.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 29.—In the teeth of a wind blowing more than ten miles an hour, Walter S. Brookins in a Wright biplane flew to-day from Chicago to the State Fair Grounds outside this city. He alighted twice, by arrangement, once to make connections with a train which followed him and the other time because the gasoline pump of his engine was out of order. His feat, however, is called a continued flight, and for this and because he made a new American record for sustained flight he wins a prize of $10,000 offered by The Chicago Record-Herald.

Brookins, at the end of his flight, declared that he was weary from the strain of fighting the wind all the way, but he could have gone on further, and, furthermore, he could make a similar flight again to-morrow. It has been remarked on all sides that his feat shows the practicability of the race from New York to Chicago, which is to start from Chicago on Oct. 8 for the $25,000 purse offered by THE NEW YORK TIMES and Chicago Evening Post.

The distance from the starting place in Chicago to Springfield as Brookins flew is 187 miles.

His start was made at 9:15 A. M. He stopped at Gilman, Ill., 75 miles from Chicago, at 11:30 A. M. After a wait there for oil and fuel he went on to Mount Pulaski, 88 miles further on, alighting at 3:20 P. M. After fixing his pump he went on to the Fair Grounds, 27.5 miles. He arrived above his landing place at 4:22 P. M., but had to circle about for three minutes before the crowd would give him room to alight safely.

His actual flying time was 5 hours 49 minutes for the 187 miles, an average of about 33 miles an hour. On his last leg he made 34.3 miles.

By going 88 miles without alighting he broke the American record for a sustained flight, made by Charles K. Hamilton, who set the mark of 86 miles in THE NEW YORK TIMES flight from New York to Philadelphia and back on June 13 last.

The aviator flew for the most part at an elevation of 800 to 1,000 feet, but occasionally dropped lower or mounted higher to fly in better air currents. The movements of the biplane at all times seemed to be in perfect response to the operator's will, and the only spectacular dips and curves of the trip were seen in his landing and starting. The behavior of the machine was perfect so far as the watchers could tell. The motor's chug sounded as regular as the ticking of a clock.

Alighted in a Cornfield.

In the entire flight Brookins made a single miscalculation. His single mistake occurred when he landed in a cornfield instead of in a grass covered field as he believed, at Gilman, where he was to await the train.

It was explained later by Wilbur Wright that the aviator was wearing goggles which were not quite clear. A wind had flattened the green corn stalks and from the machine they presented the appearance of grass. When within a few yards of the ground the aviator discovered his mistake, but thought he could drop into the cornfield easier than he could change the direction of his machine for upward flight. He dropped among the heavy stalks without a mishap and scores of men helped him pull the machine twenty rods across a fence into a pasture.

When the train came up, half an hour later, Brookins called to the passengers, "How am I making it? I have been here more than an hour, it seems to me. Where are the rest of the fellows, with my oil and gasoline?"

After these necessaries had been provided Brooking conversed a few minutes with the newspaper reporters, and said:

"Well, I must get away if I am to have luncheon with you at Springfield."

At Mount Pulaski he showed no more concern. Here he worked over his pump and got it in order again. The train came up, and Wilbur Wright also looked over the engine and gave instructions to the aviator. As Brookins swept out of the field for his last leg one of the small rubber-tired wheels underneath struck a hummock and was wrenched off. Brookins, not knowing of the accident, rose 2,000 feet and, heading for Springfield, swirled away.

Crowd at Fair Troubles Him.

He was twenty-four miles from the Capitol, whose dome he saw when he rose high. Ignoring Wilbur Wright's instructions to fly only half an hour more because of the pump, Brookins aimed for the dome of the main building in the Fair Grounds. The propellers whirred true, and he soared to the Fair Grounds with

TIMES-DEMOCRAT BURNS OUT

Plant of New Orleans Newspaper Is Destroyed—Several Narrow Escapes.

NEW ORLEANS, Friday, Sept. 30.—The plant of The Times-Democrat Publishing Company was destroyed by fire early this morning. The flames started in the paper warehouse on the first floor of the building. It was only a few moments before the entire building was in flames. Several employes on upper floors had narrow escapes.

Other buildings nearby seemed doomed at one time, but firemen confined the blaze to The Times-Democrat plant and a warehouse in the rear.

Estimates put the loss of The Times-Democrat at more than $125,000, partly covered by insurance.

The paper is one of the oldest of the South. Other papers put their plants at the disposal of The Times-Democrat.

SHOT IN SUBWAY TRAIN.

Passengers in a Panic When One Man Mortally Hurts Another.

The passengers who crowded the fourth car of a southbound Subway express train this morning at 1:45 o'clock suddenly saw two men stand up and begin talking in loud voices. In a moment a pistol flashed out, there was a shot and one of the men fell to the floor of the car. Women screamed, and there was a stampede for the cars forward and back. The shooting took place while the train was between Twenty-third and Fourteenth Streets.

There was room enough in the other cars for the passengers who stampeded from the car in which the shooting had taken place, and no one was hurt except the man who fell to the floor. Policeman Leahey of Traffic Squad C, who was in the second car, fought his way back through the train until he came to the now almost emptied fourth car.

"I will tell you how all this happened," a man, who said his name is Wright, standing near the wounded man, said to Policeman Leahey. "To-night I cott, and we went out for a good time. met six other fellows at the Hotel Wol- One of the men who was with us is that fellow over there; he did the shooting. Five of us took this train. My friend over there got in an altercation with this man on the floor. I jumped up to stop the quarrel. I heard a shot, and then I grabbed the pistol from my friend, although I never saw him until to-night."

The man who did the shooting, according to all the witnesses, said he was Charles H. Wright of 10 Sayre Place, Elizabeth, N. J., an Inspector for the New York and New Jersey Demurrage Bureau. At the Fourteenth Street Station, the wounded man, who was not positively identified, but was thought to be George Anderle of 441 East 116th Street, was taken off the train and removed to St. Vincent's Hospital. He had a bullet wound in the centre of his forehead, and while he was still alive the doctors said he could hardly live.

JERSEY TRYING A "SILENCE."

Awful Effect of This Terrible Revenge in a Bayonne School.

Miss F. Osgood, Instructor in American History at the Bayonne (N. J.) High School, walked into her room yesterday morning and prepared for the recitation. After some preliminaries she asked the class generally:

"Who was Balboa?"

No one answered. She explained Balboa, and then asked:

"Who discovered America?"

The silence this time was so deep that it was painful. Miss Osgood dismissed the class and rushed into the Principal's room, meeting on her way other teachers, panting with excitement, filled with dread, going in the same direction. They all had the same story to tell.

The worst had come. The terrible West Point "silence" was being cruelly inflicted by the pupils.

The teachers were ordered back to their rooms to try again with instructions to be as calm as possible under the strain and not to do anything rash. The "silence" was kept up through all the recitations. Now and then some girl would break down. But even they did not cry out aloud. The object of scornful looks, they merely sobbed in their throats, while the big tears rolled down their round and quivering cheeks.

At noon the pupils rushed out of the coat and hat checking rooms in such haste that it seemed for a while that there might be serious disorder in their haste to reach the speech-free air. But the older and more settled "silencers" forbade that.

The afternoon was as silent as the forenoon, and with it an added strain as of something more dreadful impending. The atmosphere was charged with a sullen storm. After the afternoon periods the "silence" was reported to Superintendent of Schools John W. Carr, who reported it in turn to the Chairman of the Board of Education. Without doubt it will hold a special meeting to-day to try to find out what, if anything, can be done.

The reason for the dread punishment inflicted on the teachers is said to be that the pupils asked that the schedule be shortened about sixty minutes that they might have more time for dancing school, basket ball, and other matters without infringing on real recreation time. The Board of Education turned the request down.

Bayonne prides itself on being up to date. Its Council once considered the advisability of appointing policewomen before the term was known anywhere else.

"They would do eminent service now armed with hairbrushes," said one citizen to-night.

ATTACK ON GLAVIS.

Mining Congress Against Roosevelt-Pinchot Conservation Policy.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 29.—The American Mining Congress, by resolution to-day, placed itself on record as opposing the Roosevelt and Pinchot conservation policies, and declared in favor of State control of water power and all other natural resources as against Federal control.

The congress accepted from the committee on Alaska mining laws a report in which L. R. Glavis, the Land Office special agent who was dismissed by Secretary Ballinger, was attacked. This report, after advocating the immediate opening of the vast coal fields beyond the arctic circle, denouncing the proposed leasing system as confiscatory and unjust to legitimate claimants, and declaring for more "home rule and less interference from Washington in the affairs of the northern territory," favored a land court, which is said to have the indorsement of President Taft. The committee then registered its objection to the Federal Land Office's acting "in the triple rôle of detective, prosecutor, and judge" in the matter of coal claims, and declared that "it might be well if it were generally known that Special Agents L. R. Glavis and Horace T. Jones, whose attacks on the interests and integrity of Alaskans have been so widely quoted, have never been within 5 miles of the coal fields of Alaska."

GOVERNMENT RAIDS B. H. SCHEFTELS & CO.

Heads of the Firm and Office Force Carried Off in Patrol Wagon as Curb Crowds Cheer.

CLOSED UP IN OTHER CITIES

Herzig, Alias George Graham Rice, ex-Convict, Genius of the Firm—Mining Stock Letters Brought in Millions.

B. H. Scheftels & Co.'s big Broad Street offices, at the head of which, according to the Government agents, is Jacob Hersig, an ex-convict, who operated under the name of George Graham Rice, was raided by orders of the Department of Justice yesterday. Seven prisoners were taken to Police Headquarters to have their pedigrees taken, and later they were arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields, charged with using the United States mails with intent to defraud. George Graham Rice was not captured, and a general alarm was sent out for his arrest. The police said they expected to have him before morning.

Simultaneously with the raid in New York Government agents raided the branch offices of B. H. Scheftels & Co. in Boston, Philadelphia, Providence, Chicago, Detroit, and Milwaukee. Attorney General Wickersham was behind the investigation which resulted in the order to close up the Scheftels houses.

Those arrested in New York were B. H. Scheftels, President; Charles E. Stone, Secretary; Charles F. Belser, cashier; William T. Seagraves, President of The Mining Financial News, a publication that boomed the mining properties in which Scheftels & Co. dealt; George, alias "Red Letter" Sullivan, formerly of Chicago, who is said to have dictated several hundred thousand letters in the past few months, and John Delaney and Clarence McCormack, confidential men of the firm.

It was said yesterday that the Government would have fifty witnesses when the case is called, every one of whom will swear that he or she was swindled by the firm. These witnesses are expected to produce letters, signed by the firm, in which properties that the Government agents declare were always worthless were described in high colors as an investment certain to return great profits.

An idea of the number of accounts that Scheftels & Co. handled may be obtained from the fact that it required three double-horse wagons to cart the books from the office at 44 Broad Street to the Federal Building.

Victims by the Thousand.

It was stated by one of the Government agents that United States District Attorney Wise would be glad if persons who have had dealings with Scheftels & Co. will call on him at his office in the Federal Building and relate their experiences. There are several thousand of these persons in New York City, it is said, and District Attorney Wise will be glad to hear from all of them.

The man selected by Attorney General Wickersham to get evidence in New York of the Scheftels-Rice operations, and the organization of the firm were George Scarsborough, Special Agent attached to the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice. Scarborough came to New York about three weeks ago, and started to work. He had the cooperation of Inspector Russell, chief of detectives in this city, and William Bishop, special investigator of the New York Stock Exchange.

Scheftels & Co. had been under investigation by the Post Office Department, and the evidence that the Postal Inspectors had gathered was available at the start.

Hersig, alias Rice, Scarborough said yesterday had probably cleaned up in the last fifteen months no less than $3,000,000. For four years the Scheftels firm has advertised on a larger scale than any business of the kind ever called to the attention of the Post Office officials. The advertising alone for the last four years, according to Mr. Bishop, the Stock Exchange investigator, will probably total close to $5,000,000, while the office expenses of the concern were placed at $3,000 a day, or $1,000,000 a year, and on this great investment they reaped large profits in the last year.

B. H. Scheftels & Co. advertised to do business on the New York and Boston curbs, despite the fact that the rules of those curbs are that no corporations can do business on them, and Scheftels & Co. are incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. It was stated that every person connected with Scheftels & Co. had tried to get standing room on the New York curb, and that all of the requests were turned down. They also applied to the Boston curb for membership, and their application was not only rejected but the Boston curb brokers passed a resolution that any member of the curb would be expelled who accepted an order from the firm or any member of it.

Three years after Herzig was released from the Elmira Reformatory he got into the tolls of the police again, and he was sentenced to Sing Sing for six years for forgery. He finished his sentence in 1899 and started his queer business career under the name of George Graham Rice. He promoted the Rawhide Coalition mining stock, in which Nat C. Goodwin, the actor, figured, and which collapsed with disastrous effects to many investors, whose combined losses were figured at $600,000.

Ely Central the Latest Promotion.

Rice is credited with being the backer of The Mining Financial News and of Ely Central, a much-advertised Nevada mine. Ely Central was Scheftels & Co.'s latest enterprise, and was capitalized at something like $16,000,000, the par value of the shares being $10 a share. Ely Central will probably form the backbone of the Government's case.

The investigators then looked up George T. Sullivan, alias "Red Letter" Sullivan, and they say he proved to be the same young man who some years ago made about $5,000,000 in a Chicago deal, which he lost when the Government investigated. Sullivan was referred to as the man who "roped the suckers in." For a time he is said to have had 100 day and 100 night stenographers at work under his direction sending out "tip" letters. In three months Sullivan and his stenographers received 400,000 letters. One form of letter referred to a mystical stock which would have an "upward" movement, and the persons to whom they were sent were told how they could get in on the "good thing" when it broke.

Thousands answered the letter, and in return got a letter in which it was said the wonderful stock was not quite ready, and with this answer went a list of other stocks which were worth looking into. A code word was assigned to each stock, and those who wanted to buy any of the stocks were told to be ready, and when the moment to buy or sell came the code

WHOLE HARLEM BLOCK MENACED BY FIRE

Church and Tenements in Danger Early This Morning in a St. Nicholas Avenue Blaze.

GARAGE AND STABLE ABLAZE

Horses Saved, but 150 Fine Vehicles Are Burned Up—Three Alarms Sent In After Midnight.

The whole block in 122d Street, between St. Nicholas and Manhattan Avenues, was threatened early this morning by a fire which started at 12:30 o'clock in the St. Nicholas Stable, owned by Fred Hulberg, at 231 and 233 St. Nicholas Avenue, and spread to the Eureka Garage, just north of the stable, at 235 and 237 St. Nicholas Avenue.

At 1:15 o'clock both buildings were aflame from cellar to roof, and a third alarm had been sent in. The fire was not then under control, but was creeping around the corner of 122d Street, enveloping two five-story tenements at 304 and 306, and the small, low United Presbyterian Church, at 308 West 122d Street.

The fire was discovered by E. Herod of 512 West 134th Street, who in passing saw flames shooting from the top floor of the six-story stable. He called to Policeman Murphy, who turned in a fire alarm. Then they rushed into the stable, aroused the sleeping attendants, and helped them to lead out in safety 250 horses stabled in the cellar, first, and second floors. All were rescued safely, but more than 150 fine vehicles were left to be consumed utterly.

Scores of people on Eighth Avenue joined in the work of rescuing the animals before the firemen reached the scene. Frank Reech, an inspector of the Metropolitan Street Railway, was seen rushing out of the stable with a billy-goat under each arm. He preferred that to carrying out horses, he said. When the firemen arrived, they found the whole top of the building, where the feed and hay is stored, a mass of flames, and saw that they could only devote themselves to preventing a spread of the blaze. Already it had eaten into the five-story garage adjoining. Before the firemen could cope with it there, it had spread down to the second floor, consuming about 100 automobiles stored there.

Homeward-bound crowds on the elevated trains which pass within a few yards of the fire saw the flames, which seemed from that high point to have spread over the roofs of the whole block. The firemen, attacking the blaze from the 121st Street side, forced it over toward 122d Street, where stood the church and the tenements. Twenty-five families in the tenements were aroused in time, and escaped safely by way of the fire escapes.

It was uncertain at 1:30 o'clock whether or not the tenements and the church would be saved. At that time the damage was already estimated at $150,000 to $200,000.

Two firemen, Edward Nisson and Ogile Barkley, of Engine Company 35, while fighting the blaze on the third floor of the stable, were overcome. A stream from a broken hose sent them sprawling toward an open window. Both clutched at a fire hose, which had been stretched to the floor above, and in this way they slid to the street. They were attended by an ambulance surgeon from the J. Hood Wright Hospital.

At 2 o'clock the fire was under control. Later estimates of the damage will probably greatly reduce it.

QUEER FIRE AT CHARITY HOME

Barn Destroyed and Loeb Memorial Building Ablaze—Suspect Incendiarism

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 29.—It is believed by the firemen of Elmsford that firebugs are at work near that village. Yesterday afternoon a large barn on the Soloman and Betty Loeb Memorial Convalescent Home property on the State Road midway between Elmsford and East View was burned, and late last night the firemen were called to the place again to put out a fire that started in the basement of the main building. The fire was extinguished before it did much damage. The woods were searched by a posse, but no suspicious persons were found. The one hundred children in the home were greatly alarmed and were afraid to sleep.

Firemen Cunningham and Featherstone of the Live Oak Engine Company of Elmsford say that when they arrived at the institution ahead of the engine a man stood at the entrance with a revolver in his hand and warned the firemen not to pass. When the firemen told who they were the man allowed them to pass and he ran away.

When the fire started in the barn the water supply was found to be cut off, and when the firemen were called last night not a drop of water could be obtained.

J. S. HUYLER CRITICALLY ILL.

Family at Bedside and Little Hope for Candy Man's Recovery.

RYE, N. Y., Sept. 29.—John S. Huyler, the candy manufacturer, is critically ill of stomach trouble at his country home here. Two New York specialists, who have been in constant attendance for the last two weeks, give very little encouragement to his family, who have been summoned to his bedside. Dr. Clark, his physician for many years, and Dr. Reuben J. Held, his son-in-law, are here in the consultation.

It was only a short time ago that Mr. Huyler returned from Carlsbad, apparently very much benefited, and he had hoped to sail on his yacht, the Abbie, for Florida early in October.

Mr. Huyler is a member of the Board of Governors of Syracuse University, and when he was late to one of its meetings not long ago he penalized himself with a donation of $20,000 to the university. He is a warm friend of Chancellor Day, whom he asked recently to deliver the presentation speech at the dedication of the New Rye Methodist Church, an institution to which Mr. Huyler has made large contributions.

OUR FORCES READY FOR CHINESE RISING

ONLY A LEADER IS NEEDED

Situation Otherwise Similar to That Previous to the Boxer Outbreak—Our Strength in the Orient.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—China is said to be on the verge of another upheaval similar to the Boxer uprising, and it is asserted that the lives of foreigners are in jeopardy.

Advices received here recently from American Government officials in China say an outbreak at any time would not surprise them. The State Department has instructed its officials to maintain a close watch on conditions.

All through the Summer there have been mutterings of discontent in some of the Chinese provinces, due to the rice famine, dynastic difficulties, and dissatisfaction with acts of the Peking Government in regard to foreign investments.

Good harvests mitigated to some extent the situation, but there is still a general feeling of unrest, according to letters received here.

The American army and navy are prepared for any emergency, but their readiness is solely a precautionary measure, it is said, and should not be taken as an indication of immediate danger.

Authentic advices from those charged with keeping in touch with the conditions in China indicate that the only thing lacking to make to-day's situation the same as that preceding the Boxer troubles is organization, and to effect that only a leader is needed.

All the vessels of the American Asiatic fleet, as well as the military forces at Manila, are prepared for almost instant action in the event of trouble. There are available the armored cruiser New York, flagship of Rear Admiral Hubbard, Commander in Chief of the Asiatic fleet; the protected cruiser New Orleans, the gunboats Callao, Helena, Samar, Villalobos, Mindoro, and Paragua, the light draft gunboat Wilmington, the protected cruiser Albany, the cruiser Rainbow, the coast defense vessel Monterey, and the transport Buffalo. All the vessels are within reach somewhere between China and the Philippines. The New York, Albany, and New Orleans sailed to-day from Hongkong for the Cavité Station.

Revolutionary uprisings are of more or less frequency throughout China, and it is recognized by the Washington authorities that trouble is likely at any time in some of the provinces. Hu-Nan Province in particular is noted for its anti-foreign sentiment.

Less than three months ago there was a pitched battle at Yuen-Kiang between Chinese regular troops and rebels, resulting in a Government victory and heavy rebel casualties. At Nan-King at about the same time the forces of six nationalities were at the scene ready for emergencies.

United States Minister Calhoun at Peking, who last May reported to the State Department the generally disquieting anti-foreign and anti-dynastic rumors, is keeping in close touch with the situation. The Consular body at Nan-King early in the Summer emphasized to the Viceroy there the importance of immediate protective measures.

A CAVALIERI BANK

And Vanished Chanler Assets Reported by Brother Oreste and Sheriff.

Oreste Cavalieri, brother of Mme. Lina Cavalieri, sailed for Havre yesterday on the French liner Touraine. Before departing he declared that his coming to New York was not to file the ante-nuptial contract signed by Robert W. Chanler before he married Mme. Cavalieri, but to find a New York correspondent for a banking house which he and his sister plan to open in Paris.

"For some time we have been planning this," he said, "and it was on business connected with the enterprise that I came here. I did not come to file the ante-nuptial contract. I do not represent my sister in that matter except as a brother. I am always looking out to protect her and her interests. Mme. Cavalieri is not coming here until next year. I do not know positively when she will come. I have not heard from her since I came here. Her first engagement is to sing in Boston about January 21. I have nothing further to say concerning my sister's affairs.

Deputy Sheriffs Hayes and Shere who were sent out to levy on any property of Robert W. Chanler in this country to satisfy a city court judgment for $1,062 on a tailor's bill, reported yesterday that the execution in their hands was unsatisfied.

They visited the studio occupied jointly by Eugene Christian and Chanler in the Windsor Arcade. Christian told them that Chanler had removed all his effects, down to the last paint brush.

GAYNOR BUSY ON 'PHONE.

Talks the Whole Evening, Perhaps to Somebody in Rochester.

ST. JAMES, L. I., Sept. 29.—Mayor Gaynor put in a very busy evening on the telephone to-night. From early evening until after midnight the Mayor was continually busy on the telephone, despite the fact that he usually retires early. It has been hinted that he was in conference with some one in Rochester in attendance at the Democratic State Convention.

The Mayor put in a very quiet day at his home in Deepwells. It was his intention to go to New York to-day, but he changed his mind after he received several telegrams this morning.

INSURGENTS BAR ROOSEVELT.

Cummins's Newspaper Denounces Declarations in Saratoga Platform.

Special to The New York Times.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Sept. 29.—Declaring that the insurgent cause fared better with Roosevelt in Africa, The Des Moines News, Senator Cummins's personal organ, bids adieu to "the mighty hunter," and promises that leaders will be found who will not desert or compromise, to the sacrifice of progressive principles. Discussing the Roosevelt indorsement of Taft and the Tariff bill, The News says, in part:

"Roosevelt selects as his Permanent Chairman, Elihu Root, who is the incarnation of the doctrine of dollars and of privileges.

"Roosevelt, bringing with him Taft, Ballinger, Wickersham, Root, J. P. Morgan, Tawney, Lurton, Hitchcock, and all the motley crew of plutocrats and Hessians of privilege, cannot enlist in the army of insurgency.

"It would have been as sensible if James Buchanan, with Jeff Davis and his outfit, had tried to get into the councils of Abraham Lincoln. He cannot swallow up the insurgent movement and insurgency will not swallow him with his indorsement of the Tariff bill, of the President, and with his Roots and Griscoms.

"There can be no stop to insurgency in either the Republican or Democratic parties, and no harm can come to the movement unless undesirable and eleventh-hour recruits are permitted to fog its councils and pervert its aims. Taft is not welcome as a recruit, and Roosevelt's room is far preferable to his company."

PRINCE FINED FOR SPEEDING.

Maurice of Battenberg Gets More Than the Ordinary Penalty.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Prince Maurice of Battenberg was to-day summoned in a Surrey court for driving a motor car at excessive speed.

The Prince, who is a cadet at the Sandhurst Military College, wrote to the magistrates pleading guilty. The police testified that the car was driven at a speed of forty-two miles an hour.

The presiding magistrate said the Prince had driven at so excessive a rate that the bench must fine him more than the usual fine—£5, ($25,) including costs.

CURTIS TURBINE'S TRIUMPH.

Record Speed Made by British Warship Using American Engine.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The new British warship Bristol has made on her trials a speed of 27 knots an hour, a rate never before achieved by a British warship larger than a destroyer.

Special interest attaches to the performance because the Bristol is fitted with American Curtis turbines instead of the English Parsons variety. The Bristol is of 4,800 tons displacement.

Engineering, which publishes these details, says that while the performance of the Bristol and her machinery, viewed from every point of view, is highly favorable, it is reasonable to assume, especially as this is the first Curtis installation made by an English firm, that further developments will be made and still higher efficiency be achieved with the experience gained, as has been the case in successive Parsons turbine installations.

BIRMINGHAM'S BIG JUMP.

HASKELL CASES DROPPED.

Federal Prosecutors Unable to Meet Limitations of Judge.

McALESTER, Okla., Sept. 29.—The trial of Gov. C. N. Haskell of Oklahoma, in the Muskogee town lot cases, came to a sudden end to-day when the Government announced that under the restrictions laid down by the court it would be unable to make out a case against Haskell or of any of his co-defendants.

Gov. Haskell and three others were charged in an indictment returned by a Federal Grand Jury with "conspiring to defraud the Government" in the disposal of town lot sites at Muskogee, Okla. It was charged that by the false registration of the names of people scattered over the country they secured title to about 600 lots.

United States Judge John A. Marshall ruled that under a recent Circuit Court of Appeals decision, rendered in the Lonabaugh case, the prosecution would have to prove conscious participation by Haskell with the other defendants during the three years prior to the return of the indictment, which was in May, 1909. He said that the decision was in some points at variance with his own views, but he had no alternative.

S. R. Rush, special assistant to the Attorney General, said as the alleged conspiracy had taken place in 1902 much of the evidence secured by the Government related to acts committed before the Statute of Limitation as fixed by the court. The Government, therefore, asked that the case be nolle prossed.

TALK OF PARKER, ALSO SHEPARD

These Names Lead Among the Fifteen Considered at Early Morning Conference.

MURPHY PUZZLING IT OUT

He Controls Democratic Convention, but Is Anxious to Please the Up-State People.

SINISTER RUMORS AFLOAT

Rochester Is Full of Lobbyists, Railroad Attorneys, and Race Track Agents.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, Friday, Sept. 30, 2 A. M.—After a conference in Mr. Murphy's room at the Hotel Seneca which lasted over four hours, Chairman Dix decided to give out a list of fourteen candidates whose names, he said, had been carefully considered as Gubernatorial possibilities. This list was headed by Judge Alton B. Parker. Mr. Shepard's name came next, and after that Mr. Dix. The list contained nearly every name that has been mentioned so far, including a new one, E. Howard Hutchinson of Buffalo.

Secretary Thomas F. Smith of Tammany Hall gave out this list in order:

Alton B. Parker,	William Sulzer,
Edward M. Shepard,	Victor J. Dowling,
John A. Dix,	Herman A. Metz,
James S. Havens,	Martin J. Keogh,
D Cady Herrick,	John S. Bensel,
Martin H. Glynn,	Thomas M. Osborne,
James Gerard,	E. Howard Hutchinson.
Herman Ridder,

"The situation is still high up in the air," said Mr. Dix. "There will be another conference at 11 o'clock, when we hope to be able finally to agree upon a ticket. Mayor Gaynor's name was not considered at the conference."

Justice Morgan J. O'Brien was the next man out of the conference. He said:

"There was a general discussion of candidates. No less than a dozen or fourteen names were mentioned, but the conference selected no one and decided to meet again at 11 o'clock, when it is hoped to agree upon a list of candidates before the convention meets."

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, Sept. 29.—Till midnight to-night and all day to-day the leaders of the New York Democracy have been taking the names of various candidates for Governor up to a room in the Whitcomb House and asking one man what he thought of them. That man has refused to give any answer, except that so-and-so was a good man. Then he has worked the long-distance wires to find out whether the man was really a good man.

The man who has done this is Charles F. Murphy, not merely the boss of Tammany Hall, but leader of the Democracy of the State of New York, the lineal successor of William L. Marcy, Silas Wright, Martin Van Buren, and Samuel J. Tilden.

All day and to-night the Democratic leaders have been going hat in hand to Mr. Murphy and asking him humbly to favor this or that candidate. To do him justice, he has behaved a good deal like a real leader. He has refused to permit himself to be swayed by personal prejudice, and seems to have a real desire to promote the success of his party, without regard to his own preferences.

The boom of John A. Bensel, who is a strong personal friend of his, does not seem to have weighed much with him just for that reason—that he doubts if Bensel's nomination would be conducive to carrying the election.

Without regard to that, the situation is a strange one. Never before has Tammany Hall been in such unquestioned control of a State Convention. Never before has any Tammany boss been enthroned as the State leader in the unlimited way in which Murphy is recognized to-day. The convention is in the hollow of his hand.

Rumors of Sinister Influences.

Back of Murphy's control are rumors of strange and sinister influences. You cannot throw a brick in any direction in Rochester without hitting some lobbyist or railroad attorney. The woods have been full of them from the start. They got here before the delegates did.

Why did Gaynor write the letter to James Creelman? There are forty answers in Rochester and none of them favorable to the theory that the Democratic Convention is a people's convention.

What was back of the secret candidacy of another leading candidate, never sprung until the Gaynor movement was out of the way, but carefully planned weeks in advance? There are forty answers and none of them favorable to the theory that the Democratic Convention is a people's convention.

The writer of this dispatch has attended many conventions, State and National, and he has never seen a more general air of distrust and suspicion than prevails throughout Rochester to-day as to the action of the convention whose session practically begins to-morrow. It met to-day, listened to a speech by Temporary Chairman Alton B. Parker, and adjourned until 1 o'clock to-morrow.

The convention session meant nothing. The real convention was in Mr. Murphy's room at the Whitcomb, where he was listening to the claims of the various candidates and to the demands of Mr. Hearst's representatives, who were urging him to accept Glynn, Gerard, or Sulzer—with the soft pedal on Sulzer.

Mr. Murphy, to-night is utterly undecided what to do. If he consulted his preferences he would nominate Bensel, but he does not dare. He is listening irresolutely to Hearst, who has had his ear all day. Hearst is not pleading, but threatening.

Names Wiped Off Slate.

As far as the first place on the ticket is concerned every name that has been prominently mentioned has practically been wiped off the slate. This was learned at a late hour to-night from a leader, who is in position to speak with authority.

The indications at midnight were that a "dark horse," or a man whose name has not been prominently mentioned in connection with the Gubernatorial nomination, would be named for the place at the head of the ticket. The name of ex-Judge Alton B. Parker, who was the standard bearer of his party in the National campaign of 1904, figured large in the talk of those in a position to know.

At any rate, it was stated authoritatively late to-night, these names were the only ones that were being seriously considered in the conferences of which Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy is the central figure: Ex-Judge Alton B. Parker, Democratic State Chairman John A. Dix, Justices Victor J. Dowling, Martin J. Keogh, and J. A. O'Gorman of the Supreme Court, Edward M. Grout, and Herman Ridder. Supplementary to this came strong intimations that the candidate selected would probably be a Judge.

When this information came to a few of the inner circle among the leaders it had become apparent that the withdrawal of Mayor Gaynor had brought about a tangle, which could be straightened out only by a new deal, which would eliminate existing rivalries due to the aspirations of so many for the leading place.

The new turn in the preliminary activities affecting the Gubernatorial nomination came, it was said to-night, after a long talk over the telephone between Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy and Mayor Gaynor or a person authorized to speak for him. Among the candidates on the revised list at least two, Justice Keogh of Westchester and Edward M. Grout, are known to have very close relations with Mr. Gaynor.

Leaders' Eyes on 1912.

The prominence given to the name of Alton B. Parker is due to the fact that Mr. Murphy and the other leaders whose suggestions are carrying weight in the conferences now in progress desire to make the nomination for Governor with particular regard to the campaign of two years hence. It is known that National Committeeman Norman E. Mack of Buffalo, who has figured conspicuously in the convention conferences, has ruged that this phase of the situation be not lost sight of when the nomination is made.

There is a reason also why the leaders here feel that a man taken from the bench would make a strong candidate this year. The platform which is being evolved will contain a plank emphasizing the fact that this is a government of law, and that denunciation of the courts and disregard of the Constitution, as voiced by Col. Roosevelt in the speeches he made in the Middle West, breed disrespect for the law, and as such are detrimental to democratic institutions. The leaders here are of the opinion that the nomination of a Judge by the Democrats would lend force to the disapproval voiced in the platform.

The change in the situation came after Tammany Leader Murphy had listened patiently all day to recommendations and suggestions made by delegations from nearly every part of the State. Mr. Murphy urged harmonious action by the delegates from outside of New York City on some candidate of Gubernatorial calibre, assuring them that such a man would receive the unqualified approval of the New York Democrats, which should insure his nomination.

The New York County delegates will hold a caucus to-morrow morning for the purpose of announcing that the Tammany delegation has no candidate for Governor, but will support an up-State candidate in preference to one from New York City.

It was said to-night that objections had been raised to every one of the candidates already mentioned, and that even the Shepard boom, which was the strongest of them all, had received some decided knocks from a large number of men who are to cast their votes in the convention as representatives of up-State counties.

Sulzer Works Desperately.

Sulzer has been desperately trying all day to acquire strength enough up-State to force Murphy to listen to him, and he appears to have eighty-three votes, which is much more than Havens or any other acknowledge candidate has.

Shepard is not an acknowledged candidate. Osborne is, but he has only the votes of Cayuga County behind him, and is said to be really playing for the Lieutenant Governorship. Havens has Monroe and scattering votes in other counties, and his managers, Louis M. Antisdale and John F. Dailey, are putting forth larger claims for him.

The talk around Rochester all day has been that the theory of a sure Democratic victory in November has gone by the board since Mayor Gaynor's letter, and this has had its weight with Mr. Murphy. He recognizes the seriousness of the situation. Yesterday Rochester was full of the air of victory. To-day gloom and indecision is the rule. It is the general talk everywhere that the bright chances of the Democracy are threatened with eclipse if the right kind of a nomination is not made. That argument has been presented to Mr. Murphy, and he is as fully apprised of it as anybody in town.

There is a strong element from up-State which had pinned its faith to Mayor Gaynor's candidacy, because he represented to them what they regarded as true Democratic ideals. This element, with the cohesive force gone, is drifting about to-night between the various headquarters of aspirants for Gubernatorial honors like sheep without a shepherd. At present there does not seem to be any one man in the field in a position to raise a banner to which the boomless Gaynor devotees could rally. While it seems absolutely certain that the Mayor of New York is out of the running for good, one hears voiced here and there among the delegates from up-State counties the belief that the Mayor's refusal to run is not final.

Distrust of Tammany Persists.

The perennial distrust of Tammany Hall, its motives, and purposes on the part of up-State Democrats, which has run so strongly through the history of the party in this State, is again coming to the surface as the convention is on the eve of proceeding to the naming of its ticket. Among the delegations from rural counties in all parts of the State there has been manifested a tendency to flock together and to pool their interests in a defensive alliance against Tammany domination. In some instances, of course, this formation of communities of interest in votes is due to the notion of rural leaders that by grouping their interests they may be in a position to drive bargains in votes to land some of their favorite ones in subordinate positions on the slate, but in many other instances the only apparent purpose is to prevent complete dictation by Tammany Hall.

Friends of Charles F. Murphy declare that all these fears are unfounded and that the many delegations from up-State that have called at his headquarters during the day have been urged to get together on some candidate for the leading place on the ticket and assured that any candidate who can gain any considerable support from up-State will have the support of Tammany Hall.

So far this advice has had no effect, and it is freely admitted to-night that Mr. Murphy, though reluctantly, may have to find a way out of the chaos which characterizes the situation here to-night by himself naming the man who is lead the ticket.

What is Murphy going to do? How is he going to use the great power with which he was vested through the ousting of Conners, brought about by the aid of the Democratic League? These are the questions which many of the delegates from up-State are asking to-night in one form or another.

Democratic League Active.

The Democratic League has not been idle since the delegates began to gather. To-day a committee from that organization, composed of S. Stanwood Menken, Paul Fuller, and Frederic R. Coudert, called on Murphy and informed him that the support of the old line Democrats who placed the league in the field in an endeavor to rejuvenate their party in the coming campaign would depend entirely on what sort of candidate he placed in the field and what sort of platform he gave that candidate to stand on. They told Mr. Murphy that Edward M. Shepard, Thomas M. Osborne, or James S. Havens would be satisfactory to the league, but that some of the other men whose names have received favorable mention in Tammany circles would be opposed.

Maurice M. Minton, whose up-State Gaynor boom of mysterious origin puzzled a good many politicians during the dog days, has now transferred his headquarters from Fishkill-on-the-Hudson to the Hotel Seneca in this city. If with Gaynor out of the running he has transferred his fealty to some candidate already in the field or to some dark horse who needs more grooming before he can be trotted out, neither Mr. Minton nor his lieutenants are willing to disclose the fact. But the Minton headquarters present all the appearance of being the centre of a busy boom, though minus a candidate openly acknowledged.

Mr. Minton sits in an inner room where delegates are ushered in in a constant procession, to be let out through another door. The confabs are held behind closed doors and generally only one delegate is received at a time by boomer Minton.

It is rumored here to-night that certain representatives of the race track interests, who were put out of business by the Hughes reform bills, are taking an active interest in the slate to be made before the convention meets to-morrow.

John F. Cronin, one of Mr. Minton's chief lieutenants, said to-night that Mr. Minton really felt a grave responsibility now that the Gaynor sentiment he had stirred up through his Summer campaign apparently could find no outlet and that his sole aim was to guide this sentiment into channels where it could bring about the nomination of good men on the ticket. Mr. Cronin stated positively that Mr. Minton had no candidate to advocate now that Gaynor was out of it, and the mention, one after another, of the names of candidates already prominently in the field failed altogether to evoke any expression of even mind approval from Mr. Minton's chief lieutenants.

HEARST MEN WORRY MURPHY.

Present in Force at Rochester—Third Ticket Feared.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, Sept. 29.—The presence of some fifteen or twenty active Hearst men in town to-night, several of whom have been in conference with Charles F. Murphy during the day, increases the impression that the Independence League leader will probably have a good deal to say about the selection of the Democratic State ticket. There is a distinct idea among the delegates, and particularly the New York City men, that the Hearst influence will have a good deal of weight in the final settlement.

Charles E. Gehring, formerly Chairman of the New York County Committee of the Independence League, who was appointed Deputy County Clerk of New York after the success of the Hearst-Republican fusion ticket last Fall, arrived in town this afternoon with ex-Assemblyman Allen, who has been identified with the Hearst movement for several years. Both were mysterious and neither would admit that they had come as emissaries of Mr. Hearst. All they would say for publication was that they hoped Mr. Murphy would permit the incorporation of a "real direct nominations" plank in the Democratic platform. They would not talk of candidates, and would not say whom Mr. Hearst will be likely to support.

The effect of their presence and that of the other Hearst men was made evident soon after their arrival, however, by a declaration by Mr. Murphy that he was in favor of a strong direct nominations plank.

When Mr. Gehring, Justin McGrath, Mr. Allen, city editor of The New York American, and the other Hearst men were asked whether or not they believed the Independence League leader would run for Governor himself, they retired behind their mask of mystery. The Independence League State Convention will be held in New York City on Oct. 5. There is an impression here to-night that if things are not arranged to Mr. Hearst's satisfaction here he will have himself nominated at that time.

The men who believed that Mayor Gaynor would accept the nomination are particularly favorable toward Hearst at this time. They say that with the Mayor as the candidate for Governor the campaign which Mr. Hearst would have been compelled to conduct, to be consistent with his attitude toward Mr. Gaynor, would have been most unpopular; now he can go before the people on a clear issue, possibly gaining a good deal of the Mayor's strength from those who believe the Democratic candidate should be a "people's man."

The atmosphere of gloom about the various headquarters to-night is very thick. It is undoubtedly true that there would not have been nearly as many candidates in the field for the various subsidiary State offices if they and their supporters had not believed the Mayor was going to run. With him at the head of the ticket it was simply a question, in their minds, of being on the "band wagon." Now all this is changed, and while the booming is still being carried on, in a half-hearted manner, there are evidently a good many of the erstwhile candidates who would be glad to seek cover.

The men whom it is believed Mr. Hearst would indorse for the head of the ticket are understood to be John A. Bensel, President of the New York City Board of Water Supply, which is building the new Catskill Aqueduct; Congressman Sulzer, Supreme Court Justice Gerard, ex-State Controller Martin H. Glynn, who was elected on the Hearst-Murphy ticket in 1906, and Supreme Court Justice Victor J. Dowling of New York. The last named undoubtedly would have been the Tammany candidate for Mayor of New York last Fall if Judge Gaynor had withdrawn. All attempts to find out what conditions Mr. Hearst would make on the indorsement by him of one of these men failed to-night.

One of the leaders of the Erie County delegation, who was one of the strongest Hearst men in the convention four years ago, said to-night:

"The boss is undoubtedly back on the job again. With the elimination of Gaynor it does not seem likely that any man can be named and elected whom he does not approve."

Incidentally, it may be mentioned that the possibility of Hearst's running for Governor is the biggest of the many gnarled and knotted clubs that are being held to-night over the devoted head of Charles F. Murphy.

MUSHROOM CROP OF BOOMS.

Sixteen for Governor and 175 for Various Places on Ticket.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, Sept. 29.—A careful count of candidates, aggressive and otherwise, for the various offices on the Democratic ticket from Governor down, up to midnight to-night shows not less than 175. With the convention adjourned until to-morrow afternoon, and a possibility of its extending into Saturday, this list may be decidedly augmented. Candidates are so thick, in fact, that almost every other person one jostles against in the crowded lobbies of the Seneca and Whitcomb Hotels, where the politicians are located, is looking for some office or other.

The booms for Governor outnumber those for any other place on the ticket. There are just sixteen of them, all well-defined, and in various stages of growth and sturdiness. Only a severe frost emanating from the vicinity of Leader Murphy's room is sufficient to kill them off. Following is the list as it stands to-night in the order of strength:

EDWARD M. SHEPARD of Kings.
JAMES S. HAVENS of Monroe.
JOHN A. BENSEL of New York.
MARTIN GLYNN of Albany.
JAMES W. GERARD of New York.
THOMAS M. OSBORNE of Auburn.
HERMAN RIDDER of New York.
HERMAN METZ of Kings.
WILLIAM SULZER of New York.
D CADY HERRICK of Albany.
LOUIS P. FUHRMAN of Erie.
VICTOR J. DOWLING of New York.
MARTIN J. KEOGH of Westchester.
FREDERIC R. COUDERT of Nassau.
GEORGE B. VAN KENNEN of St. Lawrence.
JOHN PURROY MITCHEL of New York.

The situation in regard to all these candidates is unique, in that Murphy and the other leaders have carefully refrained from indicating in any way the Tammany preference. Mr. Murphy says every time he is approached on the subject, which is at least forty times a day, that he does not favor any one candidate more than another and that the up-State delegates will decide upon the man. Mr. Murphy indicated this evening that if all the sixteen candidates would get together and unite on one man he would be willing to let that man's name go to the convention. There is a mighty small chance, however, of such a proceeding.

There is evidence that the strength of the Edward M. Shepard boom is waning. Last night he received information that was anything but encouraging. What it was he would not say, but he frankly admitted that he had not been keeping any definite watch on the progress of his boom, but was letting it take care of itself. He took counsel to-night with John H. McCooey, the Kings County leader, on the advisability of opening up regular headquarters. Mr. McCooey advised against the step, on the ground that it would be an admission that he was losing strength, and added that more effective work could be done under cover. Mr. McCooey professed the utmost faith in Mr. Shepard's chances, and said he felt sure the final choice would descend upon the Brooklyn man. Asked if he thought McCooey was keeping faith with him, Mr. Shepard said he had the utmost confidence in McCooey. Mr. McCooey declared that only one of the Kings County delegates was against Shepard, and he was James Kane. There is plenty of talk around the hotel corridors, however, that a number of the Kings County aggregation would stand for almost any one else and that their first choice is Herman Metz.

Ex-State Controller Martin H. Glynn is rivalling Havens and Sulzer in his activity as a candidate. This activity takes the form of flooding the town with literature. Mr. Glynn is not here, and he has no headquarters, but wherever one turns a pamphlet telling of Mr. Glynn's work while Controller and his fitness to be Governor is thrust into his hand. He was the first to attack the Republican nominee, Henry L. Stimson. Mr. Glynn's boom is taken seriously by a great many people, as it is argued that he is a candidate who would receive the full support of Hearst. The fact that he is an up-State man is also in his favor.

The Sulzer boom does not make any progress. The Congressman's headquarters are thronged all day long, but even his admirers are admitting that his chances are not improving. Thomas W. Osborne's boom is in about the same condition. Both Sulzer and Osborne are waiting for an invitation to get in at the tail end of the ticket as the candidate for Lieutenant Governor. It is generally believed that the situation on this line is a trifle in favor of Osborne. This selection, however, will depend entirely upon where the Gubernatorial nominee comes from. If he is from New York Osborne will be preferred for second place; if from up-State, Sulzer will have the call.

James S. Havens's boom is not exciting much more interest than it did at first. He is still loudly talked of in Rochester and the rest of Monroe County, but not much outside. Havens still insists that he will not take the nomination for Lieutenant Governor.

DIRECT NOMINATIONS URGED.

Platform to Declare for State-Wide System—To Assail Roosevelt.

ROCHESTER, Sept. 29.—The Committee on Resolutions, composed of fifty-one members, one from each Senate district, went into session soon after the adjournment of the Democratic State Convention to-day, and deputized its deliberations on the platform to a sub-committee composed of Seymour Van Santvoord of Rensselaer, Chairman of the full committee; William Church Osborne, Putnam; Morgan J. O'Brien, New York; John B. Stanchfield, Chemung; Thomas F. Conway, Clinton; Norman E. Mack, Erie; Albert Hessberg, Albany; John J. Fitzgerald, Kings; Abram I. Elkus and John Quinn, New York.

The sub-committee decided at a late hour to-night to refer all matters to a further sub-committee, composed of Chairman Van Santvoord, Congressman Fitzgerald, and John Quinn, to report to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock to the sub-committee the result of their deliberations, and at noon the platform will be presented to the entire Committee on Resolutions.

It is said that the platform will provide for State-wide direct primaries, but with no specific plan; direct nomination of United States Senators; equal and uniform taxation; an employers' liability plank, and an income tax. The platform will contain an attack on Theodore Roosevelt for his arraignment of the Court of Appeals, and will also denounce the administration of Gov. Hughes for extravagance. The wording of the direct nominations plank was still unsettled when the sub-committee suspended work for the night.

The consideration of the direct primary plank was begun as soon as the original sub-committee went into session. A number of delegations, each advocating some special type of direct nominations, appeared for hearings. A delegation of progressive Democrats, headed by A. J. Elias of Buffalo, President of the organization, recommended "direct nominations applicable throughout the State to all elective offices, so as to abolish nominating conventions." The delegation informed the committee that it "insisted on the adoption of this plank."

Chautauqua and Cattaragus representatives submitted a direct nominations plank, "declaring our faith in the principles of the direct election of party committees and the direct nomination of party candidates, and pledging our party to the enactment of laws that shall apply these principles to the State at large and to counties and legislative and Congressional districts, together with party enrollment and such other statutory provisions as are necessary to the fair conduct of primary elections."

A delegation representing the Brooklyn Democratic Club submitted a number of declarations for the committee's consideration, among them being "denunciation of the present tariff law as a betrayal of the people for the benefit of the worst forms of private and corporate greed, election of United States Senators by the direct vote of the people, conservation by the State of its natural resources, reform in registration and enrollment laws so that personal registration and enrollment shall be required, an election ballot with the names of candidates appearing but once under the title of the office, improvement of National and State waterways and liberal provision for free and open piers and docks for the Port of New York, creation by the State of adequate termini for the barge canal, encouragement of merchant marine, and nomination by the convention of a candidate for the United States Senatorship."

The Governing Committee of the Brooklyn Democratic Club "urged the repeal of the transfer tax law as being confiscatory in its terms and discouraging and detrerent to the investment of capital in the State of New York."

A delegation composed of Mrs. Ella Hawley Crossett of Warsaw and Mrs. William C. Gannett of Rochester, representing the New York State Woman's Suffrage League, got a hearing, and advocated "the submission to the voters of the State of a Constitutional amendment guaranteeing suffrage to the women of New York." The recommendation was also supported by Max Eastman of the New York Men's League for Woman Suffrage.

PARKER EXCORIATES REPUBLICAN PARTY

Says Campaign Contributions Pay for Tariff Favors and Non-Enforcement of Law.

CALLS ROOSEVELT USURPER

Keynote Speech Delivered as Temporary Chairman of Democratic Convention at Its First Session.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, Sept. 29.—Four hundred and fifty sad-eyed men wondering whom they were to nominate for Governor of New York gathered to-day in a compact little convention hall in this town, listened to a band that was fond of playing "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?" and clapped their hands at some of the things ex-Judge Alton B. Parker said about Roosevelt. There was a crowd in the galleries, but the first session of the Democratic State Convention gave it little entertainment. Mr. Parker was the Temporary Chairman. He may have been cheerful, but he did not look it. Nobody else looked it, either.

At precisely 12:52 P. M. Charles F. Murphy entered the hall followed by J. Sergeant Cram and Daniel F. Cohalan, and a delegate in the third row remarked:

"Murphy is coming in, accompanied by his mind and his manners."

Usually the Tammany boss gets a roar of applause when he enters a convention, but this time there was only a little ripple. Edward M. Shepard got a good deal more of a hand when he came in with John H. McCooey and his old rival, Herman Metz. Shepard flushed, smiled, and looked pleased, but neither he nor Murphy nor anybody else got the really spontaneous greeting that was given to poor "Fingy" Conners, down and out, and very much in need of sympathy.

Conners came down the aisle accompanied only by ex-Alderman John J. Kennedy of Buffalo, who is trying very hard to be nominated for State Treasurer. "Fingy" has been standing around in the corridors of the Seneca Hotel for two days waiting for somebody to come up and talk to him, as complete a spectacle of the overthrown boss as has ever been seen. To-day for the first time he got a recognition which was really genuine, and which represented the honest feeling of the delegates for a man whom, with all his faults, they had found likable and personally square.

Conners Shows His Delight.

Conners was delighted by it. He turned around, smiled, waved his hand, and when the applause continued, grinned a grin that stretched clear back to his ears.

Murphy sat with William F. Sheehan, who is a delegate from Murphy's district, although he does not live there. The front row was given over to the Democrats of northern New York, headed by Thomas F. Conway of Plattsburg. Ex-Lieut. Gov. Chanler, who was the Democratic nominee for Governor two years ago, came in unnoticed. Nothing was seen of Sulzer.

At 1:10 a large man in a gray Summer suit arose and announced that the convention would come to order. He was John A. Dix of Washington County, the State Chairman. For a time he was badly rattled, for whenever he turned around some photographer fired off a flashlight, which had the disconcerting effect of a dynamite bomb.

He announced that Alton B. Parker was to be Permanent Chairman, whereupon a photographer fired off another flashlight, and the band added to the applause a fresh rendering of the ever-serviceable "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?" Mr. Dix appointed J. Sergeant Cram, John H. McCooey, and William H. Fitzpatrick, the man who beat Conners in Buffalo, as a committee to escort Judge Parker to the chair.

The Judge read most of his speech from his notes, but toward the close he suddenly broke loose and made an attack on Theodore Roosevelt that evoked some real enthusiasm.

After Judge Parker had finished, Tom Smith of Tammany Hall called the roll in his usual finished manner. After that various persons, among whom were Farley of Broome, Van Santvoord of Rensselaer, Finucane of Monroe, and Bulger of Oswego offered the usual resolutions for the appointment of committees. When they had been adopted Chairman Parker announced in a stentorian voice that the convention was adjourned until 1 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

Then everybody streamed out and gave Mr. Murphy a chance to find out whom he wanted nominated for Governor.

As he went out the band played "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?"

Parker Assails Roosevelt.

The remarks of Judge Parker which were not in his prepared speech had to do with the Republican Convention at Saratoga.

"That convention," he said, "passed from the hands of an old organization into the hands of a new one. It passed by the assistance of Federal officeholders. Nearly 200 of them contributed to that majority. In vain was an appeal made to President Taft. The appeal was not heeded. Think of the disgrace of it—free men not daring to vote according to their judgment and their conscience, because if they did there stood behind them the Federal Government saying, 'Your political life is at stake.' And it must not be forgotten that he who was responsible for this only a few years ago ostentatiously removed Federal officeholders for daring to participate in a political fight."

Referring to Col. Roosevelt's speech for direct nominations, Judge Parker continued:

"And yet the temporary chairman who made that speech listened without protest to a resolution taking away the power from the delegates, a right which they had exercised for fifty years, namely the power to name their own representatives on the committees. And this resolution was passed in the face of cries of 'Gag rule.'"

Judge Parker referred to Col. Roosevelt as a usurper of the political control of the State, and called upon the delegates to deprive him of this power at the coming election.

Judge Parker on the Issues.

Judge Parker's formal address was as follows:

"The Democratic Party stands confronted with the opportunity and the duty to render patroitic public service of the first magnitude. The Fathers builded for us a Government under the control of the people. Into the Constitution they incorporated those great principles of liberty, the denial of which had been the cause and the justification of the Revolution. They so divided the powers of Government as to guard against executive usurpation; put it beyond the power of any save the people themselves to amend this Constitution, and sat down to enjoy the blessings of a Government of law, not of men.

"This was less than a century and a quarter ago. To-day there are political prophets in other lands who predict for us a speedy coming of the dictator. There are in our beloved country advocates of the policy to gradually take from the people the home rule powers of the States and confer them upon the Federal Government. Others, still more 'progressive' would not await the action of the people, but would seize coveted powers whenever the passing whim or caprice of an executive shall suggest it. Indeed, a President of the United States has said in substance and effect, that if we fail to increase the Federal power through executive action, through legislation and through judicial construction and interpretation of law, we show our impotence. On divers occasions he fitted the deed to the word, and subsequently rejoiced in the applause of the unthinking.

"Nor is he alone in this advocacy. Other champions there are of the doctrine that the people of the States and their officials are less competent to deal with business matters than the executive branch of the Federal Government, the courts' share therein being particularly obnoxious. According to this school as large a share as can be of the powers of Congress and the courts shall be taken from them and ultimately lodged in the Federal Executive. For, says their leader, in his address to the Hamilton Club: 'This new nationalism regards the executive power as the steward of the public welfare.' This reconstrued the legislative and the judicial departments of Government are no longer to be co-ordinate departments of Government, exercising their powers independently, but are to be subordinate to and controlled by the steward of all power, the executive.

Great Unrest Among the People.

"How comes this assault thus early in our National life upon the 'most wonderful instrument ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man'? How is it possible to gain followers in such a cause? The answer is, there is a great unrest among the people. And why this unrest, with the National wealth mounting higher and higher, with work for everyone, and the people all enjoying a greater measure of comfort than do the people of any other country? Partly, because the cost of living is mounting still more rapidly than income and wages. The salaried man, the wage earner, the people with small incomes, whether from investments, farming, or business, find it yearly more difficult to make both ends meet, let alone putting aside a little money to educate the children or provide for their declining years. While the dream of saving is passing, the story of vast increase in the National wealth and abnormal increase of individual fortunes is being daily recited. The majority having been politically taught that Government is responsible for good times, many of them have come now to wonder whether the machinery of government is not at present geared to enrich the few at the expense of the many.

"As a rule our people are blessed with too much sense and are far too manly and generous to regret the good fortune of others. So too are they too right-minded and just to countenance the employment of Government to accumulate wealth for a few at the cost of all. It is the growing belief, however, that this happened and has led many of them to swallow the nostrums and apply the plasters of numberless political quacks. Through all the mazes of deceitful teaching and ridiculous panaceas, intended by the party in power to hide the greatest political wrong of the century, the people have been groping toward the light and the truth.

Tariff and Trusts Responsible.

"The great bulk of the larger fortunes has been wrung from the people through the aid of direct legislation, aided by non-enforcement of law. That is, through the tariff and the combinations to prevent competition and in restraint of trade, created for the purpose of securing from the public every dollar which the tariff statute made possible.

"The first tariff act was in 1789, and the average dutier were 8½ per cent. Now the average is 50 per cent.

"In 1842 the average was 32 per cent. By the Walker act of 1846 they were reduced to an average of about 25 per cent. This worked so well that in 1857 the average was further reduced to 20 per cent. It probably would never have been increased but for the war, for the census of 1860 disclosed a higher percentage of increase of capital invested in manufacturing than during any similar period of our history.

"The tariff beneficiaries, however, availed themselves of the exigencies of the civil war to secure two increases—the first to an average of 37½ per cent., the second to an average of 47 per cent. And now, forty-six years later, the average is 50 per cent.

"The Republican Party is responsible for this increase from the average of 20 per cent., as it stood in 1860, to 50 per cent., as it stands to-day, and for the thousands of millions of dollars that through it have been taken from the people to create the swollen fortunes that President Roosevelt denounced so vigorously. Strange, is it not, that he did not then suggest that the way to prevent their creation in the future was to reduce the tariff which made them possible.

Republican Promise of Revision.

"The Republican platform of 1908 seemed to recognize this injustice. True, it did not in terms promise a revision of the tariff downward. But its promise of a revision of the tariff by a special session of Congress, to be called immediately after the inauguration of the next President, was intended to hold the tariff reduction Republicans in line, while the trick in the phraseology was to be made clear to the tariff beneficiaries. But the deceit was so promptly discovered and denounced that it became necessary to disown the fraud. President Taft, as the leader, while admitting that the tariff could be revised up as well as down, stated unequivocally that this promise meant that the average of duties should be lowered. And his construction of this intentionally ambiguous phrase was accepted by his party press and the platform speakers generally. The effect was undoubtedly to hold in line a vast army of Republicans who, while proud of the early history of their party and cherishing for it a great affection, were yet thoroughly persuaded of the great wrong to the Nation wrought by the tariff statutes.

"Well, Congress did convene in special session as promised, and did revise the tariff, but downward, as promised. In vain did President Taft plead with the Senate to keep the party faith and to save him, as the head of the party as well as of the Government, from the humiliation of having his own party repudiate his personal assurance as to the meaning of the plank—aye, more, his pledge to the people as to what should be done under it, made in his capacity as chosen leader.

"The Republican National machine, however, would have none of it. It stood faithfully by the trusts, the corporations, and the individuals who were tariff beneficiaries, and against the people. Do you think it was easy for the yoke-bearing Senators to do this in the face of the earnest and honest appeal of the President, in the presence of the denunciations of other Republican Senators, who tore in pieces the flimsy excuses which the regulars invoked, at the same time mocking them as the servitors of those who would feast on the people? Do you think that they did not shiver in their political boots as they read the demands of the press and the pleadings of their constituents to keep the faith and relieve the people from the oppressive burdens that rest upon them so unjustly? It presented, undoubtedly, the most trying situation in their several political lives.

Money Needed to Buy Votes.

"Then why did they do it, do you ask? I answer, they did it in obedience to the demand of a corrupt National Republican machine which has for years traded away the rights of the people in return for money used to strengthen the machine and buy votes in doubtful Congressional districts and in close States—a course of dealing long in vogue, which is responsible for the present exorbitant tariff and the trusts that, in defiance of law, have unhindered come into existence for the purpose of extorting from the people the last farthing that the tariff permits.

"The corporation is the most useful public device ever originated by man. Without it our great railroad systems, steamboat lines, &c., would not have been created. The great majority of our corporations are honestly conducted and render useful public service. He who would arouse a prejudice against the corporation as such is not a good citizen, and he who would not lift his voice to turn away from it misguided wrath is lacking in patriotism. Whatever of wrong there is is not the fault of the entity called corporation, but of the officials in charge of it. And for the individual committing the offense there should be punishment. Such a method will protect the public and at the same time save the innocent and betrayed stockholder from injustice.

"A combination having for its purpose the restraint of trade and the stifling of competition is in violation of the common law which we inherited from England and which the courts of this country have ever faithfully enforced. It matters not what final form the combination may take, whether corporate or otherwise, if there is proof that its purpose is restraint of trade, the shell will not protect it.

"Yet a large number of such creations exist. Nine-tenths of them were created after the year 1897. The great majority were builded to exact from the people the levy of tribute authorized by the tariff. And there was no attempt on the part of the Attorney Generals of the several States to stop it. For that neglect the Republican political machine is responsible. During nearly all of the ten years of the rapid upbuilding of the trusts the Republican Party was in control of every Northern, Eastern, and Western State, as well as of the Federal Government.

Obligation for Campaign Funds.

"Why did they allow it, do you ask? Because the tariff beneficiaries were and for many years had been contributors to the Republican Presidential and Congressional campaign funds. The National Chairman or the Congressional Chairman solicited funds from corporations and individuals with the argument that the triumph of the party was essential to their protection. The acceptance of the sum asked for implied an agreement to protect the special privilege enjoyed by the donor.

"But competition prevented in many instances the collection from the people of rates which the tariff statute was intended to permit. To secure it all, even to the last mite, tempted the cupidity and stimulated the ingenuity of the beneficiaries. Only one way could be found—a combination of those engaged in a particular business, thus enabling them to control the price up to a point where the statute let in foreign competition. But the law stood in the way—that useful common law which we inherited from England. By it all such schemes, whatever the form or however disguised, are declared to be against public policy and void. Besides, there was the Sherman act, affecting those engaged in inter-State commerce. An attempt to change the law by statute would be doomed from the outset, as the people would arise as one man in opposition. But why, they said, should not the Republican Party, which we pay for protection, protect us? And what is the moral difference between passing a statute for party financial support and neglecting to enforce a law for the same consideration? The answer to the latter question was that if any, it is so negligible that we should demand to be let alone in our method of securing the protection the statute promises. And they were let alone. The Republican machine was in position to carry out a policy of non-enforcement of law.

"A wave of combination swept over the country. In the ensuing ten years, under Republican Federal and State control, 90 per cent. of the creations to shut out competition came into existence. They contribute a mighty force outside of and beyond their gigantic contributions to the Republican campaign chest.

Pay for Special Advantages.

"Need it be urged now that they did and do contribute; that the object of contribution has been and still is to secure special advantages by law and by non-enforcement of law? Aye, more, are there any intelligent men who, having carefully considered the matter, doubt that the act of 1903 authorizing 'diligent investigation into the organization and management of the business of any corporation' with publicity thereof in the discretion of the President, was intended as the leading feature of organized importunity for campaign funds? The statute gives to the suggestion of the sum that would be welcomed by the organization a degree of impressiveness not to be overlooked.

"Even the insurance companies were advised of the amount which should be taken from the widows' and orphans' fund for the benefit of the party once dominated by men of high ideals and honest purposes. So well understood was this practice that it seems to have become regarded by the Republican leaders as legitimate and proper in behalf of their party. On any other hypothesis it would be impossible to account for the well-known request of a President of the United States to Mr. Harriman—an official of a railroad subject to investigation and a measure of regulation by the Federal Government—to raise a quarter of a million dollars to be used in an election in which the President was interested, (an occurrence not by any means isolated.)

"Whatever of excuse may be offered, the ugly truth is that the Republican National machine has received the moneys of the corporate and individual beneficiaries of the tariff, and in return has compelled Congress to keep high the tariff rates, and their Attorney Generals to close their eyes to violations of law. Need we seek further evidence than the admission of President Taft? He said at Cincinnati, Sept. 21: 'The country is roused against the corporate or corrupt control of legislative agencies.' If, however, there still remains a doubting Thomas let him read the testimony of one who believes he knows. Said the ex-President at Osawatomie: 'It is necessary that laws should be passed to prohibit the use of corporate funds directly or indirectly for political purposes; it is still more necessary that such laws should be thoroughly enforced. Corporate expenditures for political purposes, and especially such expenditures by public service corporations, have supplied one of the principal sources of corruption in our political affairs.'

Judgment Should Be Eviction.

"In the light of all the testimony and of these admissions I submit that the jury of the people should find as a general verdict 'That the failure of the executive and legislative branches of government, both State and Federal, to protect the people from the special privilege hunters and graft seekers, is deeply rooted in a corrupt alliance between them and the Republican political machines.' Upon that verdict but one judgment can be entered—that of eviction. When you find cancer you know that pills and plasters will serve only to divert the mind of the patient from his fate. Pills and plasters have been liberally and sensationally prescribed for some years now, yet the cancer is still growing. We must tear it out ere it is too late.

"However much the people have suffered in dollars and cents through the polluting tariff alliance, they have suffered still more because of the lowering of the moral standard of public men and of the youth who are to take up the responsibilities of official life in the near future.

"It may be said in passing that some Republicans who were beneficiaries of this degrading and dangerous alliance now advocate surrender of certain powers of the States to the Federal Government because the States failed to perform their duty as to combinations in restraint of trade. Looking back six years we recall that the matter of combination was then seriously considered. The President insisted then that the difficulty was the absence of proper statutes, and that more drastic laws should be passed by Congress. To the answer made that the law was adequate, the only trouble being lack of enforcement of existing law, he entered a denial with a plea for the opportunity for his party to secure additional law.

"Later it was demonstrated that the law was adequate, although care was taken not to attempt to enforce it against individuals. The plea sufficed for that emergency.

"As the combinations in restraint of trade still flourished, a new line was adopted, but for the same general purpose as the one of six years ago, viz., to relieve the Federal Government from censure. Now the remedy suggested is that the Federal Government should have the power that States have failed to exercise—then all will be well. It is true the States neglected their duty. So, too, did the Federal Government. And the failure of both was due to the command of the recognized master—the Republican organization.

Powers Must Be Exercised.

"The practical remedy which our institutions afford to the people of the States is not in the surrender of their powers, but in their exercise. The first step in that direction should be to turn out the unfaithful steward, and resume the exercise of the State functions under new and unhampered officials who will understand that the duty of the States must be performed.

"Under the wrongful combination of machine politics and tariff-fed trusts, corporations and individuals, the interests of the Republican political machine have taken first place and those of the people second place. Hence the cost of government, Federal and State, has grown with startling rapidity. It is but a little while since the people were startled with a Billion Dollar Congress. Now we have a two Billion Dollar Congress. President Arthur vetoed a River and Harbor Appropriation bill of about eighteen millions. President Taft signed one of fifty-two millions. It is popularly known as the 'Pork Bill.' The President hopes that Congress will stop making it a 'Pork Bill,' but his party in Congress flout his advice, and—well, he signs it under protest. But his signature answers the purpose of his pork-loving organization.

"The total regular annual appropriations for the four years of President Cleveland's last term were $1,871,509,758. During President Roosevelt's last term, $3,842,203,577, more than double, with only eight years intervening the two terms. In President Rosevelt's term the office-holding army was increased nearly one hundred thouand, to be exact, 99,225. The added cost was seventy millions a year.

"But the country is growing, do you say? True, but at about the same rate as during the preceding eight years under President Cleveland and President McKinley. One-tenth as many office-holders sufficed for both their terms. The added cost was six millions, instead of seventy millions.

"Senator Aldrich used these words very recently: 'If I were a business man, and could be permitted to do so, I would run this government for $300,000,000 less that it is operated for at present.'

Honest Fight by Hughes.

"In the States it is the same way. Here and there, however, a man by accident comes into office to whom country is first and party second. Gov. Hughes will serve as an illustration. He makes an honest uphill fight for the things he believes in, and passes on, but his meed of accomplishment is not at all satisfactory to him.

"The organization finds it each year more difficult to meet the demands upon it for patronage, place and money. Directly or indirectly, the ultimate source of supply is the State. Hence the annual cost of operation increases by leaps that have no bounds.

"With the close of Gov. Flower's administration, Dec. 31, 1894, the Democratic party passed from power. Never since has it elected either a majority of the Legislature or a Governor. Then the general expenses of the state were $15,713,578.20. This year they were $39,101,224.26, after the Governor had disapproved items aggregating $4,713,747.67.

"We see then that after more than a century of Statehood the cost of administration was something over fifteen millions, but fifteen years of exclusive Republican administration nearly doubled the cost. It is not surprising that the Governor in his message to the special session of the Legislature sharply pointed out that the State is rap

JAPAN MAY REFUSE COMMERCIAL TREATY

REPLY TO ENGLISH CRITICS

Japanese Experts Explain Why It Is Impossible for Them to Give Any Country an Advantage.

TOKIO, Sept. 14, (via Victoria, B. C., Sept. 29.)—With the close of the Summer work will begin in earnest on the new commercial treaties which Japan expects to conclude before the end of the year. Every power except America is now engaged in the negotiation of these treaties.

There is good reason to believe that when the turn of the United States comes, if a clause regulating Japanese immigration is insisted upon Japan will decline to make a treaty, on the ground that her immigration is now being satisfactorily regulated and that so long as this continues a treaty on the subject would be humiliating.

In England there is much criticism of Japan, it being declared that Japan's ally receives no advantages. Experts here point out that Japan must, in self-protection, care for her export trade, and that the greater part of that trade is with the United States and France. Hence it would be impossible to give any country an advantage, because this would at once lay Japan's exports open to the maximum tariff, where now her exports enjoy the minimum both in America and France.

It is quite possible that in various cases no treaties will be made. Some of the officials who have the matter in hand here appear not to attach great importance to commercial treaties, and point out that Great Britain and the United States are carrying on business with a number of other countries without any treaties.

LORD MAYOR A TEETOTALER.

Sir Thomas Strong the First Total Abstainer to Hold the Office.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Sir Thomas Vezey Strong was to-day elected Lord Mayor of London without opposition.

Sir Thomas was educated privately and is credited with being a self-made man. In business he has been successful as the head of a paper supply firm. He was knighted while a Sheriff of the City of London. He is a Director of the United Kingdom Temperance and General Provident Institution, an officer of the Legion of Honor, and a Commander of the Order of Isabella the Catholic of Spain and of the Order of Our Lady of Villa Vicosa of Portugal.

The Lord Mayor will figure prominently in the entertainments and ceremonies connected with the coronation of King George.

CENTENARIAN ASKS SUPPORT.

Court Orders Four Sons of Jacob Boniface to Aid Sister in Keeping Him.

In the Brooklyn Domestic Relations Court a man, who says he is more than 100 years old, accused his four sons yesterday of abandoning him. He told Magistrate Naumer he was "not as spry as he used to be," and was unable to work to support himself.

The centenarian was Jacob Boniface, who lives with his daughter, Mrs. Sarah Wittenberg, at 475 Hamburg Avenue. Magistrate Naumer explained to the sons their duty to their father. They each agreed to contribute $1 a week to the support of the old man.

ATTACKS WOMAN OFFICER.

Magistrate Sends Man to the Island Who Held Mrs. McCauley Prisoner.

For more than two hours last evening Mrs. Carrie McCauley, probation officer of the Harlem Police Court, was held prisoner in the top floor apartment of William G. Coaley, janitor of a seven-story office building at 67 West 125th Street, and this morning as soon as she could reach Magistrate Freschi she said she narrowly escaped serious harm at the hands of the man.

The Court, recalling the arraignment of Coaley a few days ago on a charge of cruelty to his wife, ordered the warrant officer to hurry out and look for Coaley. Had it not been for several men who were attending a lodge meeting on the second floor of the building, Mrs. McCauley said, she could not have escaped Coaley, who had followed her down five flights of stairs, threatening all the while to "do her up."

Mrs. Coaley and her four small children were fleeing from the building with Mrs. McCauley when Coaley overtook them. On Sept. 22 Mrs. Coaley brought her husband into court on a summons. She said he was in the habit of going on protracted sprees and that while under the influence of liquor he delighted in holding her right thum in the door frame while he crushed it with the door. She said he would only cease the torture when she and the children begged him for mercy.

Magistrate Freschi put Coaley on three months' probation with Mrs. McCauley. Late yesterday Mrs. Coaley went to court and told Mrs. McCauley that her husband had just come home and had assaulted her and whipped their young children.

Mrs. McCauley, at 6 o'clock, visited Coaley. Coaley, she said, attacked her and kept her prisoner for nearly two hours and a half.

When Coaley turned up at his home later the officers arrested him and took him to court.

Magistrate Freschi said to the prisoner: "I should think you would be so filled with shame you would hide your face. I will hold you in $500 bail to keep the peace for six months."

In default of bail the prisoner was committed.

RHODE ISLAND TICKET NAMED

Aldrich Denounced for Dishonest Tariff in Democratic Platform.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 29.—The Democrats of the State met in convention here to-day and nominated this State ticket without a dissenting vote:

Governor—LEWIS A. WATERMAN of Providence.

Lieutenant Governor—Dr. PHILLIP E. CLARK of Newport.

Secretary of State—ALBERIC ARCHAMBAULT of Warwick.

Attorney General—JOHN I. DEVLIN of Providence.

General Treasurer—TRISTAM D. BABCOCK of Providence.

The convention was called to order at 12:30. Peter C. Cannon, as permanent presiding officer, spoke, and the ticket was nominated within ten minutes. The platform says:

> Indorsing what apears to be the almost unanimous verdict of the country, we denounce the Aldrich tariff as the most dishonest piece of tariff legislation ever enacted. It was conceived in deception, practiced upon the American people by the Republican Party, and brought forth in the infamy that has justly fallen upon its sponsors. This tariff law, framed mostly by Nelson W. Aldrich, the acknowledged champion of the special interests, and the continuance of Secretary Ballinger in the Cabinet are sufficient evidence to the people of the existing alliance between the special interests and the party in power.
> We favor and pledge our candidates for Congress to support an amendment to the Constitution providing for the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people, and an amendment to the Constitution providing for an income tax.

Laws to prevent corrupt practices in elections and in legislation, a direct primary law, and a public service commission are favored.

GOVERNMENT RAIDS B. H. SCHEFTELS & CO.

word would be flashed to them. Two or three days later, the Government agents say, the victims got the "code" word.

There were several mining properties, so called, which were Scheftels & Co. specialties, the best known of which were the Bovard Consolidated Mine, the Rawhide Coalition, the Rawhide Queen, and the Jumbo Extension, all of Nevada, and the South Quincy of Michigan. All of these the Government pronounced to be practically worthless properties.

The Ely Central is not mentioned in the above list because in the beginning that project was started in good faith by a number of Philadelphians. When the Philadelphians found that the property had no possibilities they accepted a bid for 880,000 of the 16,000,000 shares from Rice, of 3 cents a share, it is said.

It is said that Scheftels & Co. sold Ely Central stock to the amount of $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 in cash and made a profit of $3,000,000 in the transactions.

In Nevada Charles S. Herzig, brother of "George Graham Rice," was in personal charge of the development. It was published that the first car of ore had been shipped from the mines, and the purchasers of stock saw fortunes ahead. All the ore that was shipped, it is said, were a few pieces of copper that had been picked up. The Government has not been able to find out to whom this "wagon load" of ore was consigned.

In addition to the Ely and Rawhide Coalition's profits, the agents learned that Scheftels & Co. had cleaned up in promotions in the South and in Quincy, Mich., nearly $800,000 in three months, while Bovard brought in about $500,000 more. Incidentally, it may be said, the firm was buying about $5,000 worth of postage stamps every week.

The complaint charges that on Jan. 4 last the defendants devised a scheme to defraud William A. Childs, Charles H. Slack, and Dr. D. J. Symanski, and various other persons in different parts of the country. The scheme, the complaint explains, was effected by the use of the mails and through the opening of correspondence with the persons named and by inciting other persons to communicate with the defendants, who were doing business under the name of B. H. Scheftels & Co.

Scarborough, the Government agent who files the complaint, further charges that the defendants, by means of advertisements, circulars, and letters, solicited customers who desired to buy and sell stocks for cash on margin through B. H. Scheftels & Co., which was represented as doing a brokerage business with unequaled facilities for the execution of orders.

Scarborough also asserts that the defendants charged customers 6 per cent. interest upon funds which they pretended to advance for carrying stocks on margins. He also says the defendants charged their customers commissions on stock transactions and falsely and fraudulently appropriated money and collateral sent them by customers without rendering anything of service or value in return therefor. The defendants, Scarborough charges, converted to their own use the difference between the actual market prices of stocks made on the Curb and the fictitious and fraudulent quotations and prices which they put in their market letters.

The persons named in the complaint are Simon Jacob Herzig alias George Graham Rice; George Sullivan, alias "Red Letter" Sullivan; Bernard H. Scheftels, Charles B. Stone, Charles F. Belser, William T. Seagraves, Harry Hedrick, John Delaney, Clarence McCormack, Charles S. Herzig, George M. Holbrook, Charles A. Sawyer, E. L. Mead, Benjamin Sheftels, Ralph E. Waterman, and Charles W. Finninger.

Holbrook is the manager of the Boston office, Sawyer of the Providence office, Mead of the Chicago office, Benjamin Sheftels, a brother of Bernard, of the Milwaukee office, Finninger of the Philadelphia office, and Waterman of the Detroit office. All of the others are connected with the office in New York, and of the New York men all but "Rice" and Hedrick are under arrest.

The office of the firm is opposite the curb in Broad Street, and the curb was packed with people when a patrol wagon drove up and stopped in front of the door to Scheftels & Co.'s office. The curb brokers realized immediately what was up and began to shout encouragement to Scarborough and the police.

When the police reappeared with the prisoners and began placing them in the patrol wagons there were probably 5,000 excited, cheering men and boys in Broad Street.

Bernard H. Scheftels, tall and broad-shouldered, hatless, his bald head glistening, was the first to appear with a policeman. He grinned at the crowd as he climbed into the patrol wagon. The others climbed in behind.

"Glad to see you going," a Curb broker shouted as the patrol wagon started, and the crowd cheered. Moses Grossman of 115 Broadway, counsel for Scheftels and the others followed the patrol wagon in a taxicab. Mr. Grossman told Scheftels that before he could consent to act as his counsel he must know the reason of the arrest.

"I don't know what it is," replied Scheftels.

At Police Headquarters the prisoners refused to give their names, and so they were all put down as "John Doe." The same trouble was experienced in the Federal Building, and it was fifteen minutes before the seven prisoners were identified.

After the identification was made Commissioner Shields fixed bail for Scheftels at $15,000, Sullivan $10,000, Belser $7,500, Seagraves $3,500, Stone $3,000, and Delaney and McCormack $2,500 each. The National Surety Company gave bail for Scheftels, Stone, Seagraves and Delaney. Sullivan, Belser, and McCormack were committed to the Tombs in default of bail.

None of the prisoners would talk to reporters. It was pointed out that for every violation of the law forbidding the use of the mails for fraudulent purposes the penalty may be five years in prison.

Commissioner Shields set the hearing for the case for 2:30 o'clock next Monday afternoon.

SCHEFTELS RAIDED IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 29.—United States Deputy Marshals raided the offices of B. H. Scheftels & Co. here to-day. The Deputy Marshals walked quietly into the office of the Scheftels concern on the ground floor of the Woman's Temple and placed the manager, E. L. Mead, under arrest. They subpoenaed clerks, stenographers, and telegraphers to appear later as witnesses and then gently shoved out of the doors the score or so of customers who were looking on.

Manager Mead was taken before United States Commissioner Foote, where he waived examination and was held in $5,000 bail. He started out in the custody of a deputy to get a bondsman. Mead has been manager of the Chicago office only two months. The raid was made by direction of United States District Attorney Sims.

The subpoenas served upon the employes of the Chicago office instruct them to go to New York to give their testimony. Assistant District Attorney Medardis expects to take the witnesses to New York to-morrow or Saturday.

United States District Attorney Henry H. Wise, Washington, telegraphed instructions in cypher to Assistant District Attorney E. J. Henning, Milwaukee, to make the arrest. Clifford, Peterson, and Miss Levine were subpoenaed to appear before the Grand Jury in New York. They will leave Milwaukee Friday morning.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 29.—As part of a general descent upon a chain of brokerage commission houses run in several cities by B. H. Scheftels & Co., Charles A. Sawyer, the Providence representative of the house, was arrested here to-day by Deputy United States Marshal Richmond J. Stone on a charge of devising a scheme for the use of the mails to defraud. Sawyer pleaded not guilty and was held by United States Commissioner Cross in $7,500 bail.

Deputy United States Marshal Stone was accompanied by Special Agent Tucker of the Department of Justice when he visited the Scheftels local office, at 87 Weybosset Street.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—The Philadelphia officials of B. H. Scheftels & Co. were raided shortly after noon to-day by James Cortelyou, Chief Postal Inspector of Philadelphia. Charles W. Finninger, the local manager, was arrested, charged with conspiracy to defraud, and ten clerks, including three women, found in the office, were taken to the Federal Building. There were a number of customers in the place when the raid was made, but they were not molested.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 29.—The local office of B. H. Scheftels was raided and closed to-day by agents of United States District Attorney Watson. Local Manager Ralph Waterman waived a hearing before United States Commissioner Finney and will leave for New York this afternoon in the custody of Deputy United States Marshal Duncan Lyons. Subpoenas were served on the former employes here.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 29.—The local office of B. H. Scheftels & Co. at 52 Devonshire Street was raided by United States Marshals to-day. George W. Holbrook, the local manager, was placed under arrest.

The Federal officers detained sixty customers, and after taking their names and those of the clerks allowed them to go. All books and papers in the office were confiscated.

THE FLEET NOW COMPLETE.

The North Dakota Arrives After Undergoing Repairs at Norfolk.

With the arrival yesterday of the North Dakota, all of the battleships of the Atlantic Fleet, with the exception of the Georgia, are in New York. With the auxiliaries there are now twenty-one vessels of the fleet under Admiral Schroeder in port.

The North Dakota has been undergoing repairs at Norfolk as a result of the recent oil explosion in her engine compartments. In this accident three of her crew were killed. It was announced on the arrival of the battleship yesterday that several of the crew who distinguished themselves in the rescue work that followed the explosions had been awarded $100 each and certificates of merit by the Secretary of the Navy for their heroism.

Several thousand of the 15,000 sailors who man the ships received shore liberty yesterday, and, traveling in squads of two, three, and four, were seen in all parts of town, particularly Broadway. The Bowery sees little of the sailors now.

The sailors just at present are watching the cholera reports from Italy very closely. On Nov. 1 the fleet is scheduled to sail for the Mediterranean, and unless the cholera situation improves it is certain that the Navy Department's plans will be disarranged. It is said that if the Mediterranean cruise is abandoned on account of the cholera England and France may be substituted for the Mediterranean ports.

abolition of the present policy of a deputy to do the work of the chief, then an assistant to do the work of the deputy, then a chief clerk to relieve the assistant, and finally a clerk to do all the work—and return generally to the method of other days, of conducting the affairs of the State on economical and practical lines

Corrupt Alliance in the State.

"The work must not stop there, however. The people have suffered in other ways than through loss of funds. This has been accomplished in part through the amendments to statutes to favor special interests; through refusal to enact laws in the public interest, and through non-enforcement of law by the State. The reason for it all is to be found in contributions to organizations, which in turn dominate those whose election it assures. Here, again, but on a much smaller scale than in the case of the Federal Government, we find an alliance between the political machine which for the most part dominates the State Government and those having interests in opposition to the general policy of the State.

"The Democratic Party, sometimes in power, oftener in the minority, has been the steady reliance of the country in every crisis involving the maintenance of what is good in the old and the adoption of what is safe and useful from the new. It was so in the formative days of the Republic, in the time of building, in resistance to extravagance, and in the protest against unjust or unnecessary taxation. When the interests of honest government have been at stake it has rallied the reserves. Its columns in this State have marched behind Van Buren, Marcy, Wright, Seymour, Tilden, Cleveland, and Hill. Its forces have lined themselves up in days of peril in favor of good causes and against designing men. Its history is filled with the deeds of both leaders and followers ready for any sturdy service.

Democracy Well Equipped.

"Nor does it show itself wanting now, in country or State. In Maine, in Massachusetts, in Connecticut, in New Jersey, in Ohio, in every quarter where the danger point has been reached in extravagance, in aggression, in corruption, in surrender of the rights and powers of government to ambitious individuals or to abhorrent forces, it is showing its old wisdom, its time-honored courage, and is bringing to the struggle, now becoming vital, the best elements in our life and society. It is making effective protest against all recognized enemies of our institutions. It is making its appeal as of old to all our people. It is recognizing, not merely that it has an opportunity to achieve success, but that it must deserve it.

"In such a time there can be no question about where the New York Democracy will be found. It will take its place where it belongs, in the front ranks. Nor will it merely look for the one best man to head its ticket and thus assert its leadership and his, but as usual in a crisis it will choose the same type of men all along the line. The whole scheme or system of misgovernment, involving extravagance, surrender of the power of the many into the hands of the few, and personal autocratic power is better illustrated here than in any other part of the Union, and against these the Democracy will make effective protests both as to men and doctrines. It will utter no uncertain word, will put forward no equivocal candidate, but will play anew the part it has essayed throughout its history. It will show itself the party made immortal and useful by great leaders in the past, and will point the way to greater achievements in the future."

TAMMANY MEN ON PARADE.

Rochester People Turn Out in Crowds —Much Red Fire Burned.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, Sept. 29.—The Tammany Hall delegation held its usual parade through the streets of the city to-night. The braves formed in front of the Hotel Rochester, where the majority of the Tammany men are staying, just after 8 o'clock, and, accompanied by three bands, marched through the principal streets of the city.

The line was led by Charles F. Murphy, J. Sergeant Cram, Thomas F. Smith, and John T. Oakley. In front of their various delegations marched most of the Tammany leaders, including Thomas F. McAvoy, John C. Fitzgerald, John F. Ahearn, Thomas F. Foley, Charles W. Culkin, Julius Harburger, James J. Hagan, Edward F. Boyle, Eugene J. McGuire, George F. Scannell, Joseph F. Prendergast, James J. Frawley, George L. Donnellan, Nicholas J. Hayes, Percy Nagle, William J. Wright, and Arthur H. Murphy.

The people of Rochester turned out to see the show as they have not done before at any State Convention held here in years. The sidewalks of the main streets through which the parade marched were lined with men and women, the latter being very much in evidence. They shouted and cheered, red fire was burned, and throughout the length of the line of march there was the old-fashioned Tammany spirit.

The parade ended a little after 9 in front of the Hotel Seneca, where the Tammany leaders are making their headquarters. The Whitcomb House, at which the headquarters of the State Committee and a number of the candidates are located, is just across the street. The bands played for several minutes and the street was choked with people for a long time.

It seems that the representation here in delegates and camp followers is by far the largest that any Democratic convention has seen in years. Contrary to the usual practice, nearly every county delegation has its own badge, and any man is lucky who has not at least three or four emblems on his coat lapels.

As soon as the parade disbanded the leaders adjourned to their headquarters, Mr. Murphy to continue his conference with the Gubernatorial candidate boomers, and Mr. Cohalan to take charge of affairs in the meeting of the Committee on Contested Seats.

Stimson, Also Sleepy, Comes from Saratoga—No Crowd at Station for Either.

OLD GUARD NOW IN LINE

Griscom Says He Is Assured of Harmony—Leaders to Begin Campaign Work at Once.

Col. Roosevelt and Henry L. Stimson, the Republican candidate for the Governorship, came back from Saratoga yesterday, worn and sleepy, but each quite satisfied with the way things went at the State Convention. No crowd was at the Grand Central Station to greet the Colonel as the new State Republican leader or Mr. Stimson as the standard bearer.

The two men did not come back on the same train. In fact, each had a different engagement on the way home, for Mr. Stimson dropped off at Albany to confer with Gov. Hughes and Col. Roosevelt stopped at Poughkeepsie to address one of the largest crowds that ever attended the Dutchess County Fair.

Neither Col. Roosevelt nor Mr. Stimson was loquacious.

"Bully time, yes, bully time!" exclaimed Col. Roosevelt, as he alighted from his train late in the afternoon and was greeted by several reporters, and that was all. Earlier in the day, however, he had commented upon the opposition of Representative J. Sloat Fassett of Elmira, who had stood out against him on the direct primaries plank.

"I know that Congressman Fassett's opposition was not only entirely sincere, but was due to an honest desire to represent the people of his district," said the Colonel. "I have been intimately associated with the Congressman for twenty-five years. He is a straight, clean, and decent man, an exceptionally faithful public servant, and if the opportunity ever comes I shall be glad to speak for him."

A Speech at Poughkeepsie.

The Colonel left Saratoga at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, after a hasty breakfast at the United States Hotel, with his nephew, Theodore Douglas Robinson. A special car had been engaged for him and his party, and was shared by several returning delegates and newspaper men. The only signs of Col. Roosevelt's finish fight with the Old Guard in and out of Convention Hall were a husky voice and trousers which bagged somewhat at the knees.

Hamilton Fish, Jr., of Poughkeepsie sat with the Colonel in his private car. He had gone to the convention village to request Mr. Roosevelt to stop at Poughkeepsie and make an address at the fair grounds. At the Poughkeepsie station a delegation was on hand to greet him, and Col. Roosevelt and his party were taken to the grounds in automobiles after luncheon with one of the fair officials. When the Colonel appeared on the grounds he was lustily cheered.

"We have had a middling busy time the last few days," he said to the crowd, "and a particularly satisfactory time. Every thoughtful man ought to do all in his power to help the men in the open country. I want to see the farm life so arranged that not only shall there be a better outlook for the farmer but especially for the farmer's wife.

"I do not believe that there is any tendency more evil than the tendency which is very strong in our time, for men and women to think too much of ease. I don't know a man who leads a more unworthy life than the man who makes pleasure the serious object of his life."

Col. Roosevelt paid a high tribute to the mother who does her duty in meeting the problems of her life.

"The man who doesn't help her," he said, "is the meanest creature in God's created universe."

The Colonel told the crowd that everybody should work hard, and that that was the only way to get real happiness.

"You often hear of woman's rights," he said. "Every man should think of woman's rights all the time and the woman should think of her duties.

"We can afford to differ in our political opinions, but we cannot condone corruption," said Col. Roosevelt in conclusion.

Leaving Poughkeepsie at 1:37 o'clock in the afternoon, Col. Roosevelt expected to reach New York at 3:45, but his train was nearly an hour late. Immediately upon arriving he started for Oyster Bay in an automobile, saying that he would be in his office at The Outlook to-day.

Stimson Says He Is Sleepy.

Mr. Stimson did not reach town until nearly 6 o'clock. On the same train came Timothy L. Woodruff, former Republican State Chairman, and Lloyd C. Griscom, President of the New York County Republican Committee. Mr. Stimson came out alone. In the train shed a small group of men, all former associates in the office of Federal District Attorney, were on hand to shake hands with the candidate and to congratulate him. Among these were Felix Frankfurter, who was closely associated with Mr. Stimson in the prosecution of the Sugar Trust cases, and Mr. Buckner, another former assistant. There was no demonstration of any kind.

"Anything I may have to say will be set forth in my letter of acceptance after the official notification of my nomination reaches me," said Mr. Stimson to the newspaper men. "That notification will not come until next week. At present I am tired and sleepy, for I have had practically no sleep for the last three days.

"Yes, I had a very pleasant talk with Gov. Hughes," he said in answer to a question.

"What plans for the campaign have you?" was asked.

"No campaign plans will be arranged until after the meeting of the Republican State Committee," he said.

"How do you stand on the platform?" asked one reporter.

"That will be taken up in my letter of acceptance," he said over his shoulder while hastening for a taxicab.

Mr. Stimson said that he was going right home, but would probably leave town to-day, and spend several days in the country resting. He would not say just where he was going.

Old Guard to Help, Says Griscom.

Mr. Griscom was extremely cheerful upon arriving. He had slept during most of the journey from Saratoga, and was quite willing to talk.

"I have been assured on all sides that the Old Guard is going to line up and work for the election of the entire State ticket," said Mr. Griscom. "I received any number of such assurances before leaving Saratoga. That is gratifying, indeed. There were no conferences on the train coming home, but the committee will meet next Tuesday morning, and in the afternoon the candidates will be notified.

"There is no doubt in the world that all factions will get together now behind the ticket. The open character of the convention will be a great benefit to the party. All the delegates I have talked with have expressed themselves as pleased with the open character of the convention. All with whom I have talked say they are pleased also with the high character of the ticket. And as for the platform, it is of such a nature that all can get together on it, and work in harmony for the best interests of our party."

Majority Rules, Says Woodruff.

Mr. Woodruff was not in his usual communicative mood when questioned about the Republican prospects.

"It goes without saying that the organization will support the ticket loyally," he said. "The convention has decided upon the nominee, and the will of the majority rules."

Most every train arriving at Grand Central Station from Saratoga yesterday bore some of the delegates or other leading figures who participated in the doings in Convention Hall.

On the train which left Saratoga at 7 o'clock yesterday morning came Congressman William S. Bennet, whose friends believed, for a while, that he would be the standard-bearer. The Congressman was not in an over-cheerful mood when he left the train.

"How about the result?" he was asked.

"Well, I sent my congratulations to Mr. Stimson this morning," he replied. "And I shall turn to and work with everybody else for the election of him and every other man on the ticket in November. I am very proud of the fact that the majority of the delegates in the New York County delegation sood with me against Col. Roosevelt, Mr. Prendergast, Mr. Bannard, and Mr. Griscom," he said. "Every one of my votes represented the personal friendship of an individual."

"It's a splendid ticket," he said, "and one that should win. There is harmony in the air now, and I think we will all be pulling together for victory. The refusal of Mr. Gaynor to accept the nomination on the Democratic ticket greatly strengthens our position, if added strength were needed."

Public Service Commissioner Eustis, who was a delegate from the Bronx, said he though that, under the circumstances, the choice was about the best that could have been made.

The Republican candidates will be formally notified of their nominations at the Republican Club here on Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The Notification Committee, of which Mr. Griscom is Chairman, will meet there a little earlier in the day. The new Republican State Committee will meet and organize Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at Republican State Headquarters here. The Progressives have a majority in the State Committee and will elect the new Chairman. No choice has yet been made, however. One of the latest suggestions was Senator John B. Rose of Newburg, the new leader in Orange County, but Mr. Rose says that he is not a candidate for the Chairmanship.

Speaker Wadsworth said yesterday that the nomination of Mr. Stimson illustrates the wisdom of retaining the convention system.

"It would be well for the people to remember," he said, "that Mr. Stimson probably could not have been prevailed upon to enter upon a State-wide effort to secure the nomination for Governor under the direct nominations plan, and probably no such type of man could have been secured under that system." He said in Saratoga before leaving that he frankly told Col. Roosevelt as much. Mr. Wadsworth added that the Colonel was inclined to agree with him.

Pleased Over Condemnation Plank.

Robert S. Binkerd, Secretary of the City Club, said yesterday that the condemnation plank in the Republican State platform affords the members of the club great pleasure.

"This condemnation plank, which is third from the last, declares in favor of the amendment to the Constitution which was urged upon the Legislature by the City Club last Winter," said Mr. Binkerd. "It met the approval of the city administration. As the plank states, this amendment enables a Judge of the Supreme Court, with or without a jury, to directly hear a condemnation case, making it unnecessary to appoint commissioners and providing a much more expeditious way of determining awards. This amendment was worked out at the City Club on March 12, 1910, and was introduced by Assemblyman Bates in the Assembly, and fathered by Senators Brough and Wainwright in the Senate."

ROOSEVELT EARLY TO BED.

Wants a Little Rest Before Starting Strenuous Speechmaking.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Sept. 29.—Theodore Roosevelt returned this evening from Saratoga and went to bed early to-night to get a good night's sleep, for he expects to have little rest until after election time. He was tired and hoarse when he reached Sagamore Hill by automobile from New York, but was in fine spirits. He expressed himself as well pleased with the results of the convention, but had no other comment to make on anything relating to politics.

He had no visitors this evening, and said that he hoped to have a quiet time for the next few days, as there will be no let-up when once the campaign is fairly under way. He has placed his services at the disposal of the Republican State Committee, and hopes to make at least one speech in every county in the State. He will try to inject into the fight all the fire and vigor of his personality and make the campaign one of the liveliest which New York State has seen in many a year. Early in the Summer he made no secret of his opinion that the chances for a Republican victory in the State this Fall were not at all bright. At that time he said that he did not expect to get into the fight.

Now, in view of the victory of the Progressives at the convention the Colonel believes the party has an excellent chance of winning the election and he is to take off his coat and pitch in. With Lloyd C. Griscom, Chairman of the New York County Republican Committee; Cornelius V. Collins, State Superintendent of Prisons; Representatives Herbert Parsons, Congressman W. W. Cocks, of Nassau County, and others of his close advisers, he will outline at once a plan of campaign as the first step.

In addition to the campaign at home Colonel Roosevelt has a good deal to do elsewhere before election time. A week from to-day he is to start on his Southern trip, which will extend over a little more than a week. On this trip he will speak at Knoxville, Tenn., before the Appalachian Exposition; in Atlanta, at the Uncle Remus Day celebration, and in Hot Springs, Ark. Then, turning north, he will speak at Peoria, Ill., before the Knights of Columbus, and will make a campaign speech in Indiana for Senator Beveridge.

In the latter part of October the Colonel is to go to Massachusetts to help Senator Lodge with a campaign speech, and to New Hampshire to speak for Robert P. Bass, Republican candidate for Governor. This trip probably will be made on Oct. 21 and 22. Early in November he is to start for Iowa, to make two campaign speeches just before election. He also has promised to go to Ithaca, N. Y., for a day's tour of abandoned farms, with Representative John W. Dwight and Prof. L. H. Bailey, of Cornell University. He has not decided on the time for this expedition yet.

At his offices in New York to-morrow the Colonel will hold some conferences to lay the first plans for the campaign.

STIMSON'S FEES $59,000.

Amount Paid for Services to the Government Since April, 1909.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—A request having been made to Attorney General Wickersham for a statement of the fees paid to Henry L. Stimson, the Republican nominee for Governor of New York, for his services as special attorney, an official statement was made by the Department of Justice to-day showing the entire amount paid to him for services rendered since his retirement from the office of United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York on April 8, 1909. The statement follows:

For his services in preparing the brief on the appeal of Charles W. Morse to the Circuit Court of Appeals, and for the extended argument before that court, Mr. Stimson was paid $4,000, to cover not only his services but his clerical and stenographic expenses and the salary of his assistants.

For his services in the collection of the $3,500,000 from the various sugar importers at New York and in the Grand Jury investigation and the trial of the indictments against Spitzer and the sugar company's checkers, he was paid $35,000 over and above his disbursements and expenses.

For his services in the Grand Jury investigation leading to the indictment of Heike, Gerbracht, and others, and in the trial before the jury of the Heike immunity case, and in connection with the motions before the Supreme Court to dismiss the writ of error allowed to Heike, and in the final trial before the jury of the indictment against Heike, Gerbracht, and others, and for the Grand Jury investigation into the offences of Government officials resulting in the indictment of the head weighers and others, he was paid $20,000 over and above his expenses and disbursements

BARNES WILL BE REGULAR.

But Thinks Calm Reflection Will Bring the Party Back.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 29.—Under the caption "The Majority Rules," William Barnes, Jr., the leader of the vanquished Old Guard at Saratoga, prints as the leading editorial in his newspaper this evening the following:

"It was Theodore Roosevelt's convention. Theodore Roosevelt named himself Temporary Chairman. Theodore Roosevelt dictated the platform. Theodore Roosevelt named the candidates. These states of facts seem strange when they are set against those other well-known facts that Mr. Roosevelt had been declaring himself opposed to political bossism, and in this case in particular in favor of an open convention.

"However, Mr. Roosevelt could not have imposed his dictatorship upon the convention without the consent of the majority of its membership. That is self-evident. Since the majority sanctioned his will and made it that of the convention, and since that majority, like the minority, consisted of men elected by the rank and file of the party, through delegates to the minor conventions, to represent them, Mr. Roosevelt's will, his platform, and his candidates become those of the Republican Party of this State, since there can be no deviation from the cardinal principle of party organization that the majority rules.

"It is to be expected, therefore, that the Republicans of this State will unanimously take that view and give their united support to the ticket nominated at Saratoga, and exert energetic efforts for his election, confident that in the course of time, which gives opportunity for calm reflections, the fundamental principles of the Republican Party will reassert themselves."

SHERMAN IS COMPLACENT.

Doesn't Know What the Direct Nominations Plank Means.

UTICA, N. Y. Sept. 29.—Vice President James S. Sherman of this city, in speaking of the Republican State Convention, said:

"I am entirely content with the result at Saratoga. The platform is exceptionally clear and forceful, save only in reference to direct nominations. In that regard it needs explanation of its meaning and explanations will differ. I preferred the minority plank which was clear and unequivocal in declaration. All this, however, relates to procedure. It does not relate to basic principles of the party, neither is it a moral question.

"The ticket named is most excellent. Of course the convention was absolutely dominated by one man and its every action was taken at his bidding. That, too, however, I regard as procedure and not basic. I accept the result complacently and shall of course support the ticket nominated."

BREAD BY WEIGHT NOW.

Those Violating the Ordinance Will Be Fined $100 for Each Offense.

Clement J. Driscoll, Commissioner of Weights and Measures, issued a warning yesterday to bakers and all sellers of bread that he would proceed to enforce promptly to-morrow morning the city ordinance requiring bread to be sold by weight.

The penalty for disobeying the ordinance is a $100 fine for each offense.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Another long meeting of representatives of English and Continental banks was held here to-day, and the subject of the guarantees to be required from American bankers on cotton bills of lading was further considered.

Those present declined to make public anything regarding what took place.

WOMAN PUT OUT OF SCIENCE CHURCH

She Rose in Experience Meeting to Say That a Thought from There Had Mesmerized Her.

AN ERROR, SAYS THE READER

He, Mr. Strickler, Explains That Mesmerism Has Nothing to Do with Christian Science Healing.

Followers of Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson and members of the First Church of Christ Scientist were busy discussing yesterday a scene that occurred in the church at the Wednesday night experience meeting, resulting in a woman follower of Mrs. Stetson being ordered out of the building by Virgil O. Strickler, the First Reader.

Experiences of so-called healing were in progress when a small, well dressed woman, known to many in the congregation as a patient of Miss Sybil Huse, one of the practitioners who was read out of the church several months ago, got up to speak. First Reader Strickler told her that she had already spoken in open meeting at least four times in as many weeks and that she was exceeding the limit. He added that if she had anything of special importance to say he would give her a few minutes to say it.

The woman related the story of what she termed a mental ill, which had been troubling her for some time.

"And all at once the thought came to me like a flash that I was mesmerized," she exclaimed, so that all in the church could hear. "And I knew that the thought came from this church."

Instantly there was a hum of protest. The young woman got no further. Mr. Strickler held up his hand for silence and exclaimed:

"You will either sit down or leave the church."

The young woman pleaded for three minutes more to finish her remarks. The First Reader repeated that if she persisted he would request the ushers to lead her out.

"Oh, I will go if you insist," said the woman, "but I do not think—". She did not finish. At a sign from Mr. Strickler several ushers escorted her to the door.

"For the benefit of such strangers as may be here I wish to make an explanation," said Mr. Strickler. "There is no such thing as mesmerism in the Christian Science Church. The sick are healed through the knowledge contained in Mrs. Eddy's book 'Science and Health.' Their thoughts are changed and mesmerism has nothing to do with it."

Mr. Strickler said yesterday that he did not know the identity of the woman who disturbed the meeting, but that she was apparently suffering from "error."

MAY APPOINT NEW TEACHERS

Court Upholds the Education Board and Refuses an Injunction.

The test case of the question whether the Board of Education has the power to appoint men teachers in grammar school graduating classes in Brooklyn instead of women teachers holdnig Grade A certificates dating before the city consolidation was decided yesterday. Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum held that the board has such power and dismissed an application for a temporary injunction by Mary Fitzpatrick. He said:

To hold as long as there are female teachers on the list that the board is powerless to appoint a man, when the welfare of the school requires it, would be to nullify the discretion of the board to appoint a man.

Justice Greenbaum found that the Legislature had conferred the widest discretion on the Board of Education. The school concerned—No. 43 in Brooklyn—is for boys.

David Goldwasser, to whose appointment Miss Fitzpatrick objected, was for six years a teacher in Manhattan and held a graduating class license. No more Grade A certificates are now issued, and Miss Fitzpatrick contended that since no men held such licenses and she headed the woman's list, no men from Manhattan or other boroughs could be imported to teach graduating classes in Brooklyn until all the women who held Grade A certificates before the consolidation and who were still teaching had been promoted.

Intoxicated Autoist Fined $300.

Edward Baxter, a civil engineer of 70 Hollywood Avenue, East Orange, was fined $300 yesterday by Judge Hahn in Newark, N. J., for running his automobile along Broad Street on Tuesday in an intoxicated condition. Baxter paid the fine and promised hereafter to refrain from driving his automobile when incapable of safely doing so.

SCHOOLBOY HANDLERS FOR WELLMAN FLIER

High School Students Drilled in Launching Airship for Voyage to Europe.

A TEST TRIP TO-MORROW

Weather Bureau Reports Conditions Will Be Favorable—Faith in Journey's Success Grows in Atlantic City.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 29.—Walter Wellman and Melvin Vaniman, who are awaiting here for favorable winds on which to set sail for Europe in their airship America, were in communication today by telephone with Director Willis Moore at the Washington Weather Bureau. As a result of the information sent them they announced late this afternoon that Saturday morning seemed to promise propitious conditions for a first trial of the airship, from which wireless messages are to be sent to THE NEW YORK TIMES, The London Daily Telegraph, and the Chicago Record-Herald.

Both men said that while it violated all precedents, they did not intend to linger on this coast after they had found good weather, and that they would then leave the final test of their equipment for the actual transatlantic journey.

Mr. Vaniman said that one reason for this was that the America was constructed especially to solve the problem of flight across the sea, and was not an overland vessel. Tests above the land, he said, would prove little or nothing. The one feature on which he is counting for success is the new dirigible appliance of the equilebrator, which he considers will automatically regulate the height of the balloon in the sudden contraction of gas at nightfall, and the sudden expansion again in the morning. This long tail could not be dragged over land, and it is the only element in the problem of which Mr. Vaniman feels uncertain.

Beyond the seas, as he views his problem, lays permanent fame, the rehabilitation of the dirigible in public esteem, and the chance of snatching first place among air sailors from all competitors, including even Count Zeppelin, who has lost as often as he has tried to build something permanently practical for air journeying.

A hundred High School boys were put to work in the balloon hangar this afternoon practising launching the craft into the air. They marched forward and aft with the airship, which was weighted down until its net lifting force kept the big steel car just above the floor level. Saturday, upon the launching, they will hold to the vessel until a signal is given to release it, after its motors have been set going to give it immediate headway and steering power.

The High School boys were asked to volunteer for the service after 100 longshoremen had been tried out and had failed to develop team work. Mr. Wellman considered that the military training in the High School would result in obtaining boys that would do what their leader told them to, and his first test proved he was right. The boys who were organized in groups of ten, each under a leader who in turn was under some member of the America's crew, did their work in good form. Their Principal, J. B. Miller, said he was glad to have his boys participate in the launching, because, if the voyage was successful, they would always remember that they aided a historic project in the moment of its beginning.

The way in which belief in the trip's feasibility and faith in the power of the America to do the work expected of her have spread through the local population has been one of the surprises of the week. Many who came to scoff when the hangar was first opened are now enthusiastic about the project and are now anxious to see places aboard the America on her trial trip.

One veteran of the sea, who walked on crutches on account of rheumatism, took his station by the hangar door the day it was opened, selling postcards of the balloon and its designers. In two weeks he made $40, which he said was the first money he had put aside all Summer for his Winter's needs. Wednesday he was fairly beaming as he counted his roll and spoke of the great help it would be to him. But to-day, when a visitor laughed at the thought of an airship crossing the Atlantic to England, the old sailor pulled out his money and offered to bet it at any odds the visitor would name that the trip would end in success. His earnestness in speaking up for the project caused a crowd to collect, and to them the sea veteran told of crossing the Atlantic once in a waterlogged ship that was seventy days on the way, a problem he was willing to bet anybody eight was a great deal worse than anything an air skipper was likely to encounter.

In the comment of the crowd the view most commonly held is that the projectors of the voyage are brash in starting out without fully testing their equipment.

They point out that no airship has yet made over 500 miles in continuous flight and that no drifting balloon has ever made anything like the distance they must go to reach the first available landing place. Mr. Wellman said that criticisms similar to those he is receiving were showered upon him in the arctic, and to them he has now the same answer—that his ship in that case was built for arctic travel, as in this case it is built for ocean travel, and it will have to be tested in the zone where it is to do its actual work.

Mr. Wellman's first arctic trip was projected when the dirigible had not yet made 100 miles over any part of the earth's surface, yet he planned to drive one 1,400 miles to the pole and back. Most folks thought he was not serious, yet he says he learned a lot about his problem on his first trial, a lot more on his second, and still more on his third. All of his knowledge has been put into the craft in which an effort will be made to conquer the Atlantic winds. But for the word which Peary brought out from the north last year, Wellman and Vaniman would be back in Spitzenbergen now, they say, or perhaps would be returning from their fourth trial by dirigible.

The Wellman-Vaniman airship is equipped with every device known to science, and many of these devices were not to be had in the polar trips or in the recent trips of airships in Europe. The new propellers are from aeroplane development and have been tested in the French Government laboratory until they yield much greater efficiency than the older shapes.

BLERIOT MACHINES COMING.

Five Shipped from Paris for International Aviation Meet.

The Blériot monoplane will probably play an important part in the international aviation meeting at Belmont Park, Oct. 22 to 30. Five of these machines were shipped from Paris yesterday and consigned to Corsi, Zumsteg & Co., Custom House brokers. Whether these machines are for the regular contestants at the international meet or are to be used by other French pilots who may be coming unannounced, could not be learned. The Custom House brokers said the machines were shipped by Louis Blériot.

Claude Grahame-White, the English aviator, recently announced that he had ordered a new Blériot machine to be sent to this country, and James Radley, another Englishman, who will compete for the international aviation championship, is also expecting a Blériot.

The Antoinette and Farman Companies and the manufacturers of other standard types of European machines have made their plans for a good showing. It is expected, however, that European manufacturers will meet some surprises here in the new type of American machines, some of which will appear at Belmont Park for the first time.

RADLEY FINDS HIS MACHINE.

English Aviator Hopes He Will Be Able to Start in The Times-Post Race.

James Radley, the English aviator who came to America to start in THE NEW YORK TIMES-Chicago Evening Post race from Chicago to New York, and afterward to compete as a representative of the Royal Aero Club of Great Britain in the international aviation championship race at Belmont Park, learned yesterday the whereabouts of his fifty horse power Bleriot machine. The machine was shipped on the French steamer Caroline, which left Havre Saturday. The boat will probably reach New York about Tuesday.

Mr. Radley regrets his inability to accept the generous offer of Glenn H. Curtiss to provide him with a thirty horse power Curtiss machine for the Chicago-New York race, which starts from Chicago on Oct. 8. Mr. Radley feels that he could not do justice to himself in a low-powered machine, with which he is unfamiliar. In declining Mr. Curtiss's offer the English aviator expressed his appreciation of the sportsmanship and generosity of Mr. Curtiss in making it.

Mr. Radley said that if the clause in the conditions for the Chicago-New York race, which requires all entrants to be on the starting grounds on Monday, Oct. 3, or five days before the start, could be modified by the promoters, with the consent of the other entrants, he would take his machine to Chicago and start. He feels certain that he can get the machine to Hawthorne Park by Thursday, Oct. 6, which would give him two days to assemble and test it.

FRENCH WANT AIR CUP BACK.

Leblanc, Latham, and Morane Will Try Hard at Belmont Park.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—The French aviation cracks are tuning up for the American meet, and the thoroughness of their preparations betrays a determination to bring back to France the international trophy which Glenn H. Curtiss won at Rheims a year ago. At that time the American covered 12.42 miles in 15 minutes 50 3-5 seconds, establishing a world's record.

In the last thirteen months there has been marked progress in the construction and operation of aeroplanes, and the Frenchmen expect next month to show their brethren across the sea a thing or two.

The team selected to compete for the aerial blue ribbon is made up of Alfred Leblanc, Hubert Latham, and Léon Morane. Each is putting the finishing touches to a specially built monoplane which he will use at Belmont Park.

To-day Leblanc tried out his new machine. It is a Blériot model, equipped with two coupled 50 horse-power, revolving Gnome motors. The figures were concealed, but it is understood that the racer developed extraordinary speed.

Hubert Latham has been practicing with his new 100 horse-power flier, and it is said to have attained a speed of something like seventy miles an hour without working his motor to its capacity.

Leblanc is well known in America, where he piloted the Isle de France in the international balloon race from St. Louis in 1907. Last month he won the prize of $20,000 for a circular flight in France of a little less than 500 miles, which was made, in accordance with the requirements of the contest, in six stages, on set dates, "rain or shine." His time was 11 hours 50 minutes.

The International Cup must be won three times in succession to become the property of any club. The coming competition will be the second of the series, with the advantage of the first victory resting with the Aero Club of America.

AEROPLANES' 21ST VICTIM.

Flochmann Dies from His Injuries—Fell 150 Feet on Wednesday.

MUELHAUSEN, Sept. 29.—Flochmann, the aviator, who was injured when his biplane collapsed at a height of 150 feet yesterday, died to-day without having recovered consciousness.

Flochmann is the twenty-first aeronaut to lose his life in an accident to a heavier-than-air machine.

The nineteenth fatal accident was that to the Peruvian Chavez, who, after flying successfully on Sept. 23 across the Alps from Brig, Switzerland, to Domodossola, Italy, fell as the result of the collapse of one of the wings of his monoplane. He died on Sept. 27 at Domodossola.

The twentieth fatal accident was on Sept. 25, at Chartres, where Edmond Poillet, after making five successful flights with pupils, was landing on his sixth flight from a height of 150 feet, when his biplane was struck by a sudden wind eddy and fell like a stone. Poillet's backbone was broken and he died in twenty minutes.

The number of fatal accidents with biplanes has been slightly greater than to monoplanes.

Italian Dirigible's Narrow Escape.

AREZZO, Italy, Sept. 29.—A military dirigible balloon en route from Rome for Venice descended suddenly here to-day. The officers explained that they had had a narrow escape from death, as a sparking motor threatened to set fire to the gas bag.

Reaches Height of 7,956 Feet.

BOURG, France, Sept. 29.—Wynmalen in a biplane to-day rose to a height of 7,956 feet. Chavez's record was 8,400 feet.

WHITNEY OFF HUNTING.

Sails for Newfoundland To-day After Caribou and Other Big Game.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 29.—Harry Whitney, the sportsman and traveler, left here to-day for another hunting trip in search of big game. He went to Boston to join Capt. Bartlett, who had charge of the Boethic, on which Whitney and Paul Rainey of Cleveland went to Etah recently.

Capt. Bartlett and Whitney will board the vessel at Boston to-morrow and sail for Newfoundland. There they will leave the vessel and will spend two weeks hunting caribou and other big game.

no sign of further trouble. He went about 2,000 feet up, until ready to make the daring swoops and curves with which he landed safely in the Fair Grounds. He found some difficulty in alighting because of the inadequate police provision.

Forty thousand people were on the grounds, and in their enthusiasm they broke police lines and scattered over half of the parkway prepared for the aviator's landing place. As he alighted finally after five minutes of circling the thousands yelled, and with a rush that swept a cordon of police off their feet men, women, and children crushed about the machine.

The aviator slipped from his seat and half staggered on his benumbed legs. His hands were shaking and his first words told of the fearful nervous strain he had been under.

"The strain was fierce," he said. "I had a head wind all the way and the machine always sinking. It's the worst trip I ever tackled. But let me out of this wild crowd. They wouldn't hardly give me room to light in and now I can't get out for the mob of people."

The crowd then gave him some room and kept away from the machine. When those who had been on the train reached the field, nearly half an hour after the aviator landed, he said:

"Where have you been all the time? I got here and have been waiting to lunch with you, as I promised. You kept me waiting half an hour."

His Race with a Train.

It was an Illinois Central passenger train, with a special car for the reporters and others that followed the flight. It came up with Brookins at Gilman, and thence all the way to Springfield the train and the air craft were in sight of each other. The locomotive was able to make the better time, but the regular station stops gave Brookins opportunity to dash ahead.

Occasionally the airship drew away until the watchers could see only a speck in the sky far to the southward. At Mount Pulaski Brookins left the railroad route and struck out across country for the Fair Grounds. He alighted ten minutes before the train drew up at the Springfield station.

By far the most interested man aboard the train was Wilbur Wright, and he was by all odds the calmest until the final lap of the flight. A dry smile and a short "Pretty good" were his quota of praise, while throngs of citizens were shouting themselves hoarse. He watched his pupil rise at Mount Pulaski and saw the wheel fly across the meadow. He got the wheel and declared its loss made no difference, but after that he showed marked nervousness. His strong fingers were clasped and unclasped and his eyes were glued against the car window the greater part of the time.

"I wonder if he'll stop again," he remarked when twelve miles out of Springfield. "I wonder if he'll stop or try to make it through. He's a good driver; Brookins is a fine driver; only been in the business since April What's that, a head? You bet, he has a head on him, and that's what counts in this business. See, he's flying high—higher than any time during the trip. I guess he's going to try to make it through without another stop."

As the train neared Springfield the biplane could be seen a white shadow far up in the sky.

"He's all right now," said Wright. "Even if his engine should fail him now he could glide down into the fair grounds. He must be up 2,000 or 2,500 feet. I wonder why he doesn't drop down a bit. He's flying mighty high. There, he's dropping a little, but not much. Now he's going down faster. He'll make it all right unless the loss of the starting wheel bothers him. Now he's dropping fast. He's just as good as finished the trip."

The young aviator had a continuous ovation from the watching crowds along the way. At every hamlet crowds were gathered from miles about to watch the biplane pass.

Wright Thinks Big Race Feasible.

Wilbur Wright, before departing from Dayton, Ohio, his home, expressed his belief that THE NEW YORK TIMES-Chicago Evening Post race between Chicago and New York was feasible, though he said none of the Wright machines would be in the race as they were engaged at St. Louis.

"There isn't much to say," he replied, when asked about Brookins's feat. "Brookins made the distance as we believed he would from the start. The way to do these things is to act and not talk about them. Our biplane did the work. I don't know much about the records of these things except that I'm certain that this is the longest flight made between sunup and sundown. Curtiss made two stops on his Albany-New York trip and Brookins made two to-day.

"Brookins could have beaten his time ten miles an hour if he hadn't had wind blowing at that rate to contend with. As it was, he kept increasing his speed from the time he started to the finish of the run. The engine throughout the trip was doing almost its maximum work.

"It was a broken pump, heating up his engine that made it necessary for him to alight at Mount Pulaski. Otherwise he would have gone the whole distance to Springfield from Gilman. The machine will go for any distance; the only difference between this and a practice flight is that the operator has to work longer. I think this has shown conclusively that the aeroplane is a successful navigator of the air."

The time table of the flights from Chicago to Springfield follows:

HIGH FLIGHT BY SHRIVER.

Goes Up 2,000 Feet—Grahame-White Carries Women Passengers.

Special to The New York Times.

AVIATION FIELD, HEMPSTEAD PLAINS, L. I., Sept. 29.—Grahame-White added to the interest in the events here to-day. He arrived by motor from the city with his manager, Sidney O'Donald, and the Misses Pauline Chase, Irene Fenwick, and Mable Briggs.

Clifford B. Harmon's Farman biplane was taken out and after the mechanics had made some alterations that gave the aviator more freedom Grahame-White made his usual short run and quick ascent, sailing at a height of two hundred feet and making three laps of the course in 3½ minutes.

He then descended for a few more alterations and ascended for a few laps of the course, circling in abrupt curves, but always maintaining the same graceful sweeps and landing lightly at the starting point.

Then came the ascents with the women passengers. Grahame-White started first with Miss Irene Fenwick as a passenger, making two laps of the course and flying as high as when he was alone. Then came the turn of Miss Mable Briggs of Boston, who went through the same experience. He then took up Mrs. Frank Janney of Philadelphia.

In Grahame White's last flight, Tod Shriver left the aeronautical sheds in his Dietz machine on the northern boundary of the field and rose quickly, and climbed higher and higher until he obtained a height of 2,000 feet, maintaining this high altitude in his flight of twenty-seven minutes and sixteen seconds. He passed over Meadow Brook, Westbury, East Williston, Mineola, Floral Park, Garden City, and Hempstead and back to the aviation field. He made one lap of the field and came down near his shed to receive the congratulations of many aviators.

MANY TRIBUTES TO CHAVEZ.

Funeral of Young Aviator at Domodossola—A Medal in His Honor.

DOMODOSSOLA, Sept. 29.—The funeral of George Chavez, the South American aviator who was mortally injured after having accomplished the unprecedented feat of flying from Switzerland over the Alps to Italy, was held to-day.

The occasion was remarkable owing to the tributes paid to the courage of the youth. Gen. Spingardi, Italian Minister of War, sent a special representative, and the populace of this town and the surrounding country followed the body to the church. Floral tributes came from all parts of Europe, and thousands of peasants tramped down the mountainsides with arms filled with mountain flowers.

One little girl laid upon the coffin a bunch of the edelweiss that blooms alone amid the eternal snows of the Alps, bound with a ribbon upon which had been written. "Gathered among the mountain peaks over which you flew."

Mgr. Scapardini, Bishop of Lima, officiated at the service. The Bishop is stopping at Novara, and came to Domodossola especially for the purpose.

An autopsy showed that the aviator's heart was displaced by the shock of the fall when a wing of his aeroplane collapsed as he was attempting to alight.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—A large engraved gold medal commemorating the flight over the Alps of George Chavez will be presented to the aviator's brother by the Aero Club of France.

ERIE WOULD SEE FLIERS.

Appoints Committee to Induce Times-Chicago Post Racers to Stop There.

Special to The New York Times.

ERIE, Pa., Sept. 29.—The South Erie Improvement Association of 200 business men volunteered this evening to tender an invitation through the Erie Morning Dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES-Chicago Evening Post aviators to make their route on the Chicago to New York race through South Erie. They have appointed a committee consisting of E. B. Willis, G. W. Nick and Carl Oleson, and Mr. Willis has offered the use of the thirty acre tract of land which has been used for circus grounds and a baseball park as a landing place.

This ground is on the South Erie Heights, less than a mile south of the New York Central main line. It is approached East and West through open country and on the east side has a drop of about fifty feet high. The grounds are inside the city limits and not enclosed, giving a stretch of several hundred yards on top of Federal Hill, two miles from Erie harbor.

THE CADETS' SIDE OF WEST POINT 'SILENCE'

Capt. Longan, One of Them Writes, Had Abused Them When They Were Not in the Wrong.

TOLD IN A CADET'S LETTER

Grievances Began with an Announcement by the Captain on Arrival and Steadily Increased.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 29.—A statement of the cadets' side of the trouble at West Point Military Academy, in consequence of which the entire corps is under restrictions, is given in a confidential letter from one of the cadets to a friend in this city. The friend said to-night that this was the explanation:

"The cadets allege that Capt. Langan started out at West Point by saying: 'This here corps has gone to hell. I'll make 'em buck up.'

"The trouble was cumulative. First, on the target range, when the cadets, by order, as a protection from the concussion of the guns, put cotton in their ears, Capt. Longan accused them of stuffing their ears with cotton so that they would not hear his commands. The young men were surprised, but said nothing.

"Second, the cadets say that he 'cussed out' one of the finest men in the first class.

"Third—When Cadet Burt, first classman, returned from his brother's funeral, he himself having appendicitis, he went twice to Capt. Longan's office to report. Each time Capt. Longan was absent at the Officers' Club. Accordingly Cadet Captain Bradley of the corps, officer of the day and next in command, inspected Burt's baggage, took his money and contraband, and sent him to the hospital. Next day Burt was operated upon and was also reported three times by Longan. Bradley told Capt. Longan the circumstances, but the Captain started in on a tirade against Burt.

"Fourth. One of the cadets visited across the hall in the barracks, Capt. Longan thought, erroneously, that it was a first class man, whereupon he reported the wrong man. The first class man explained, in writing, that the report was a mistake. Capt. Longan, calling him up, said: 'I don't believe what you say in your explanation. You've got to prove your statements.' One inviolable rule of West Point is that when a cadet gives his word of honor it is always taken without question. No greater affront can be put upon a cadet than to question his veracity.

"The final grievance was when Capt. Longan made 'area birds' walk in the rain. Under this form of punishment cadets have to walk with their guns for two hours on Wednesday afternoon, and four hours on Saturday afternoon. It is the immemorial custom that they can walk on the stoop of the barracks when it rains.

"But Capt. Langan lined them out in the downpour, he being under cover, dry and smoking a pipe, and said: 'You men have got to walk in the rain, for I'll show you who is boss around here.' Moreover, he refused to let the men oil their guns, and made the Corporals take the rags out of the fires, so that the cadets had to clean off rust for days afterward.

"The first 'silence' was spontaneous and without themente of premeditated conspiracy. The men simply refused to eat or to speak a word while Longan was in the room. It was wrong, insubordinate, but human. It was a tacit rebellion against what the cadets felt to be tyranny. The men do not regret their action. Their attitude is that their code has been broken, and the word questioned.

"If every cadet is called before the court of inquiry and asked if the above statements are true, he will answer affirmatively. Though not a man has yet consented to say more to the court than 'We have formed a dislike for this officer.'

"The men resent Capt. Longan's explanation that he was a new man, and that the cadets wanted to 'break him in,' and they feel that he has not made a correct statement, but they have great confidence in the justice and common sense of Gen. Barry, the Superintendent, who, they believe, will put a different light upon the situation within a week."

DOLEFUL DAYS AT ACADEMY.

Saturday's Football Game Off—Practice Off—Just Meals and Drills.

The football season of 1910 will not open at West Point to-morrow, and the army team and its 400 loyal supporters are in consequence about the saddest body of young men anywhere. Not a minute of practice have the West Pointers had this week, and the indications are that it may be another week before they are permitted to resume football togs. This is all because of the famous "silence" that was administered to Capt. Rufus E. Longan in Grant Memorial Hall last Saturday night.

The game scheduled for to-morrow was to have been played with the University of Vermont and was expected to give the West Point coaches their first line on the eleven that is to meet that of the Naval Academy on Franklin Field, Philadelphia, on Nov. 26. Capts. Nelly and Beacham, the West Point coaches, had mapped out a fine programme for the West Pointers this week, but that's all over.

A big crowd was expected at West Point to-morrow, too, including several hundred girls from the Washington Irving High School in this city. The Hudson River boats that call at West Point were expected to go out with full passenger lists, and the railroads were expected to take as many more. Instead of all this the cadets will still be confined to their quarters to-morrow afternoon, just as they have been every day since the Longan "silence."

It is not the canceling of the Vermont game that is worrying the Army team so much as the fact that a whole week of practice has been lost and the Yale game only two weeks away. A week from to-morrow a game is scheduled with Tuft's College, and on the Saturday following will come the Yale blue-stockinged warriors. The West Pointers in the last few years have made a splendid showing against Yale.

But Major Gen. Barry, Superintendent of West Point, has given no indication of suspending the order of confinement to quarters until the Board of Inquiry investigating the Longan "silence" has reported. And the board is no ready yet.

The examination of the first class has been finished and the members of the second and third classes are now on the board's grill. As the first classmen are responsible for the deportment of the lower classmen in the mess hall, their examination required more time than will be the case with the underclassmen. The indications are that the board will finish by the middle of next week. Then Gen. Barry will decide the discipline he will inflict upon those primarily responsible for the "silence." All dance, visiting, hotel, and athletic privileges may go by the board for them. This was the course adopted by Capt. Bowyer, Superintendent of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, last year in the Berthalf "silence."

The evening dress parade, discontinued when football practice began, was restored yesterday at West Point. This is in addition to the usual drills of the cadets. It will keep them busy from their release from academic duties until the hour for supper formation. A number of the West Point polo ponies have been entered for the horse show at Garrisons on Saturday. This engagement will be kept, the cadets of the polo team having got permission to ride the ponies at the show.

There will be no "hop" at West Point to-morrow night.

POSTAL CLERKS ASK TIME OFF

Have to Work on Sunday Without Pay—To Ask Congress for Relief.

An agitation is being carried on by National associations of postal clerks and letter carriers, supported by several religious bodies, against the Sunday work in the Post Offices by clerks and carriers. Postal employes say that more than 1,200 of their number are obliged to work four hours on Sundays, without extra pay, but if any is absent, no matter for what reason, he loses pay for each day of absence, including Sundays. They realize that Sunday work is necessary, but want additional pay or compensatory rest. A bill providing for this, called the Compensatory Rest Time bill, has been prepared by Congressman William S. Bennet, which is to be introduced at the next session of Congress.

Postmaster Edward M. Morgan, in a recent speech at Richmond, Va., before the National Association of Postmasters of the First Class, favored legislation to provide one full day of twenty-four hours' rest each week for clerks and carriers. He declared that Sunday work is indispensable to relieve trains and steamers of incoming mail and prepare outgoing mails, and to avoid congestion. He urged legislation, however, to give clerks compensatory time off.

CALL PISTOL BATTLE A GAMBLERS' ROW

Affray in Autos Said to Have Followed a "Wire-Tapping" Game That Failed.

ONE CHAUFFEUR IS FOUND

Picked Up One of the Combatants in Times Square, He Says, but Does Not Know Who He Was.

Beyond establishing the ownership of one of the two automobiles which figured in the pistol battle in West Seventy-second Street on Wednesday evening, and learning the identity of the man who drove it, the police found nothing yesterday to clear the mystery of why two parties of men exchanged twenty or more shots in that crowded thoroughfare and then escaped from a policeman who chased one of them ten blocks in a commandeered machine.

The automobile occupied by the attacking party was identified through Martin Moss of 429 East 166th Street, who caught the license number. The owner, Harry Bolter, of 359 West Fifty-second Street, owner of a livery stable at 231 West Forty-sixth Street, communicated with the police, and as a result Joseph Clavin, one of his drivers, went to Police Headquarters and told the detectives what he knew.

In Bolter's story he figures simply as the chauffeur of a machine hired by a man whom he did not know. He said he could give no clue as to the identity of the man. Clavin was not detained, but promised to appear when asked.

The popular explanation of the affair is that it resulted from differences between gamblers. Bolter could not be found yesterday, although several visits were made to the stable and to his home. Employes would give no information as to his whereabouts. At Clavin's home a relative said that they had "given him up" to the police and would give no information. Bolter is well known as a bail bondsman, and his clients have included gamblers who wanted their freedom pending trial.

Clavin told Lieut. Dunn he was waiting for business in Times Square at about 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon when he was approached by a tall, stout red-cheeked man wearing a blue serge suit who engaged his car and told him to drive to Twenty-third Street and Sixth Avenue. There three other men entered the machine. They seemed to be looking for some one, Clavin said, for by their orders he drove to Forty-ninth Street and Tenth Avenue, where they stopped and looked into the cross streets.

Next they went to Seventy-third Street, where the three latest arrivals got out and scattered in different directions. After an hour's wait one returned, whispered to the man in the blue suit, and then got into the car. Clavin was ordered to go to Eighth Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street, and then to make top speed to Seventy-second Street.

When half way between Columbus and Amsterdam Avenues, Clavin said, they saw another machine coming through the street. Clavin was ordered to pull up beside a pile of brick. The tall man got out and, standing in the narrow space of roadway left open, waited for the approaching car. When it came he held up his hand to stop it. An altercation followed, but Clavin said all he heard was a remark from his fare, "If that's the way you want to do it, all right." Then the shooting began.

Clavin said he took refuge in a hallway and did not come out until the man in blue appeared with a magazine pistol, pointed at him and ordered him to drive the car up Columbus Avenue and not stop for anything. They went to 101st Street, where Clavin said, the tall man got out, and said to him: "You'll gets yours later," and disappeared up Columbus Avenue.

The chauffeur did not know whether this was a threat or a promise to pay for the hire of the machine. He said he was too well satisfied at getting rid of his troublesome fare to make any attempt at getting his money. Some of the witnesses to the affair, including Bicycle Policeman James Magee, who endeavored to follow the flying car, said that besides the man in the tonneau, the man driving the car fired shots, but this was contradicted by Clavin, who made no mention of firing a pistol.

It was said among the cafés in the section from which the ride started that the affair was the outcome of an attempted "wire-tapping" scheme in which the victim got away with the money they had offered as a bait. The shooting is supposed to have been an endeavor at retaliation.

Shop by Telephone Day or Night

AN INNOVATION in shopping has been inaugurated by a big New York department store. From your home you can telephone your order to this store at any hour of the night and the goods will be delivered next morning.

Think of the convenience of such a service.

The store may be closed to the public, but the telephone provides an entrance; in fact it provides a way to shop which is just as satisfactory as if you went in person.

There has been such an impetus to telephone shopping of late that live merchants are making a specialty of telephone orders.

The Telephone applies to every line of trade. It develops business. It makes customers of people who seldom go to the store in person.

"Our best trade is telephone trade," say many merchants.

By the way, have you a Bell Telephone?

VOTED FOR LORIMER, THEN GOT $1,000

Browne Told Him It Was "Lorimer Money," Beckemeyer Tells Senate Investigators.

NO PAYMENT PROMISED

Attorney for Defense Elicits This Statement—Beckemeyer Says Browne Said Lorimer Vote Wouldn't Hurt Him.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—State Legislator H. J. C. Beckemeyer, (Dem.,) on the witness stand to-day before the Lorimer investigating committee of the United States Senate, testified that he received $1,000 after he had voted for William Lorimer for United States Senator and that the money was paid to him because of his vote. Beckemeyer was the third legislator in this hearing to declare that he received money for his vote in the Senatorial election. State Representative White and State Senator Holstlaw being the others.

Beckemeyer, who was a witness in the two trials of Minority Leader Lee O'Neil Browne, who was acquitted of bribing Representative White, testified that he voted for Lorimer on May 26, 1909, and that on the evening of May 24 he had been called to Browne's room.

"Browne said to me," declared the witness, "'What is all this talk about you not voting for Lorimer?'"

"I replied that I thought for a Democrat to vote for Lorimer would kill him, the Democrat, politically at home. Browne then told me that many other Democrats were going to vote for Lorimer and that it would not hurt me. I talked to other Democrats and found that some of them were going to vote for Lorimer, and I decided to do so myself."

Witness then told of going to St. Louis at the request of Browne and receiving $1,000 for his vote, being told it was Lorimer money.

On cross-examination Mr. Hanecy for the defence elicited from the witness the declaration that he had telegraphed to a newspaper after the publication of the confession of Representative White that he, Beckemeyer, was not bribed for his Lorimer vote, nor had he knowledge of any 'jackpot,' and that he made similar statements to others at that time.

"Did any one promise directly or indirectly to pay you for your vote for Senator Lorimer?" asked Mr. Hanecy.

"No, Sir."

Beckemeyer further declared that his vote for Lorimer was not influenced by any promise of reward.

Many of the questions of counsel related to Beckemeyer's having been in the custody of an officer of the State Attorney's office for a long period, and Senator Heyburn expressed surprise.

"Can it be possible," said the Senator, "that there is a law which authorizes an officer to keep a man in custody without any charge or indictment against him?"

Mr. Hanecy for the people declared that there was no such law, and that he was prepared to argue that the witness had not been under duress. In response to a later question from Mr. Austrian for the prosecution, Beckemeyer said that he was in custody partly at his own request, as he told the State Attorney that he would like to have some one to protect him, and that he did not regard himself as under duress or restraint.

SUICIDE FEARED FOR BRAIN.

Evanston Clergyman Left Letter Saying Something Had Broken There.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—New light was thrown on the suicide of Rev. Arthur W. Little, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Evanston last night when it was learned that he had been compelled to take treatment in a sanitarium at Neshota, Wis., for three weeks last January.

A letter which was found on Dr. Little's writing desk read:

28 September, 1910.

Something has broken in my brain. I told the doctor and the Slaymakers and they would not believe me. But it is true. The wireless clothes line is broken. God have mercy. (Signed) A. W. LITTLE.

Oh, my poor wife! Be good to her.

"He was by far the finest Latin scholar in the diocese" said the Rev. W. T. Summer, dean of the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul, "and in my opinion one of the most refined, cultured clergymen we had. Personally he was charming, a real 'thoroughbred' in every day life.

"I have seen a great change in him in the last few years since the illness of his wife and I know he has been more and more despondent of late, though I never had any expectation of this shocking end."

JURY ACQUITS HALSEY.

Man Accused of Bribery In San Francisco in Schmitz Regime Gets Off.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 29.—After several hours' deliberation, the jury in the case of T. V. Halsey, formerly an officer of the Pacific States Telephone and Telegraph Company, charged with offering a bribe to a member of the Schmitz Board of Supervisors, returned a verdict early to-day of not guilty.

Halsey, it was charged, sought to influence the board to vote against the granting of a local franchise to the Home Telephone Company. The case was one of a large number of similar actions which arose out of the bribery graft investigation after the earthquake of 1906.

After his indictment Halsey disappeared. He was found in Manila several months later and brought back. Because of ill-health the case was repeatedly postponed.

GIFTS TO YALE $2,398,291.

Past Year Financially Has Been the Best in the University's History.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 29.—Total gifts to both income and principal of the University finances amounting to $2,398,291 are shown in the first annual report of the new Treasurer of Yale University, George Parmley Day, made public to-day, as compared with $1,250,932 for the previous year. Additions to the University fund show a net increase of $1,906,448 as against $1,204,050 for the previous year.

The chief additions to the fund have been from Yale alumni $94,750; the Hewitt bequest of $350,000; the Laffan Professorship Fund of $100,000; the Sage gift of $650,000; the Salisbury trust fund $331,677; and additions to the University endowment and extension fund of $344,418. The principal additions to income were $49,000 from the alumni fund and $34,351 from the Carnegie foundation. Financially, it has been the best year for Yale in her history. The total increases in the departmental funds have amounted to $335,062 as compared with $508,600 the previous year.

The revenues of the whole university and departments were $1,197,569 and the total expenditures $1,177,165, showing a credit balance for the year of $26,404.

A table for all departments of the average cost of instruction per student shows a cost of $293.27, while the average receipts per student were but $134.21.

The investment account shows holdings of real estate in New Haven of $440,113; in New York of $125,249, and in Chicago of $86,862.

The University to-day began its two hundred and tenth year. In the undergraduate departments the registration is expected to show an increase in numbers, but it is thought that the higher requirements in the law and medical departments may operate against increases in those two branches.

The plan of introducing a modified "pass and honors" system at the university modelled after that in use at Oxford and Cambridge Universities has been deferred for a year at least.

The matriculation address will be given this year on Sunday by Secretary Anson Phelps Stokes, Jr., as President Hadley is abroad.

ACCUSES SHOE CONCERN.

Sued by It, Inventor Charges Violation of Sherman Law.

BOSTON, Sept. 29.—Sued by the United Shoe Machinery Company for a breach of contract, Euclid I. La Chapelle of Beverly, an inventor of shoe machinery in the company's employ, has virtually turned complainant by setting up the claim that the company is violating the Sherman anti-trust law.

La Chapelle claims that under contract he entered the company's employ in January, 1906, for a term of ten years at a salary of $20 a week, the contract requiring that he turn over to the company all his inventions and patents during that term. After serving two years, La Chapelle secured a patent for a lasting machine, which he refused to assign to the United Shoe Machinery Company unless he were paid $50,000. Thereupon the company brought suit to have the contract enforced.

In his answer to the complaint, filed to-day, La Chapelle says he signed the contract under an agreement that he should be paid a fair market value for his inventions; that this promise was not to be incorporated in the contract, but that he trusted the company to treat him fairly. He declares that for more than ten years the company has obtained the services of nearly every inventor of shoe machinery under similar contracts, and that this has created a monopoly in restraint of trade in violation of the anti-trust law.

In his motion before the Superior Court to-day La Chapelle asked that President Winslow of the United Company be required to answer a number of questions relating to the company's business and its relations with shoe manufacturers.

Judge Pierce denied the mation. It is understood that Lachapelle will carry the point to the Supreme Court of Massachusetts.

STEAMBOATS GO AT AUCTION.

Norfolk Banker Pays $76,000 for the Frank Jones and Saratoga.

Receiver Joseph H. Choate, Jr., appointed by United States Circuit Court Judge Hough, sold yesterday through Auctioneer Joseph P. Day the two Hudson River steamers Frank Jones and Saratoga for $76,000 to Richard B. Fentress, a banker of Norfolk, Va. Mr. Choate is receiver of the New York and Albany Transportation Company, and the steamers were the principal assets of the company.

Mr. Fentress insisted that he bought the steamers on his own account, and denied the report that he was acting as the representative of the bondholders of the bankrupt line. Mr. Fentress admitted, however, that he owned "a few" of the gold bonds of the line. He paid over to Receiver Choate 10 per cent. of the bid price to bind the sale. The successful bid was $6,000 more than the minimum price fixed by Judge Hough.

MORE LIGHT IN CHICAGO.

Illinois City Will Almost Double Street Illuminating Facilities.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Chicago has decided practically to double the number of its street lights and is to be the best lighted city in the world, according to trustees of the Sanitary District Drainage Board, who have closed a contract with the city for providing street lights for the entire city taking over the transmission lines owned and operated by the city. The city now operates 12,000 arc lights. This number will be increased to 22,600 as soon as the Council designates where the 10,000 new lights are to be placed.

"This means an increase in street lights of nearly 100 per cent.," said President McCormick of the Drainage Board, "and is equal to a doubling of the present police force, as each light is as good as a policeman in offering protection at night."

INHERITANCE HELD UP WIDOW WAS STARVING

Last Straw Came to Mrs. Fowler When Thoughtless Boys Stoned Her Home.

TOOK REFUGE IN THE WOODS

Aged Woman, Whose Husband Died Recently, Found Unconscious Near Jamaica, L. I.

Several small boys living at Manhasset, L. I., threw stones at the windows of a little house there, which they took to be vacant, because there was never a light inside, and they had for a long time failed to see the former owner, Mrs. Carrie Fowler, enter or leave it. But Mrs. Fowler had not left the house. In one of the inner rooms she brooded most of the day over the death of her husband, George F. Fowler, who died last February. He had left considerable property at Manhasset and $1,000 in bank for his widow, but owing to some irregularities of the will it was held up for probate, and she was unable to collect any of the money or to dispose of the real estate. Meanwhile her little available money melted away, and she began to suffer from hunger.

Grief over her husband's death and the trouble to which she was put by the will began to gnaw at her heart until she felt that the whole world had turned against her. When, upon emerging from her dark room to the parlor, she saw all the windows shattered and barely escaped several large stones that were thrown through the skeleton frame, she concluded that every one, even the young boys of the village, was against her and in league to torment and persecute her.

She decided last Monday to go to her brother, Ferdinand Roehfling of 12 Hamburg Avenue, Brooklyn, and ask him to let her take refuge with him and eat at his table until the legal difficulties connected with her husband's will were settled and she same into her own.

She found, though, that her brother was as poor as she was, and that he had, besides, a crippled child to support. When she saw that he could not offer her a place in his home she had not the heart to tell him the full bitterness of her own misfortune. She went silently away.

In her purse she had just 25 cents left. She spent 5 cents for carfare to take her home. At Jamaica, however, she alighted, fearful of returning to the supposed persecutions in the dark and lonely place. At a near-by bakery she bought a loaf of bread for 10 cents. She obtained an empty bottle at a grocery, and filled it with water. Then she wandered out to the woods, sick and discouraged, and wishing to die there.

That was on Monday evening. Early last night an Italian laborer, returning to Jamaica from a factory a mile away, found the woman unconscious in the woods near the Otillie Orphan Asylum. Beside her lay a half-eaten loaf of bread and the empty water bottle. The Italian thought she was dead, and ran out of the woods until he met Policeman Tillman, to whom he told what he had seen. Together they returned, the policeman stopping on the way to send a call for an ambulance to the Jamaica Hospital.

Later, after she had been revived, Mrs. Fowler told her story at the Jamaica Police Station. She exhibited her husband's bankbook, showing the deposit of $1,000, which she had been unable to get. The police sent for her brother, who, upon learning what had happened, said he would take her home and do the best he could to support her.

A detective who was later sent to the woman's home in Manhasset found every window there shattered. Upon questioning several young men and boys, the detective learned that they had thrown the stones through the windows without any intention to annoy, not dreaming that Mrs. Fowler still lived in the dismal place.

POLICEMEN HER SAMARITANS.

Warm Charity for Woman Who Asked Their Aid for Hungry Children.

With only 5 cents in her pocket, an eleven months' old baby in her arms, and her six other children trooping, pale and emaciated, behind her, Mrs. Mary Hyland of 34 Marion Street, Brooklyn, started from home yesterday morning to ask her brother-in-law, John Barrett of 94 Lexington Avenue, Manhattan, to help her with money or food. Her husband, Thomas, obtained work three weeks ago as a fireman in Kings Park, L. I., at $50 a month. But he will not receive his first pay until to-morrow, and meanwhile their rent of $13 was long overdue and there was no food in the house. All that Hyland earned before he became a fireman had been used up by a long illness that had laid hold of him.

Mrs. Hyland had no difficulty in persuading the conductor on an up-town trolley car to let her and her children ride for a single nickel. The oldest, Thomas, Jr., is 12 years old, but looks scarcely more than 7, and all the rest were so poorly clad and thin that their story was written only too plainly upon their drawn young faces.

But when they reached the home of Mrs. Hyland's brother-in-law they found that he was as badly off as they were, and that he could not give them even the money with which to get back to Brooklyn. In despair, the mother was compelled last evening to apply at the East 104th Street Police Station for help.

There her story moved Lieut. Lasky and Lieut. Colbert to call out the two platoons in the house for change of assignment half an hour before the scheduled time. When they told the policemen the plight of the mother and the seven hungry little ones, two of the men stole out to a nearby store and returned with arms full of sandwiches and crackers. Meanwhile, Lieut. Lasky had already started a collection, by dropping $2 into the doorman's upturned helmet. The men responded to the suggestion with quick generosity, dropping in their mites until the helmet contained $15.

The little Hylands, full-fed for the first time in many weeks, laughed happily when their mother told them the rent was now no longer to be dreaded, and that there would be plenty to eat in their home until their father got his pay. Later Lieut. Colbert, taking the baby, Stephen, in his arms, and with Thomas, Francis, Maggie, John James and Katherine tagging along at his coat tails, conducted the happy family back to their home in Brooklyn.

CAUSE OF DULL BUSINESS.

Not Roosevelt Nor Politics, Dean Johnson Says, but Lack of Capital.

The dullness complained of by business men is due, according to the address of Dean Joseph French Johnson at the opening of the School of Commerce of New York University last night, to lack of capital rather than to political agitation.

"The great activity and prosperity of 1909," he said, "was followed in 1910 by a tremendous decline in the stock markets, by dullness in general business, and by a curious shifting of our international balance of trade. Our imports of merchandise for the first time in twenty years are now larger than our exports.

"Some people blame Mr. Roosevelt and declare that he is ready to bankrupt both his party and his country if he can only get a third term, whereas it is quite possible that he is both a good citizen and a loyal friend of President Taft, eager to be the leader of the insurgent wing of his party in order that he may again be in a position to nominate Mr. Taft.

"Others attribute the dullness of business to the activity of the Department of Justice in its pursuit of corporations, and others to the interference of the Federal Government with the ratemaking privileges of the railroads.

"I believe that a careful and thorough investigation would show that all these considerations have very little connection with the present situation.

"During the last six months business has suffered a reaction merely because the extraordinary activities of 1909 called for more new capital than had been accumulated since the panic of 1907. The wealth of the country, however, is increasing every day, so that the time cannot be far distant when all forms of industry will again be active.

"These periods of dullness are not the dangerous ones. They are invariably followed by periods of speculation, when the prudent business man should look most searchingly into the future.

"Our so-called unsatisfactory balance of trade should cause no uneasiness. It probably merely indicates that American enterprises are growing in favor abroad and as a result are drawing foreign capital to this country for permanent investment."

WATCH AND RING FORFEITED.

Would Have Passed, Free of Duty If Piano Dealer Had Declared Them.

Eugene Brossard, a piano dealer, of 341 East Eighty-fifth Street, had to appear before Deputy Surveyor George Smyth at the Custom House yesterday to explain why he had not declared two gold watches, a locket, chain, and diamond ring. He returned yesterday on the steamship Pennsylvania from a visit to Germany. Special Inspector Timothy Donohue saw Brossard on the pier, and discovered that he had the jewelry concealed.

Brossard said that one of the watches had belonged to his father, and he had had it ten years. The other belonged to his daughter-in-law, and the ring he had received from his mother. He said that he had no idea he had to declare them, thinking they were covered by the $100 duty-free goods allowed by law.

The customs authorities allowed him to retain the watch which had been long in his possession. The other articles were seized. Had Brossard declared them he could have brought them in duty free.

The New Novel by the Author of "THE MASQUERADER"

MAX

By Katherine Cecil Thurston

THERE are some stories one can't tell about—it wouldn't be fair. "Max" is like that—the plot is so new, so fresh, so untouched, and the mystery of it has such alluring charm that one feels like an eavesdropper in even hinting at the strange and delightful vistas the unfolding of the story brings. There is, however, one thing it seems right to tell—the story is a tale of an unusual personality, just as "The Masquerader" was. You remember how "The Masquerader" held you, the varied delight of it all? Well, "Max" is like that, only more so. It is a unique love story, for the heroine is also the hero.

A Welcome

And Its Meaning

THE reception given to Gimbels yesterday by the New York public was undoubtedly the greatest ever given to any commercial establishment or enterprise, at any time, anywhere in the world.

We entertained during the day more than 300,000 visitors—an estimate based on an actual count of one hour's arrivals. Our sales surpassed our expectations. But that which gratified most was what you said about our store and our stocks.

"It is a store that greets you with a smile," said one visitor. And the burden throughout was the same:—"Wonderful!"—"Beautiful!"—"Astonishing!"—"Charming!"

"Charming," "Smiling." Those are the very words we hoped you would use; the very first impression we hoped Gimbels would make!

No Store Has Ever Had Such a Welcome.
But the Greater the Welcome
The Greater the Duty
To Deserve It.

We take yesterday's splendid triumph in no spirit of empty conceit. The outspoken approval of the most critical public in the world awakes in us only a stronger determination to keep that approval with us.

We have promised to show you in this Congress of Stores the highest note yet reached in American retailing. We have promised to show you, not merely a new store, but a better store.

Your enthusiasm yesterday does not blind us to the fact that we have much still to demonstrate. The triumph of a day means little. You will judge us by the way we square our performance to our promise through many days and months.

We have shown you the Gimbels that "greets you with a smile." As day follows day and month succeeds month, we shall show you as well the Gimbels that is the store RELIABLE.

QUOTES AN OLD LAW TO AFFECT TRANSFERS

Lawyer Maintains Taxes and Dividends Must Be Apportioned Between Buyer and Seller.

ITS INDEX IS MISLEADING

Found In a Chapter of Code of Civil Procedure Devoted to Actions In Surrogates' Courts.

Supreme Court Justice Guy has before him a recently discovered law thirty-five years old which, according to Xenophon P. Huddy of 50 Church Street, who dug it up, provides that the taxes on transferred property for the current year shall be apportioned between the old and new owners, and also that the owner of stock at the time a periodical dividend is declared is not entitled to the whole of the dividend and can be compelled to divide up with the previous owner or owners possessing the stock covering part or parts of the same year.

The law has never been brought forward, argues Mr. Huddy, because it was so indexed that no one would ever think of looking it up. The statute which Mr. Huddy relies upon to carry his point is Section 2720 of the Code of Civil Procedure, which is headed, "Apportionment of rents, annuities, and dividends," and appears in the chapter devoted to Surrogates' Courts and under the title "Proceedings by or Against an Executor or Administrator."

A report of the case in which Mr. Huddy has invoked the old law will show some of its bearings. The Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States had a mortgage on the three five-story brick houses at 148 to 152 East Eighty-fifth Street for a loan of $77,500 to Harry L. Toplitz and others. The mortgage was foreclosed and the property ordered sold. Edward L. Parris of 45 Broadway, the referee, sold the three houses on Aug. 26, 1910, to Hortense B. Fischer of 353 West Eighty-fifth Street. The deed was passed on Sept. 15. There were some back taxes due on the property. They were allowed out of the purchase money by the referee, but he would not allow the taxes for this year up to Sept. 15, when the property changed owners.

Mr. Huddy took the case to court, maintaining that the owner of the property up to Sept. 15 should pay the taxes up to that date, and he set up a claim for something more than $1,700.

After he had put in his brief last Monday for the apportionment of the current year's taxes on the grounds of equity, Mr. Huddy went searching for some specific law on the subject.

Real estate men and lawyers told him that in the absence of a specific contract between buyer and seller it was the custom for the buyer to assume the current year's taxes, although it was an equally well-established custom that current year rents of a piece of transferred property were to be apportioned between buyer and seller, the date of the transfer marking the division of the rents. The law indexes gave Mr. Huddy no help.

He began to look over the English law and he found that in 1870 a specific act had been passed on the very subject of current year taxes. Since many of the English laws have been copied almost verbatim in this country he wondered why that one had not served as the model for a similar law here. He began searching through the reports of the sessions from 1870, and he came upon the statute headed: "Apportionment of Rents, Annuities, and Dividends," and reading it he concluded that it applied to the case in hand, and that it should have been so indexed for these thirty-five years past. He filed yesterday in Justice Guy's court a supplementary brief founded on the old law of 1875, which, he says, is still in force. Mr. Huddy says in his supplementary brief to the court:

"This statute is apparently unknown because it was placed under a misleading title of the Code of Civil Procedure, in so far as apportionments not connected with the decease of any person are concerned. A mistake, evidently, has been made by the compilers of the New York statutes in not indexing this particular statute in such a form that it might readily have been found. * * *

"That part of the New York statute governing apportionments, which applies to this case, is as follows:

> All payments of every description made payable or becoming due at fixed periods, under any instrument, shall be apportioned so that on the determination, by any means, of the interest of any [such] person, he shall be entitled to a proportion of such payments, according to the time which shall have elapsed from the commencement or last period of payment thereof, as the case may be, including the day of the determination of his or her interests, after making allowance and deduction on account of charges on such payments.
> Every such person shall have the same remedies at law and in equity for recovering such apportioned parts of such payments, when the entire amounts of such apportioned parts form part, become due and payable, and not before, as he or they would have had for recovering and obtaining such entire payments, if entitled thereto.

A buyer who has paid all the year's taxes on property he has bought in the last six years, argues Mr. Huddy, unless he agreed to do so, may bring suit under Section 2,720 for the return of the taxes of the year of the transfer up to the time of the transfer of title. The possibilities in the statute as applied to dividends on stocks transferred almost staggered some of the lawyers who made note of the legal point raised.

MAYOR TO OPEN BUDGET SHOW

It Will Be His First Official Act on Returning to Duty, Says McAneny.

Finishing touches will be applied to-day to the budget exhibit at 330 Broadway. A private view will be the privilege of city officials to-morrow. Mayor Gaynor is expected to make the opening of the exhibit his first official act when he returns to duty Monday, Borough President McAneny announced yesterday. The exhibit resembles a small exposition.

Among the demonstrations will be one by the Public Service Commission, where a machine for testing gas meters will be operated, and the method of telling whether the meter is fast or slow will be shown. The Fire Department section will give lessons in sending in alarms.

The historic element will form a large part of the Fire Department exhibit. Brentwood, a twenty-one-year-old horse, who has been nineteen years in the fire service, will be shown alongside a new automobile engine with which Commissioner Waldo is experimenting. Near by will be an old hand power pumping engine and a modern steam fire engine. All fire alarms during the day will be rung at the exhibit in the same way and time as they are received at the fire houses, which will be shown on a large map.

The Street Cleaning Department will show a new street sweeper and a new flushing machine for washing the streets. Another exhibit in this section will be a modern snowplow which will do the work of fifty men.

The exhibit of the Armory Board will show that a new armory for the Twenty-second Regiment has been completed in 168th Street, the Bronx, at a cost of $981,750, while the old armory site, at Broadway and Columbus Avenue, was sold for $1,500,000, demonstrating that it is possible to build a modern armory and save $518,250 for the city.

All the city departments will be represented. Graphic exhibits will show to what purposes the city's money is devoted.

PECK'S LETTER MADE A STIR.

Columbia's Faculty Saw It In The Times, but None Will Discuss It.

The publication in yesterday's TIMES of Prof. Harry Thurston Peck's letter to the Columbia College Trustees accusing Prof. E. D. Perry and Prof. N. G. McCrea of philological unproductiveness caused considerable stir on the Campus. As the letter had been a personal epistle, mailed only to the twenty-two trustees, Columbia's Faculty and student body first saw it in THE TIMES.

Dr. E. D. Perry, Jay Professor of Greek, seemed deeply agitated by his colleague's accusation.

"I cannot say anything about Prof. Peck's letter—nothing," he said in a troubled voice.

"Is there any ground for Prof. Peck's statement that you have produced nothing in the way of classical philology during the fifteen years you have been connected with that department of Columbia?" Prof. Perry was asked.

"I can say nothing. Please consider this as final," Prof. Perry answered.

Prof. McCrea seemed to take Prof. Peck's charges with amusement.

"I don't see how I can say anything about it," he said, laughing, as he hurried into a committee meeting.

"I read Prof. Peck's letter in my TIMES this morning. But you had better see Secretary Fackenthal of the corporation about it. I certainly can't discuss it," said Dean Keppel.

At the office of the Secretary of the Columbia Corporation, however, it was said that Mr. Fackenthal had no comment to make.

Prof. Peck himself moved away yesterday from his apartment at 501 West 120th Street. He paused in the midst of his moving to say that his letter was a private communication to the twenty-two trustees of the university, and he could not possibly discuss it.

FIRE IN SINGER TOWER.

Firemen Quickly Extinguish Dangerous Blaze In Lofty Structure.

For more than twenty minutes early yesterday morning several porters in the Singer Building fought a fire that started at the telephone switchboard of the United States and Mexican Trust Company, on the twenty-sixth floor of the tower.

An alarm was sent from one of the building's auxiliary boxes, and within a few minutes Truck 10 and Engine 6, in Fulton and Liberty Streets, reached the building. The firemen were carried in two elevators to the floor where the blaze was fast gaining headway.

It took the firemen but a short time to put out the fire, and they were not compelled to bring up any hose from the street. The building apparatus was sufficient.

An agent of the Singer Building said yesterday that, although 30,000 gallons of water were thrown on the fire, no water escaped from the floor where the blaze started. While the fire was being fought, he said, a vacuum cleaner was kept at work sucking up the water, and it was thus prevented from flowing over the threshold of the office door into the hall, where it would have percolated through the building. The total damage done by the fire, the agent said, was some $500.

COURT CENSURES RECEIVER.

Results in Stiefel's Case a Scandal Upon Justice, Greenbaum Says.

Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum made a memorandum yesterday passing on the report of Referee Frank A. Spencer, who cut down several items in a bill presented by Jacob Stiefel, receiver in a suit over the foreclosure of a mortgage. Justice Greenbaum praised Mr. Spencer's work in reducing Receiver Stiefel's bill and expressed regret that further deductions had not been made. The memorandum said:

> To my mind the results of this receivership are a scandal upon the administration of justice. Receiverships were not designed for the benefit of receivers and their attorneys. As the plaintiffs ask for the confirmation of this report, I am reluctantly constrained to grant the motion, my own conviction being that the accounts should have been surcharged to a much greater extent than was done. The costs of the reference and stenographer's fees shall be assessed against the receiver.

The fact that while Referee Stiefel collected only $1,678 rents in his five months' administration and put in a bill for $1,885, or more than $200 more than he collected, was the subject of comment by Justice Greenbaum

"KID" McCOY IN A FIGHT.

Says Mining Engineer and a Woman Attacked Him on Broadway.

Norman Selby, better known as "Kid" McCoy, and Isaac Willard Hein, who says he is a mining engineer and promoter, living at 6 West Eighty-seventh Street, were dragged apart in a clinch and fisticuff set-to in front of the Café Madrid, Forty-seventh Street and Broadway, last night, and taken to the Night Court by Policeman Kiernan. Both were charged with disorderly conduct, obstructing the sidewalk, and causing a crowd to collect.

Both asked that the case be adjourned till to-night, so that they could get witnesses. Each charged the other with assault, but they refused to tell the cause of the trouble. Later Selby said that he and Hein had been at odds for some time and that when he met Hein, who was with a woman, both had attacked him.

Selby showed no effect of the encounter except a soiled derby, whereas Hein's injuries included half a dozen cuts about the face, a discolored right eye, and a swollen lip.

Zimmerman Appeals $20,000 Suit.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 29.—A notice of appeal was filed in the Westchester County Clerk's office to-day in the suit of William Duryea against Eugene Zimmerman, father of the Duchess of Manchester, and William C. Rogers, in which Mr. Duryea recovered a verdict in the Supreme Court of $20,000, a $1,000 extra allowance, and costs, amounting to $1,610. The plaintiff contended that the defendants sold him stock of the Alabama and Georgia Iron Company that turned out to be worthless. The defendants filed the appeal.

REVISITS THE CITY OF HIS BOYHOOD

A. S. Gillett, Here on a Visit at 93, Tells of the Days When Times Square Was Country.

MORGAN'S FATHER HIS FRIEND

Helped Him to a Better Place—Still Young Enough to Tool a Four-in-Hand.

Alfred S. Gillett, who tools a four-in-hand and takes long cross-country walks at the ripe old age of 93 when at his farm near Leesburg, Va., is staying at the Waldorf-Astoria. Yesterday Mr. Gillett, who acts as spry as a man of 60, took a stroll around town to see what changes had taken place since 1835.

He has visited New York nearly every year since that time, but likes to look around and see if he can locate the old landmarks. He has given up looking for his old friends here, for they have all passed away. D. Russell Jones, who died recently in Chicago, and who was Minister to Brazil at one time, was among the last of Mr. Gillett's boyhood chums. He and Mr. Jones boarded in Cortlandt Street away back in the thirties, and they used to take the girls up into the country, which is now Times Square, and enjoy a picnic lunch.

Mr. Gillett says he might be still working in a general store kept by his elder brother, fifteen miles from Hartford, Conn., if it had not been for Junius S. Morgan, the father of J. Pierpont Morgan. He was 19 years old, he said, when Mr. Morgan visited the store, took a fancy to him, and got him a place as bookkeeper to Ira Peck, one of the merchant pioneers of Georgia.

He stayed down in Houston County, Ga., until just before the civil war, when he came North and settled in Philadelphia. There he organized the Girard Fire Insurance Company, and was its President for fifty years. He also edited the first insurance journal in this country. He said yesterday that when 17 years old he left his brother's store and came to Hartford to look for a job as a printer's devil because his brother gave his dog away. He returned to the general store, however, and remained until Mr. Morgan chanced by.

"The Waldorf seems mighty large in comparison with the hotels of my early days in New York," he said to a TIMES reporter. "The United States Hotel was ahead of its time back in the forties, and the proprietor lost all his money in the venture. Lovejoy's was a favorite hotel in those days, and one could get splendid accommodations and food for $1 per day. This hotel was in Broadway just below Canal Street.

"Then there was the Metropolitan Hotel, kept by Warren and Simeon Leland. The Astor House, though, outshone all of the hotels, and it was considered a palace. As boys we used to promenade up and down Broadway below Canal Street with the girls, and it was mighty gay then, although nothing in comparison to the Broadway of to-day. The west side was all taken up by warehouses and lumber yards. I used to delight to go to Niblo's Garden."

Mr. Gillett said his ancestors came to New England in 1635 and settled at Windsor, Conn. His grandfather was among the first to answer to the Lexington alarm at the outbreak of the Revolutionary War, fought all through the war, and died at the age of 80.

His father, he said, was a Presbyterian clergyman who emigrated West—New York State was the West in those days. When Mr. Gillett was a lad he visited the Oneida Indians up State with his father, who had preached to them twenty-five years previous to this. One of the Indians patted him on the head, he said, and asked him if he was a good boy.

This intimacy with the Indians, he declared, did not go amiss when he went to Galveston, Tex., to live when Sam Houston was in power. There were lots of Indians in Texas then, he said, but he did not fear them, and they never harmed him.

Mr. Gillett owes his longevity, he says, to temperate and conservative living. He has smoked all his life, but never drank except to take a glass of wine occasionally. His hair and beard are snow-white and he bears a strong resemblance to Mayor Gaynor. He uses a cane in his walks, but no one takes him to be over sixty. Mrs. Gillett accompanied him yesterday on his outing.

MEDICAL SCHOOL OPENS.

First Class of College of Physicians and Surgeons Smaller This Year.

The College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University's medical school, held its opening exercises yesterday at the college building, in Fifty-ninth Street, near Amsterdam Avenue.

There is a slight falling off in the registration this year, the first year class having an enrollment of seventy-five, against ninety in 1909. But this was ascribed to the more rigid requirements for admission, which went into force this Fall. Entrance examinations no longer are held for admission to the school, a minimum of two years' college work being required. The total registration is now 302. Besides the 75 first year men, 20 have been admitted to advanced standing.

At the opening exercises Dr. McCallum, Professor of Pathology in Columbia, delivered the opening address, on "The Future of Medicine."

UNCONSCIOUS AFTER "RUSH."

Three Members of Columbia Freshman Class Carried from the Field.

In a push-ball rush between Columbia freshmen and sophomores on South Field yesterday afternoon three members of the first year class were knocked unconscious. They were carried from the field to Hartley Hall, the university dormitory, and there revived.

The rush yesterday, the second since Wednesday, when the university opened, was the most fiercely contested affair of the sort that has been seen on Morningside Heights in many years.

Had the freshmen won yesterday's encounter they would have been required to send five members of the class to the sophomore smoker. But the second year students were victorious yesterday, and in consequence twenty freshmen must perform for the amusement of the upper classmen.

An inflated ball six feet in diameter was the bone of contention yesterday. For five minutes some 400 students struggled around the great sphere, and when time was up the sophomores were declared the winners, having moved the ball some 15 feet into 1914 territory. Then came another period of the same duration and again the sophomores showed superior strength.

It is not thought that any one was seriously injured in the rush.

From the side lines several professors viewed the contest, and they didn't seem to feel it was brutal. This was noteworthy in view of the fact that intercollegiate football was abolished at Columbia University five years ago because it was dangerous. President Butler, who was the leader in the anti-football movement, is in Europe now.

SUPPERS FOR CUP RACEGOERS

Many Hotel Restaurants to Keep Open All Night Before Vanderbilt Contest.

Several hotels announced yesterday that their restaurants would be kept open all Friday night for the convenience of those who wish to witness the start of the Vanderbilt Cup race. The Plaza will keep its Fifty-ninth Street café open all night.

The Waldorf-Astoria will keep the Waldorf Garden open all to-night, and hundreds of basket luncheons will be prepared for automobile enthusiasts. The Astor and Knickerbocker Hotels also will look after early risers, and a specialty will be made of box luncheons by many Broadway restaurants.

THOUGHT THE HORSE LOST.

Boy Thus Explains Why He Drove Off with a Wagonload of Syrup.

Samuel Schulum, a fourteen-year-old lad, who lives in Broome Street, was arraigned yesterday in the Children's Court before Judge Deuel charged with stealing a horse and wagon laden with $400 worth of syrup belonging to Barron & Co. He was arrested near Rivington and Chrystie Streets just after the horse and cart had been missed and a hue and cry had been raised for it.

When the court asked Schulum why he had taken the rig the lad replied:

"I thought the horse had gone and got lost, Sir."

He was remanded till Friday while inquiries are made into his case.

MEDAL FOR CONSECRATION.

Commemorative Disc Struck for the Cathedral—Gold One for the Pope.

The consecration of St. Patrick's Cathedral on Oct. 5, by Archbishop John M. Farley, will be commemorated by a medal, a large quantity of which was delivered yesterday at the Cathedral. Several of these will be made of solid gold—one to be sent to the Pope—while the others will be sealed.

The reverse of the medal shows the Cathedral in bas relief, enclosed in a laurel wreath, surmounted by the papal coat-of-arms and that of the present Archbishop. Around the edge is the inscription: "Consecration of St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, 1910."

The obverse bears bas relief portraits of Pope Pius X. and Archbishops Farley, Hughes, McCloskey, and Corrigan, all of whom aided in building the structure. The portraits are surmounted by cross and crozier beneath the Holy Spirit and an aureole that lightens the upper part of the medallion; the lower part being encircled by laurel leaves.

The designing of the medals was entrusted to Thomas Le Matyre, who also designed the medal to commemorate the centennial anniversary of the Diocese of New York in 1908.

DROWNED DOWN THE BAY.

Man with Mrs. Morton's Address In His Pocket May Be a Former Boarder.

The body of a man about 35 years old, at first believed to be Mark Morton of 326 West Forty-sixth Street, was found yesterday morning in the bay near Pier B of the Jersey Central Yards, in Jersey City. The name "Morton" and the address were in a memorandum book in the man's coat pocket.

The house in Forty-sixth Street is a furnished-room house, managed by Mrs. Morton. She was not in last night. A young man in the house said, however, that the drowned man could not be "Mr. Morton," about whose whereabouts he seemed uncertain. The description, said the young man, rather answered that of James Markey, who had lived in Mrs. Morton's house for a little more than a year, until last July.

"I haven't seen Markey for some little time," he added.

Mrs. Morton was still not in late last night. The man found drowned was 5 feet 7 inches tall, and weighed about 130 pounds. He was dark and smooth-shaven, and wore a blue suit.

Premier BREAKFAST COFFEE

35c. Per Pound. One Cent Per Cup.

LOUIS B. ALLYN, Chemist of the Massachusetts State Normal School, at Madison Square Garden last week made public analyses of PREMIER Catsup, PREMIER Jams, PREMIER Olive Oil, PREMIER Spices, PREMIER Extracts and placarded his results for the inspection of all.

He stated: "PREMIER claims to be the finest achievement of the century in PURE FOOD preparation. It has proved its claim."

A member of the "PREMIER" staff was asked to address every session of the Pure Food Congress and did. His remarks were blunt and disturbing. Some of them were quoted in the Brooklyn Eagle, New York Globe, New York Journal of Commerce and New York Commercial. All of them were reported in the Philadelphia North American.

The North American has been fighting the "PURE FOOD" fight for many years. It stands uniquely as the leader in all the educational work concerning honest foods which our people are entitled to expect an honest newspaper to perform.

The North American investigated "PREMIER" and rejoiced over the findings of Dr. Allyn. It was not a matter of advertising. It was a vital and a necessary report of facts.

The 926 members of the "PREMIER" family are at hand for your own investigation. Ask your grocer for some of the following seasonable suggestions:

Premier Buckwheat Flour	Premier Breakfast Bacon
Premier Pan Cake Flour	Premier Chipped Beef
Premier Sap Maple Syrup	Premier Peanut Butter
Premier Water White Honey	Premier Jams and Jellies
Premier Yellow Corn Meal	Premier Orange Marmalade
Premier 15 Minute Oat Flakes	Premier Canned Vegetables

PLAYED STRANGE MUSIC.

Sailor Convinced the Customs Men He Didn't Smuggle the Instrument.

Ability to play a strange looking instrument called a French piano-accordion convinced the customs authorities that Leonidas Inpasantia, a Greek sailor on the steamship Athenia, was not a smuggler and restored to him his beloved instrument. The musical test was given yesterday by Col. J. H. Storey, Acting Collector.

"If the thing is really his he ought to be able to play it," said Col. Storey when he heard that the Greek had been held up. The Greek entered and played.

Both Show Pleasure When Their Joint Husband Is Held for Bigamy.

Alexander Lang, 41 years old, a candy-maker, who was arrested late on Wednesday night at his home, 11 Columbus Place, Brooklyn, on a charge of bigamy, was yesterday held in $2,000 bail for examination by Magistrate Harris in the Gates Avenue Court. His two wives sat together in court, the original Mrs. Lang having her arm in motherly fashion around the waist of the newer and younger Mrs. Lang. Both smiled with apparent delight when Lang was held.

WILSON APPEALS TO INDEPENDENTS

CROWDS OUT TO HEAR HIM

Not Enough Room in Plainfield Hall to Hold Them—Blames Tariff for High Prices.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Sept. 29.—Dr. Woodrow Wilson, Democratic candidate for Governor of New Jersey, addressed a large audience in Reform Hall here to-night. So great was the crush to hear him that not one-half of those who wanted to could get in the hall, necessitating an overflow meeting. A feature of his speech was its freedom from everything that would seem like an attack on the Republican Party. He was introduced by William L. Saunders, President of the North Plainfield Woodrow Wilson Club.

"I am cheered," said Mr. Wilson, "by the fact that I stand here as the representative, as I conceive, of a great body of men who have very definite hopes and purposes with regard to the reformation of government in New Jersey—a body of men, not an isolated man here and there, not a man here and there discontented with the inside order of things, but a body of men who have done definite thinking and are moved by definite desires for the betterment of the State of New Jersey.

"There never was a time when party bonds were quite so loose as they are at this moment in this country. There never was a time when there was more independent thinking being done than is now being done in this country. What is more, there never was a time when that thinking was more generally based upon a sympathy with the common needs of all classes of men.

"Men are not stopping now to examine party labels; they are beginning to examine candidates; they are beginning to examine programmes; they are beginning to ask whether they can rely upon definite promises; and if they are convinced upon these points they are ready to thrust aside all antecedent connections and prepossessions and vote for the man and things that they believe in. I believe that the Democratic opportunity isn't an opportunity to get office and serve a party, but an opportunity to serve the people by carrying out a definite programme.

"The Democratic Party has strayed at different times through many divers paths, but it has never forgotten its sympathy with the great bodies of toiling men, and it is that sympathy which will sustain and renew any party that continues true to it, for the Democratic Party is renewed in our day, not by the rise of new men, but by the impulse of a new time, which naturally expresses itself in new men.

"If I were asked to fit the old party cries and shibboleths to the present state of politics I should say at once that I didn't see how it was possible, and the difficulty with the party which I am now trying to play my part in displacing is that it has stuck to old cries and shibboleths and hasn't noticed the change of the times.

"Why is it that there is a great insurgent movement in the Republican Party? It is because great bodies of thoughtful men inside their party are beginning to perceive how that party has—not by movement, but by inertia—not by new policies but by old—separated itself from the enlightened interest of the present movement. The proof of the Democratic argument is the action of these great, powerful bodies of insurgents within the Republican ranks. All this insurgency is built upon negative lines, it is a movement of discontent. Mere discontent does not produce anything positive."

"All through this country there have been set up Public Service Commissions intended for the regulation of the railways—for example, the Public Service Corporation. In this State Republican legislation has set up a committee to make inquiry. That isn't necessary. We know what is going on and we know we want a change. It is not necessary to stop for that. All of that is told in a field in which there is abundant experience to guide us. There is no mystery about the liability act; there has been legislation going on for years and years along that line.

"The Public Service Commission is not intended merely to regulate rates; it is meant to regulate rates by a fair and judicious inquiry; it is not meant merely to register complaints, but to correct abuses, with regards to corporations as well as the public—not merely to serve one side, but to serve both sides by pointing out what parts of the community need an extended service.

"And, speaking about the direct primary law, why, there has been a direct primary law, such as Gov. Hughes of New York would have us believe he thought out himself, in Massachusetts. I am saying all this in illustration of the fact that we don't seem to know that other States have been acting on this subject for a long period of time.

"I believe that the tariff can be revised in a way that will not disturb business too much and will meet the necessary and just demand.

"Now what is the cause of the high cost of living? The cause is that the tariff wall has been built so high that business concerns, being absolutely free against the danger of foreign competition, can get together and control prices and cost. It is not the just and reasonable protection the Republican orators used to talk about.

"We have therefore to ask you, as Democrats, do you believe that the Democratic Party in New Jersey as at present constituted and under its present nominees for office, is going to be the right party? Give us the power and let us misuse it, and we have lost our opportunities and would have lost all opportunity to elect a Democratic President of the United States.

"It is not an easy thing to be asked to be put to test; for my part I am not interested in the game unless we can test ourselves. I am tired of talk. I wish performance, and if we cannot deliver the goods then I am satisfied for one to take a back seat."

Dr. Wilson will speak to-morrow night in Newark and on Saturday afternoon at Red Bank, and at Long Branch at night.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 29.—Perhaps never before has there been so much enthusiasm displayed at a "politicians' day" at the inter-State Fair here as was shown to-day when Dr. Woodrow Wilson of Princeton, the Democratic Gubernatorial nominee, and Vivian M. Lewis, the Republican nominee, were guests of the fair association management. The appearance of the two men, whose race for the Governorship brought out a host of adherents, and politics were talked all day long.

The fair management saw to it that no partiality was shown to either candidate. They were brought to the grand stand around the race track in such a manner that the applause for one was that for both, and in every way there was a determination to give to one side as much as to the other. The management wanted both candidates as guests, and their appearance brought out the other politicians.

Ex-Senator Jonathan H. Blackwell, President of the Inter-State Fair Association, was host, and Secretary Mahlon R. Margerum was master of ceremonies. The morning was spent talking shop on "politicians' row," where the houses of the President and Secretary stand, and at noon luncheon was served. In the afternoon came the ride around the race track for everybody great and small in politics, and then the racing. Both sides to the political battle put on good faces, and neither would admit that the other was going to lose. The weather was ideal and the grounds were crowded.

The Democrats, such men as ex-United States Senator James Smith, Jr., State Chairman James Nugent, ex-Senator Robert S. Hudspeth of Hudson, Senator George S. Silzer of Middlesex, ex-Mayor Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of this city, and hosts of others were of the firm opinion that this was a Democratic year and that the landslide in Maine would strike New Jersey. They believed that Dr. Wilson would attract a great host of Republicans and get all of the Democratic vote, and predicted that his majority will be 30,000. On the other hand, the Republicans are just as confident of victory, though they are not claiming such a majority.

CONFLICTING COURT ORDERS.

Justice Gavegan Left Without Recourse but to Sign Them.

It was explained yesterday that the injunction which Supreme Court Justice Gavegan issued on Wednesday, restraining Park Commissioner Stover from proceeding to tear down the front walls of several houses on Riverside Drive was merely temporary; and that as affidavits, indicating a prima facie case were before him, he had no discretion about its issuance.

Justice Gavegan also had no discretion about issuing the order which he signed on Tuesday, instructing the Park Commissioner to carry out the order of the Appellate Division to remove the fronts of the houses and fixing Nov. 15 as the date for the completion of the work. The plaintiff in the case was Mrs. Charlotte Y. Ackerman who wanted the house fronts removed and the City as defendant withdrew its appeal to the Court of Appeals.

With the consent of both parties before him to the withdrawal of the appeal, no other course was open to Justice Gavegan but to direct Commissioner Stover to carry out the order of the highest court.

Last Set of Pastime A. C. Games.

The Pastime Athletic Club will hold its last set of members' games at Pastime Oval, Ninetieth Street and East River, on Sunday, at 2:30 P. M. The Games Committee has arranged another attractive programme, including 100 yards, 440 yards, three-quarter mile, two miles, one-mile walk, and twelve-pound shot, and inasmuch as this set of games will decide the winner of the point trophy offered by the club for the greatest number of points scored during the season, competition should prove keen. Dorland, Goggin, Frizby, Slade, Dolan, and Steverton will be seen in the sprints, while Buist, Sweney, Brennan, Smith, Jenson, Stack, Liebgold, and others will compete in the other events. There will also be a number of exhibitions of an athletic nature held during the afternoon.

Leland Giants to Play Ridgewood.

At Meyerrose Park, Covert Avenue "L" Station, Brooklyn, on Sunday, the famous Leland Giants will oppose the Ridgewood Club at 3:15 o'clock. It was after much persuasion with Rube Foster, manager of the Lelands, that Manager Hussey was able to secure such a fine attraction, as the Lelands had arranged to sail for Havana on the Ward Line. The Lelands are the real big team in Chicago, and the colored lads are three times winners of the pennant of the Chicago City League.

Montclair Horse Show.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Sept. 29.—Montclair's fifth annual horse show, which will be held on Saturday on the grounds of the Montclair Athletic Club, has attracted nearly 150 entries, and it is expected that the affair will be one of the best equine exhibitions ever given by the Montclair Riding, Driving, and Automobile Club. The entries include winners at other shows, and also many new candidates for blue ribbon honors.

Loan Association Closed Out.

Supreme Court Justice Hendrick signed an order yesterday authorizing the State Superintendent of Banks to pay out to claimants against the Nineteenth Ward Co-operative Savings and Loan Association, $695, which he had collected, pro rata among approved claimants for $1,317. This is the final liquidation of the association.

HIGH HONOR SHOWN PRINCE TSAI-HSUN

MOUNTED POLICE GUARD HIM

Oriental Potentate Receives Delegation of His Countrymen in His Suite in the Hotel Plaza.

Prince Tsai-Hsun, Secretary of the Chinese Navy and First Sea Lord, arrived in New York last night, accompanied by high officials of China's Navy Council. He arrived at the Pennsylvania station in Jersey City from Washington at 9 o'clock in Charles M. Schwab's private car, which was attached to a special train, and was met by Robert Adamson, representing the Mayor, and Police Commissioner Baker.

When the Prince stepped from the car, in his black Oriental costume and wearing a great globular ruby half as large as an egg, a distinctive mark of royalty, he was greeted by Mayor Gaynor's secretary and the Police Commissioner, who escorted the party to the police boat Patrol, which landed them at the foot of West Thirty-fifth Street.

Four Police Sergeants and twenty-three mounted police were waiting there, together with a delegation of a hundred resident Chinese, mostly members of the Chinese Merchants' Association. With the Prince, in Commissioner Baker's car, in the lead, with the escort of mounted police, followed by fifty taxicabs, gayly decorated with the Stars and Stripes and the Chinese dragon intermingled, the procession made a quick run to the Hotel Plaza, where several hundred persons had assembled to see the uncle of Pu Yi, the infant Emperor of China.

The Prince was at once shown to the state apartment, which he will occupy in his stay in the city. He had not been there more than ten minutes when he was told by Chow Tze-Chi, Chief Councilor of the Wai-wu-pu, that a delegation wished to present him with a memorial of his visit here.

For almost half an hour the Prince stood, with his secretary, Chow, by his side, bowing to the Chinese as they passed along. The majority of the Chinese visitors wore American clothes, but many appeared in their picturesque costumes, with their hands hidden in their sleeves.

After this reception, which came as a surprise to the Prince, he dined in his suite, surrounded by his councilors, with the exception of Admiral C. E. Sah, who, with four naval officers, is now at Newport News, Va., looking over the new cruiser which is being built for the Chinese Navy.

Col. Scott of the U. S. Army, who had been deputed to meet the Prince, with other army officers, paid their respects to him at the Plaza. Capt. Potts of the U. S. Navy, and Chandler Hale, Assistant Secretary of State, have accompanied the Prince on his travels in this country.

To-day the Prince will be taken to West Point, and on Saturday he will pay a visit to the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Admiral Sah and the four other naval officers will reach here by to-morrow in order to visit the Navy Yard with the Prince.

Mr. Schwab was in North Philadelphia when the Prince's special train passed through, and he telegraphed that he had been detained there on account of business, and would not reach New York until to-day. Mr. Schwab has planned to entertain the Prince and his party on Saturday night at his Riverside house.

ELKINS YACHT SOLD.

John D. Spreckels Buys Venetia and Plans Cruise to the Orient.

John D. Spreckels of San Francisco has purchased the steam yacht Venetia from George W. Elkins of Elkins Park, Penn., through Stanley M. Seaman, 220 Broadway, this city.

Venetia is 226 feet over all, 196 feet water line, 27 feet 2 inches beam, and 15 feet draught. She was built by Hawthorne & Co., Leith, Scotland, in 1903 under Lloyds survey. Accommodations consist of 8 staterooms and 3 bathrooms for the owner, 2 bachelor rooms and bath. Main deck house contains smoking room forward, dining saloon next aft, followed by pantry and galley, engine and boiler room casing, and social hall in the after end. Passageway on the inside of deckhouse. All quarters finished in fancy hardwood. Normal speed, 12 knots an hour, but this can be pushed to 14.

The yacht is now fitting out in South Brooklyn in command of Capt. Lake, and will leave with her new owner on Monday morning for New Orleans, La., where she will remain for about six weeks. Mr. Spreckels contemplates joining her there with his family for a trip through the West Indies and around the Horn, reaching San Francisco next Spring. The yacht will be used between the latter port and San Diego most of the time.

In 1912 an extended cruise is contemplated to Honolulu, South Sea Islands, and the Orient.

For the trip to New Orleans Mr. Spreckels will have as guests George F. Keene of Philadelphia, Read G. Dilworth, and Stanley M. Seaman of New York.

AFTER DIRECTUM'S RECORD.

Billy Burke Expected to Shatter Four-Year-Old Mark of Stallion.

Seventeen years ago, on Oct. 18, John Kelly drove the black stallion Directum to the world's record for a four-year-old trotter of 2:05¼. The next day the news was spread broadcast that the great stallion had set the record so low that it would be many years before it would be equaled. Since then many records have been broken and rebroken, but the 2:05¼ established by Directum has never been touched by a four-year-old trotter.

Since that remarkable performance the most prominent four-year-old stallions that have appeared are The Harvester and Billy Burke. It was thought that without a doubt the veteran reinsman, Ed Geers, would drive a new spike in the record column and hang the name of The Harvester over that of Directum, but time slipped by and the great son of Walnut Hill and Notolet was a five-year-old before he trotted faster than the record set by Directum in a regular contest.

During workout miles Geers had driven The Harvester seconds faster than 2:05¼, but for some reason or other the great colt did not succeed in the task he was capable of doing.

Of this year's crop of four-year-old stallions it looks as if Directum's record is to be beaten it will be Billy Burke that will do it. In the fourth heat of his race at Kalamazoo early in the season Billy Burke trotted in 2:06¾, equaling the world's record for a similar performance. That race, coming early in the season, took so much out of the colt that he has not been on edge until recently. In his race at Syracuse, when he won the Empire State $10,000 stake from Hallworthy, Joan, and others, Billy Burke showed his real form, and he is expected to improve steadily until the season closes.

Shrubb Drills Harvard Runners.

CAMBRIDGE, Sept. 29.—Alfred Shrubb, coach of the Harvard cross-country team, had a group of candidates out on the Stadium track to-day for the first time this season. The British filer watched the runners go through their paces morning and afternoon. Capt. Jaques was out, as were Fernald, Newton, and Lawless. Newton and Lawless are newcomers to the team. Newton has dare distance running in track meets, while Lawless, who was a freshman last year, was an interscholastic star. He is credited with a mile in 4:28 while at school.

Two of the Greatest Feats Ever Attempted

Across the Atlantic by Dirigible Balloon!

The great balloon America is now undergoing final tests at Atlantic City, preparatory to an attempt to fly across the Atlantic and land as near London as possible. The start will probably be made within a week. The airship is to be operated by a crew of six, headed by Walter Wellman and Melville Vaniman. It is equipped with the Marconi Wireless Telegraph, which will be used to flash news of its progress exclusively to The New York Times, The London Telegraph and The Chicago Record-Herald, which have paid $35,000 for this service.

Aviators are now assembling at Hawthorne Park, Chicago, preparatory to the start, on Saturday, Oct. 8, of the great aeroplane race from Chicago to New York for a prize of $25,000 offered by The New York Times and the Chicago Evening Post. Mr. Clifford B. Harmon adds prizes amounting to $5,000, making it possible for the winner to receive $30,000. There will be a week of preliminary trials at Chicago, beginning to-morrow. These and the progress of the race will be fully reported in The New York Times.

The Giants and the Reds had their farewell clash of the season at the Polo Grounds yesterday, and the session was easily the best of the four which the teams played in the closing series. McGraw's men made it three straight over the invaders, and three out of four for the series, but they had to keep plugging every minute, as the Reds kept the battle in uncertainty until two men had gone out in their half of the ninth inning. The bases were choked with Red runners when Hans Lobert, whose stickwork has featured the Cincinnati team's playing here, skied to Snodgrass for the final out. The score was 5 to 4 in favor of the Giants.

Murray's batting was a life saver for the Giants and prevented the Reds from getting an even break in the four games. With the score tied in the fifth inning and two Giants on the paths Murray reached for a high ball and spanked the pill far into left centre field for three cushions. Again in the seventh inning Red came up with the score tied and Devore on second, and he promptly shot a sizzler between Lobert and Egan, which chased Josh over the rubber and won the game. Red found time to turn in another safe wallop during the afternoon, but it did not figure in the run getting.

Most of the pepper which the game brought out, came in the closing innings in verbal clashes between the Reds and the umpires. The first big outbreak occurred in the seventh inning, after a scratch hit and some loose playing by the Giants had filled the corners with none out. Clarke, batting for Suggs, lined to right field and one run came across, leaving the bases still stuffed. Miller hit to Doye and Larry threw to Fletcher, forcing Clarke at second. Fletcher threw to Merkle, and on a close play at first base Umpire Eason waved Miller out. The entire Red army got busy after Eason, and Paskert, who led in the verbal attack, was finally chased off the lot.

When the Reds lined up for the last half of the seventh inning Phelan was in left field in place of Paskert.

"Who is playing left field?" shouted Umpire Johnstone to Manager Griff on the bench.

"Who wants to know?" was Grif's comeback.

"I want to know and I want you to tell me," shouted back the umpire.

"Well, I won't tell you," Grif crabbed back with a sixty horse power accent on the "won't."

Johnstone got his desired information from Catcher Clarke, announced it to the crowd, and went back to work. Grif continued his line of lingo at the "ump," and it was only a few seconds before the Red manager had been ordered to join Paskert in the clubhouse. Grif took his time about starting, and then hit up a line of march which extended from the bench to third base, thence along the foul line to the bleacher seats, where he made a sharp military turn and crossed the outfield. The game was held up until Grif had reached deep left field, about two minutes after the parade began.

A great try for a foul fly from Merkle's bat in the fifth inning resulted in a painful injury to Bob Bescher, the Reds' left fielder. Bescher ran from his position in left field toward the boxes near the left field foul line, and before he had a chance to turn he crashed into the first box. He put up his right hand to save himself, and the upper corner of the box tore a V-shaped wound in his hand, extending entirely across the palm. The blow also knocked his fingers out of joint and bruised the player's chest, besides giving him a severe shaking up. He was assisted to the bench by other Cincinnati players, and two doctors answered Umpire Johnstone's call. Before the game was resumed Bescher was removed to the clubhouse, where his injury was dressed. He will be out of the game for the remainder of the season.

The Reds jumped ahead in the second inning. Mitchell hit safely over second base and Paskert beat out a drive to Fletcher. Mitchell dusted for third base on the play and continued to the plate when Merkle's throw went to the stands. In the third inning the Reds filled the bases on a pass to Suggs and hits by Lobert and Hoblitzel. Suggs scored while Doyle was retiring Mitchell at first base after making a sensational onehand stop. In the seventh inning the Reds again filled the bases on a single by McLean and errors by Doyle and Ames. Clarke, batting for Suggs, singled to right field, and Phelan, who ran for McLean, died. Miller hit to Doyle and Corcoran crossed the plate, while Larry, Fletcher, and Merkle were doubling Clarke and Miller.

The Giants got four runs in the fifth inning Merkle and Wilson scratched hits and Ames sacrificed. Devore hit to Corcoran and Merkle slid home safely. A pass to Doyle filled the bases, and McLean favored with a passed ball, which allowed Wilson to score and the other runners to move up. Then Murray unloaded the triple to left centre and Devore and Doyle counted. In the seventh inning Devore hit salfe and Doyle was hit. After Snodgrass had bunted out, Murray singled past short and Devore came across with the winning run.

Pirates Check the Brooklyns.

Brooklyn used up three pitchers in an effort to make it five straight from Pittsburg yesterday at Washington Park, but the visitors won by 7 to 2. Burke's wildness in the third inning and Dessau's ineffectiveness in the sixth inning were costly. Adams pitched well all the way, allowing but four hits and passing nobody. The score:

Tri-State League Meeting.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Sept. 29.—The Fall meeting of the Tri-State League of Baseball Clubs was held here to-night, with every club represented except Trenton. President C. J. Carpenter had the Johnstown proxy. The league decided to open the season of 1911 on May 3 and close Sept. 6. The salary limit was continued at $175, with $25 additional for Captain, but the restriction as to the number of players a team can carry was removed. The circuit will remain the same until there is a satisfactory transfer of the Williamsport franchise to Wilmington. No action in regard to this transaction was taken to-night, although it was discussed.

YANKEES HOME AGAIN.

Manager Chase Makes Local Debut To-day—McAleer's All-Star Team.

The New York Americans, under the management of Hal Chase, arrived home early yesterday afternoon from Detroit, and most of the players hurried to the Polo Grounds to see the Giants in action against the Cincinnati Reds. It was the first opportunity the Yanks have had to see the rival team perform, and as most of the players are confident that an interleague series will be played few passed up the opportunity to get a line on McGraw's team. This afternoon the Yanks will begin a four-game series with the Washington team at the Hilltop, and, barring the double header with Boston on the closing day of the season, Oct. 8, these games will be the last of the year at American League Park. Hal Chase will make his bow to New York as a manager this afternoon, and a demonstration is being planned by admiring cranks.

Manager Jimmy McAleer, who arrived here last night with his Washington Club, has signed up an all-star aggregation of American League players to engage in a series with the Athletics while that team is waiting for the close of the National League season to begin the world's series. The team which Manager McAleer has rounded up will be made up of the following stars: Catchers, Sullivan of Chicago and Street of Washington; pitchers, Johnson of Washington, and Walsh and White of Chicago; infielders, Stahl of Boston, Elberfeld and McBride of Washington, and Lord of Chicago; outfielders, Cobb of Detroit, Speaker of Boston, and Milan of Washington. President Ban Johnson will notify Manager McAleer next Monday as to how many games it will be possible to play, and then the final arrangements will be completed. All games will be played at Shibe Park in Philadelphia.

Manager McAleer will leave early this afternoon for Youngstown, Ohio, to attend the funeral of a close friend. He will rejoin the Senators here Monday. Groom or Grey is slated to work in the opening game of the series here to-day.

WRIGHT AND NOBLE WIN IN SENIORS' GOLF

Baltusrol "Vet" Takes Low Gross Score Prize—Noble Best in Net Scores.

Nearly all of the army of veteran golfers, consisting of warriors, financiers, physicians, and lawyers, returned for the second and final round of the seniors' tournament over the links of the Apawamis Club yesterday. That they were enthusiastic and loyal to the cause was never before so vividly illustrated.

Few could be found willing to acknowledge any ill effects of the first day's bout with bogey and par. There was Col. A. S. Worthington, the Chevy Chase soldier who lost a leg in the civil war; Gen. Adelbert Ames, who served in the civil war, to say nothing of Alexander Milne, the dean of the gathering, who won a prize on Scottish links sixty-odd years ago.

Milne completed the tournament against his physician's advice and, as if to guard against any possible hitch, he got the earliest start. When the Scarsdale man left the first tee the dew was still glistening through the fairway. However, the seventy-eight-year-old player required 107 to get around, some ten strokes more than the first day. Consequently the expression on the patriarch's wrinkled countenance as he retired to the "nineteenth" hole seemed to say, "Maybe the doctor was right, after all."

So far as the prize winners go, Frank A. Wright of Baltusrol, continuing his good work, won the first gross honors for thirty-six holes, supplementing his 80 the first day with an 82 for a total of 162. This was four strokes better than F. I. Amory, the Brookline veteran, who competed in the first National amateur championship at Newport in 1895. Amory's 166 got the second gross prize.

There was a tie for the first and second net prizes between George E. Armstrong of Fox Hills, and E. J. Noble of Garden City, at 144. A play-off at nine holes was ordered by the committee, Armstrong being compelled to concede his rival one stroke. As they went to the first tee, Armstrong said to Noble, "Take the honor."

"We'll toss for it. I want nothing that I can't win," rejoined the other. Armstrong called the turn, and told Noble to drive, whereupon the Garden City man responded by getting away a good ball. Armstrong followed with a slice to the edge of the rough. Even so, Noble took eight for the hole, and a little later stood eight strokes to the bad. He got a two at hte short fifth hole, however, and then drew level when the other got bunkered at the sixth and took eight strokes. They reached the turn in 46 each, but as Noble had a stroke handicap coming to him, he was declared the winner.

The prize for the best net score on the first day went to H. L. Thornell of the Rumson Country Club, with 84, 14—70, and Robert Collier of Dunwoodie got the second net with 85, 12—73. The first net prize on the second day was won by W. H. Canterbury of Boston with 89, 14—75. E. J. Scofield of Wee Burn got the second net with 91, 15—76. The scores:

Walter Travis Captain of Team That Will Play at Myopia.

HAMILTON, Mass., Sept. 29.—All the golfers of the Massachusetts, Metropolitan, and Philadelphia Associations, who are to compete at the Myopia Hunt Club to-morrow in the Leslie Cup matches arrived here to-day and soon took advantage of the opportunities for practice. The Massachusetts players showed up to good advantage in playing the famous links, but scores preceding a championship are no indication of what may develop twenty-four hours later. The makeup of the three teams announced officially by R. R. Freeman, Secretary of the Massachusetts Association, is as follows:

Massachusetts—H. H. Wilder, (Captain.) J. G. Anderson, P. W. Whittemore, A. G. Lockwood, P. Gilbert, F. C. Davidson, W. R. Tuckerman, T. A. Claflin, T. G. Stevenson, H. Schmidt, Rodney W. Brown, and T. R. Fuller.

Pennsylvania—W. C. Fownes, Jr., National amateur champion and Captain of the team; Wirt L. Thompson, W. G. Pfeil, E. M. Byers, A. G. Kay, J. H. Childs, H. W. Per

VANDERBILT CUP RACE AT DAYBREAK

ON MOTOR PARKWAY COURSE

Record-Breaking List of Contestants Ready for Long Island's Classic Automobile Run of 278.08 Miles.

The sixth competition for the William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Automobile Cup will be run to-morrow morning, starting at day light, over the 12.64-mile course in Nassau County, Long Island. Simultaneously with this race will also be run the Long Island Motor Parkway Sweepstakes for the Wheatly Hills and Massapequa Trophies. Shortly after sunrise—about 6 o'clock—the thirty-one big racing machines will be sent away on their long 278.08-mile journey, rain or shine. The nine cars contending for the Wheatly Hills Trophy will be started an hour later, and half an hour after this class the six contestants for the Massapequa Trophy will face the starter. It is expected that by this plan not more than thirty cars will be on the course at the same time, for by the time the smaller cars are started, it is the opinion of those versed in racing that some of the larger racers will have dropped out for one reason or another.

The Vanderbilt Cup race this year has unusual interest because of the largest entry list of any automobile road race ever held in this country. The galaxy of drivers includes the most daring of American racing pilots, together with several foreigners of note. By special permission there was a post entry made yesterday for the National classic, a Royal Tourist being entered by H. B. Hills, Jr., and will be driven by P. H. Jardine, who competed in the race in 1905.

Early Start for Race.

The picturesque feature of the cup race, its starting at daylight, will be resumed this year. Last year the race was started at 9 o'clock, late in October. Chilly weather and a race that extended far into midday robbed the event of some of its spectacular traditions. The old order of things will be resumed to-morrow. The exodus from New York will begin to-day and by to-night a great fleet of sputtering automobiles will invade quiet Long Island. Garden City will again be the headquarters of the race officials the night before the race, and all roads leading to the course will be crowded with the machines of the racegoers.

The new Pennsylvania tubes will attract great crowds, who plan to go to the course by train, for it will get them over to Long Island quicker than the old trip by ferry. The vast army of sightseers who go to the race in this way will go early, most of them with no idea of rest or sleep. These enthusiasts will plant down behind a fence at some point of vantage on the course long before the sun peeks over the eastern horizon.

A well-known trio of famous drivers will handle the Benz cars, namely, Franz Helms, David Bruce-Brown, and Edward Hearne. Hearne is the present holder of the Indianapolis Speedway Helmet and Fox River trophy, and hails from Chicago. Helms is a newcomer with a reputation. Harry F. Grant, who will again pilot the sturdy Alco, is best known for his bulldoglike victory in lest year's Vanderbilt Cup race. Grant is 37 years of age and is a native of Massachusetts.

The Pope-Hartford interests will be ably looked after by Jack Fleming and Bert Dingley. The latter is a veteran Vanderbilt Cup pilot. His partner, Fleming, is a veteran of the track and road, but this will be his first Vanderbilt race. Louis Disbrow, Al Livingston, and John Aitken are a trio of well-known drivers who will handle the three National cars. Livingston has never driven in the East before, but has scored many notable victories on the Pacific Coast. Aitken drove in last year's Vanderbilt Cup race. Disbrow, the crack driver who won the $10,000 Atlanta trophy and other track races, is one of the metropolitan favorites. Leland Mitchell and Ralph E. Beardsley will pilot Simplex cars. Beardsley will make his initial bow as a cup contender, but Mitchell has last year's experience to guide him.

Some Crack Drivers.

Ralph K. Mulford, the Lozier pilot, who will handle his Elgin stock model winner, is a veteran of both track and road, as are the Chevrolet brothers—Louis and Arthur—and Robert Burman, who will sit behind the steering wheels of the fast Marquette-Buicks. Another Westerner who will make his début before an Eastern audience is Harris Hanshue, one of the best-known drivers of Southern California, who will drive the Apperson "Jack Rabbit."

Walter Jones, who is to drive the Amplex car, is 20 years of age, and probably will be the youngest driver to start in the contest. The Jackson will be piloted by E. B. Schiefler, and the Corbin by popular Joe Matson, and the National by that well-known road and track daredevil, Louis Disbrow.

The most picturesque driver who will participate in the race is Tobin De Hymel, whose real name is Whistling Wind. De Hymel is an Aztec Indian, only 19 years of age, but those who have seen him drive in track and road events in the South and Southwest state that he is a spectacular race driver. Fred Belcher, the Springfield (Mass.) star, will be at the wheel of a six-cylinder Knox.

The motor car route from New York to the grand stand is as follows: Cross Queensboro Bridge from foot of Fifty-ninth Street to Long Island City, turn right to Crescent Street, to end of street, turning left at parked section of cross street. Proceed over Jackson Avenue to approach to Thompson Avenue Viaduct, leaving Queens County Court House on the right. Cross viaduct into Thompson Avenue. Follow Thompson Avenue into Hoffman Boulevard, follow Hoffman Boulevard to Hillside Avenue, turning left at Disbrow's garage. From this point the route is identical with that from Brooklyn. Note—Motorists from New Jersey should take Pennsylvania Ferry at Jersey City to Twenty-third Street, Manhattan, turning left to Thirty-fourth or Thirty-fifth Street, thence crossing the city and proceed to Queensboro Bridge, foot of Fifty-ninth Street.

Motorists from Staten Island are advised to take South Ferry adjoining and close to Staten Island Ferry to foot of Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn. Proceed directly up Atlantic Avenue to Bedford Avenue, passing under elevated railroad at Flatbush Avenue and leaving the armory of the Twenty-third Regiment on the right, as they turn into Bedford Avenue. Proceed to Bedford Avenue to and passing the Grant Monument, in Grant Square, to Eastern Parkway, which will readily be recognized by the Slocum Equestrian Monument at the intersection of Bedford Avenue and Eastern Parkway. Turn left, proceeding as suggested for motorists from Brooklyn.

These roads are the most direct and the streets will be freer from traffic than others during the early morning hours.

All turns from the Bethpage Turnpike north to the official grand stand and official reserved parking space will be indicated by yellow and black signs, which, on the nights before both races, will be illuminated by batteries of calcium lights.

The road leading from Bethpage Turnpike to the unreserved (50 cents) field will also be illuminated by a battery of calcium lights. There will be no charge made for cars in this 50 cents admission field.

All the drivers who will take part in to-morrow's race met at Garden City last night and listened to final words of instructions from A. R. Pardington and Starter Fred Wagner. The drawing of the official numbers for the three events resulted as follows:

HARVARD'S LINE MEN HEAVY AND STRONG

Formidable Array of Big Fellows Comprise Crimson Football Team's Defense.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 29.—A heavy and formidable string of line men composed the forwards of the Harvard first team in the football practice this afternoon. Minot and McKay were in the scrimmaging for the first time this year. McKay was back at tackle, but Minot, who heretofore played full back and was a star in the position, was in the line to-day. He played guard and it seems to be the plans of the coaches to make a line man of him if his scholarship is adjusted satisfactorily. The lineup of the first team to-day in a thirty-minute scrimmage was as follows: Felton and Long, left end; McKay, left tackle; Minot, left guard; P. Smith and Huntington, centre; Fisher and Blodgett, right guard; Withington and Bush, right tackle; L. Smith, left end; Lewis, right end; Wigglesworth and Potter, quarter back; L. Frothingham and Morrison, left half; Corbett and Campbell, right half; Leslie and T. H. Frothingham, full back.

Felton before to-day played tackle, but with McKay back in the job he was shifted, too. Minot and McKay needed the work and were in the whole time. The first team ran around and streaked through the second team for three touchdowns and on the defense held the second team safe all the time. There was fumbling on the first team, however, and twice the ball was lost that way within a few feet of the first goal line. Campbell did excellent work in advancing the ball, making one run from the centre of the gridiron and going through a broken field for a touchdown. Keays, a freshman guard last Fall, joined the squad to-day. Wigglesworth, Lewis, T. Frothingham, and O'Flaherty had a lengthy drill in drop kicking.

YALE FRESHMAN HURT.

Ethridge Wrenches Knee—Ten Minutes' Scrimmage for 'Varsity.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 29.—The Yale freshmen football squad lost a valuable player to-day when Ethridge, formerly of Exeter Academy, dislocated his knee in a scrimmage. This was the opening day's actual drill for the 1914 candidates, and nearly a hundred reported to Coach Mersereau. Ethridge went down in a scrimmage and wrenched his knee.

Kilpatrick resumed his position at left end for the Yale 'Varsity to-day in signal drill, although Bomeister, who succeeded him when the scrimmage began, proved the star of the afternoon.

The regulars had only ten minutes scrimmaging, because of the heat and the severe game of yesterday. The 'Varsity took the ball from midfield to the scrubs' goal without losing it on half back plunges. Bernie Tommers, the 'Varsity pitcher, who was used as 'Varsity half back, went over for the score. The scrubs received the ball on the 'Varsity 25-yard line, but failed to gain on line plunging. They tried a forward pass, but Bomeister caught the ball and tore away from the scrubs for the second touchdown. To close the practice Capt. Daly tried two field goals, kicking one from the 30-yard line and missing the next.

LONG ACRE'S BIG NIGHT.

Bouts Full of Ginger Please One Season's Record Fight Crowd.

Fight enthusiasts to the number of about 2,000 were treated to one of the best boxing shows of the season last night at the Long Acre A. A. when Manager Newman staged a special bill consisting of a double wind-up of ten rounds and five preliminaries of four and six rounds each. Marty Munroe fought Fred Keller in the stellar number, but the bout, instead of going the scheduled ten rounds, came to an end early in the third round when Munroe dropped to the floor for the full count.

In the other ten-round bout two bantams, Jimmie Cowan and Young Egar, the limit, but after the sixth round both boys tired and the affair became a hugging match. Howe did the better work in most of the rounds, and won the decision.

Every one of the preliminaries was of the type that pleases the fistic followers. They were all slam-bang contests and full of action, thus keeping the crowd in a highly jubilant state from the beginning to the end of the show.

Ghetto and Moran Draw.

Kid Ghetto and Johnny Moran fought a ten-round draw last night at the Metropolitan Athletic Club. The first round was devoted mostly to sparring and was considered even, but Moran got the better of the second. He got in on Ghetto's mouth several straight punches that staggered the Kid. It was Moran's round. In the third Moran got to the Kid's face again, but Ghetto came back strong. The fourth, fifth, and sixth rounds were Moran's. He repeatedly got in hard left jabs on the Kid's mouth, but in the clinches Ghetto did the most effective work and pounded Moran's body. The seventh round was even, but Moran got the upper hand in the eighth. Ghetto landed in the ninth and tenth rounds enough right and left punches to even matters up.

Miles McLeod Shows Well In Bout.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Miles McLeod, the farmer boy from Albany, Mo., who aspires to wrest the heavyweight championship from Jack Johnson, boxed two rounds with Joe Choynski yesterday. After the bout Choynski declared McLeod to be one of the most promising novices he ever boxed with, and said that with two months' proper handling McLeod would be able to give any of the heavyweights a stiff argument. According to Choynski, McLeod has a left punch which is phenomenal, and as soon as he is taught how to use it he will develop into one of the best two-handed fighters in the game.

McGinn Wins 3½-Mile Race.

Henry McGinn of the New York Athletic Club won the three-and-a-half-mile cross-country race held last night by the Dominican Lyceum Athletic Club of 163 East Sixtieth Street. The course lay from the clubhouse in Sixtieth Street up Fifth Avenue to Seventy-ninth Street, through Central Park to Eighty-first Street, then down Central Park West to Fifty-ninth Street, and east to the club, making a total distance of a little more than three and one-half miles. McGinn took the lead at the start and held that position throughout the contest, finishing in 21:02, with C. Russonico of the Irish-American Athletic Club only about five yards behind him.

There were twenty-six entries in the run. The start was made at 8:30 P. M. and lasted until about 8:50. The first ten to finish were: H. McGinn, New York Athletic Club, 21:02; C. Russonico, Irish-American Athletic Club, 21:04; Tom Rooney, Dominican Lyceum Athletic Club, 21:30; S. Damiano, Sheridan Athletic Club, 21:38; V. Dorus, Liguria Athletic Club, 21:50; J. Garah, Sheridan Athletic Club, 22:05; J. Webster, unattached, 22:32; E. Haurge, Morningside, 22:35; T. Larkin, Mohawk Athletic Club, 23:28; A. Berman, Sheridan Athletic Club, 23:41.

The Harvester Behind His Record.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 29.—Native Belle and Miss Stokes, champion trotters of last year at two and one years, to-day won the three-year-old and two-year-old divisions of the Horse Review Futurity in races that were made uncertain by the unsteadiness of each.

In an attempt to beat his world's record of 2:01, made here a week ago to-day, The Harvester failed. He stepped the first quarter in less than half a minute, but took 31½ seconds for the second quarter. The third quarter was trotted in 30 seconds, and the last in 30½ seconds, making the mile in 2:01¾.

Gilbert and Seymour In Line-Up.

The Bronx Athletics, who regard themselves as the semi-professional champions of Greater New York by virtue of their victories over the Ridgewoods, will be seen again at Bronx Oval, 162d Street and Southern Boulevard, next Sunday in a game with the All Stars, who will have Billy Gilbert, Ernie Lush, Billy O'Hara, and Cy Seymour in the line-up. The game will be the second of a big double-header, the curtain-raiser bringing together the All Stars and the Hobokens. The battery for the Jerzey men will be "Rod" Waller and Dillon, the old Eastern Leaguers.

Morris County Women In Golf.

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Sept. 29.—A half dozen ladies participated in to-day's round for the President Ransom H. Thomas Cup at the Morris County Golf Club. Mrs. Harold N. Hall finished two down and was awarded 3 points toward the trophy. Mrs. Dudley Olcott Second and Mrs. Frederic S. Kellogg each finished three down and to each was credited 1½ points. Mrs. W. D. Vanderpool was eight down, Miss Jane Swords six, and Mrs. G. E. Vietor eight.

REORGANIZING HOCKING COAL

Committee Reports a Modified Plan with Assurances of Its Success.

After several months of dickering the Reorganization Committee of the Columbus and Hocking Coal and Iron Company, which went into the hands of receivers last Winter, have filed a modified plan of reorganization with the Bankers Trust Company. The first plan issued in July met with opposition from important creditors.

Under the modified plan, $2,000,000 50-year first mortgage 5 per cent. sinking fund bonds will be issued, and $4,600,000 common stock, which is to be held in a voting trust. Holders of the first and second mortgage bonds of the old company are to receive 75 per cent. in the new first mortgage bonds, and 50 per cent in common stock.

Preferred stockholders in the old company who subscribe $10 a share are to receive at par new bonds equal in face value the money subscribed, and an amount of new common stock equal to their present preferred holdings.

Common stockholders are offered new bonds on the same terms, but receive only 50 per cent. in new common stock. The general creditors holding claims of $100 or less will receive 100 per cent. in cash, those holding claims over $100, 50 per cent. in cash.

Claims and securities must be deposited under the plan with the Bankers Trust Company before Oct. 29. After that date bonds and stock will be accepted under the plan only upon payment of a penalty of $5 on each bond, and of 50 cents a share on the stock.

A statement issued by the Reorganization Committee yesterday said:

The receivers report on operations for the last six months profits from coal and oil amounting to $53,000. For the last two months the percentage of earnings has been materially increased, and an additional increase in the price of coal is expected about Oct. 1.

A large majority of first and second mortgage bondholders have assented to the plan, and underwriting has been assured for sufficient of the new bonds, the committee states, to insure the success of the plan.

THE CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—After Diamond Match was lifted to 85 Quaker Oats was also a feature and advanced to 177, but settled back to 175 at the close. President Crowell was quoted as saying that the business of the company was good and the output was at the high record level. Chicago Railways, Series 2, sold off 2 points, and Sears-Roebuck common closed a point higher than at the last previous sale.

Sub-Committee Exceeds Authority.

The announcement that a sub-committee of the Public Schools Athletic League had declared a school boy a professional and awarded a championship of the Public Schools Athletic League caused the officials of the Public Schools Athletic League to hold a conference, and yesterday Gen. George W. Wingate, the President of the league, and James E. Sullivan, Chairman of the Games Committee, talked the situation over, and while they took no positive action they agreed that the Public Schools Athletic League was the Supreme Court in athletics, in so far as it pertains to public school competition, and that according to the present laws the sub-committee could not declare any one a professional, and certainly could not award a championship by reason of thus disqualifying a competitor. Consequently the decision rendered by the High Schools Games Committee at its meeting on Monday disqualifying Peter Green of the Commercial High School for professionalism, and awarding of the Public Schools Athletic League championship to the High School of Commerce, is contrary to the rules and regulations of the Public Schools Athletic League as they now stand. The matter will be straightened out at a meeting to be held next week.

$12,000,000 GAIN IN EXPORTS.

Record for August According to Official Bulletin in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—During the month of August the export trade of the United States to every part of the world increased in all over $12,000,000, according to a summary completed by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor.

During the eight months of the calendar year which ended with August the value of exports to Europe alone was nearly 620 million dollars, and the imports for the same period were more than 525 millions. Compared with the statistics of the corresponding period of 1909 the imports from Europe show increases of 50 million dollars and the exports show a decrease of 25 millions.

The statistics would indicate that the "balance of trade" so far this year is against the United States, but the opinion of many students of economics is that the immense exports of foodstuffs and manufactures which this country will make this fall are likely to turn it in favor of this country again.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—Each day the traders on the local Exchange have taken hold of speculative stocks, and, concentrating their efforts, have marked them up materially. Yesterday it was the Asphalts; to-day it was Lake Superior. Buying orders, said to be for foreign account, started the ball rolling, and the floor brokers jumped in to help push it along. Before midday they had succeeded in lifting the quotation close to 24, and the price ruled above 28 throughout the afternoon. During the first hour alone nearly 4,000 shares changed hands.

NEW YORK, FRIDAY, SEPT 30, 1910.

A MAN WHO CAN BEAT ROOSEVELT.

We hope the Democrats at Rochester will not permit themselves to be deluded by the foolish phrase, "This is a Democratic year." The year 1910, like all its predecessors, is strictly nonpartisan. The Democrats will win by their candidate, by their principles, not because of the year.

Their candidate must be a man who can beat ROOSEVELT in the State of New York. The Republicans have nominated Mr. STIMSON for Governor. He is a man universally respected. It is everywhere admitted that he is a strong candidate. But behind and above him towers the great figure of THEODORE ROOSEVELT. He is the man who must be overcome. ROOSEVELT and Rooseveltism are the foes that confront the Democracy.

Both the weakness and the strength of THEODORE ROOSEVELT in his own State ought to be clearly perceived by the Democrats. He does not at all understand the depth and wide extent of the distrust of him and the resentment against him in his own party. Conservative Republicans look upon him as a menace, they regard with apprehension every fresh step he takes in his campaign to regain the Presidency. Moreover, Republicans resent his tumultuous re-entry into politics, his vast conceit, his evident assumption that the country can be saved only by him, and that the Republican Party is of no account save as the instrument of his ambition. The old bosses and their following, the men he has ruthlessly trodden under foot, are angry, and they will make their wrath felt on Election Day.

But these elements of weakness the Democratic Party can readily convert into elements of strength by weak and foolish nominations at Rochester. A weak candidate could not hold his ground for an instant against Mr. ROOSEVELT. He would be continually driven back and further back. Only a man of first-rate capacity can hold the respect and the attention of the people against a campaigner of Mr. ROOSEVELT'S ability, taking the field in support of a candidate like Mr. STIMSON.

The magnificent opportunity of the Democracy would be wasted by the nomination of some second-rate person simply because he is a good fellow, respectable and acceptable to this or that leader or faction. A successful campaign against Mr. ROOSEVELT can be made only with ideas, and the ideas must be in the brains of the Democratic candidate. He must be a man capable of searching the Roosevelt policies, of pointing out to the intelligent, conservative citizens of New York the unsoundness and the danger of his "new Nationalism." He must be capable of making a destructive analysis of Rooseveltism, of exhibiting the real Roosevelt to the voters, of contrasting his abundance of loud profession with his paucity of performance, of exposing his shiftiness and insincerity and his habit of being all things to all men, of which the wide difference between his Eastern and his Western utterances affords an example.

No second-rate, weak, and untried man can do these things. They demand a mind fully equipped for the task, a mind with a firm grasp of the principles of State and of National policies, a mind stored with ripe knowledge of public affairs.

Above all the other Democrats whose names have been considered by the delegates it seems to us clear that Mr. EDWARD M. SHEPARD possesses the qualifications of ability and knowledge and experience demanded by the party's great opportunity.

THE BERGEN VILLAGE COMPETITION.

The competition in the schools of Jersey City, public, private, and parochial, arranged by THE TIMES in connection with the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the settlement of Bergen Village is, we are happy to say, received with much approval by all classes concerned in Jersey City and throughout the public school system of the State.

The aim and plan are very simple. A writer of authority on local history, Mr. DANIEL VAN WINKLE, has been engaged to write seven articles covering the various phases of the experience of the people living in Jersey City—which now includes the first settlement at Bergen—for the two centuries and a half since its foundation. Starting with the voyage of HUDSON and its causes, the discovery of land, the early settlements, the story is carried through the Holland occupation, the Indian troubles, the British rule, the time of the Revolution, and the changes since, up to the date of the consolidation with Jersey City. On these papers exclusively the pupils of the schools are invited to submit essays. For the best in the designated grades 500 medals designed in silver by TIFFANY & Co. are offered, for the second an equal number of engraved certificates, with prizes of money for the High Schools and for teachers whose pupils submit the five best essays.

It will be seen that there will be something over a thousand prize winners and many times that number of competitors in Jersey City. Dr. BAXTER, the State Superintendent of New Jersey's schools, has recognized the educational value of this competition, and has recommended that Mr. VAN WINKLE'S historical articles as they appear in THE TIMES be used by the pupils in every city, town, and village in preparing similar compositions to be read in connection with a Statewide observance of Bergen Day. All these will be interested in this study and treatment of definite facts of historic significance in the State of New Jersey, and will have practical experience in that highly useful exercise. The prospect of benefit from such activity under the conditions is very promising, and we are glad to believe that the plan will be one of substantial utility.

OLD GRIDIRON, OLD GAME.

In the practice games on Wednesday between the teams of big universities and of smaller colleges Yale defeated Wesleyan by a score of 22 to 0, Harvard overwhelmed Bates by the same score, Cornell "walloped" Hobart by 50 to 0, and Pennsylvania scored against Dickinson 18 to 0. Football under the revised rules is still a good "scoring" game for the larger institutions. Harvard won by straight line plunges, not by the spectacular plays of the forward pass and onside kick. The redoubtable "TED" COY, who reported the Yale game for our neighbor The World, remarked that the beholders "were surprised to see the game so little changed."

The old-fashioned "gridiron," without the longitudinal marks of the past few seasons, will greet the spectators of the championship contests this year. If we are not much mistaken it will be the old game, too, played by heavy, "beefy" players. Mr. WALTER CAMP in his Outing article speaks of the advantages of the "really good big man" for the chief positions, and says it will "hardly be necessary to secure star ends" of the sort that used to furnish excitement by their thrilling dodging sprints down the field.

For the sake of big and not overactive men and "scoring" plays that will keep the smaller colleges from occasionally winning games, have not the football rules officials sacrificed the interests of the spectators?

STRIKE AT THE ROOT.

About two-thirds of Mr. ROOSEVELT'S platform at Saratoga is given up to National questions. Of these the tariff is most important, and the action of Congress as to the tariff is warmly, extravagantly, and very far from truthfully praised. The tariff as it is and as it ought to be is thus made the chief issue of the campaign, always keeping in mind the exception in regard to the personality and ambitions of Mr. ROOSEVELT himself. It is made so by Mr. ROOSEVELT.

We do not think it was very wise in that gentleman to put the tariff in the front place. It is too obviously the type and embodiment of all that he professes to abhor and fight in politics. It is the mother of trusts, of monopolies, of combinations under the forms, nay under the direct inspiration and encouragement, of the law. Every word that he has had to say—they are not so many, but they are iterated and reiterated interminably—about the evil and peril of monopolistic corporations is "peculiarly" true of the products of the tariff legislation of the past forty years. The participation in public affairs, the domination of the legislative branch, the indirect control of the executive, influence in party politics, corruption and demoralization in every department of public activities such as he denounces in his vague and fervent fashion—all these are sins of the corporations created and fostered by the tariff.

He has been eloquent in his condemnation of privilege. The essence of the tariff is privilege, and privilege bought by political service. Why is it that the duties on wools and woolens, for example, are maintained at a level to give a practical monopoly to the American interests and to force the public to use inferior goods at high prices or to go without? The injustice, oppression, and extortion of these duties have been shown so plainly that President TAFT and Chairman PAYNE have been forced to confess that they should have been largely reduced. Yet they were not touched, because the men who profit by them control too many Republican votes. They have secured a privilege as definite, profitable, and exclusive as any that was ever granted by the Tudor sovereigns of England in their palmiest days, a privilege as clearly the outcome of favoritism and corruption, and while the party that bestowed it is in a majority in Congress, that privilege cannot be withdrawn or reduced. But of this feature of the tariff Mr. ROOSEVELT'S platform and Mr. ROOSEVELT himself have not a word to say. We do not believe that the people at the polls will be content to be equally silent and complaisant.

The ordinary corporation has special advantages from the law, perpetuity of existence, limited liability, the concentration of small amounts of capital into corporate capital that may be immense, and it has the help of a form of negotiable credit that a private person cannot command. These advantages impose responsibility, and the law properly undertakes to apply that responsibility. But what do all these advantages amount to compared with those the tariff grants in the restriction of foreign competition, in the compulsory home market at advanced prices? And what are the dangers from the ordinary corporations compared with those who are invited to establish and aided in maintaining monopolistic combinations by the law that shuts out foreign rivals? Against the former Mr. ROOSEVELT has much to say and says it with extreme bitterness. Against the latter he is tongue-tied and his convention goes to the limit in defense and in praise. Of course in politics mere inconsistency does not always count, but in this case it would be interesting if the voters, stirred by Mr. ROOSEVELT'S attacks on privilege, should strike at the worst example of privilege, and strike all the harder because Mr. ROOSEVELT himself is its champion.

SMOKING AUTOMOBILES.

The nuisance of dense smoke emitted from the exhaust pipes of automobiles within this city was prohibited by an amendment of the Sanitary Code, taking effect July 1 last.

Not a single arrest has been made, to say nothing of convictions, in the three months elapsed since July 1. Everybody who frequents the thoroughfares of Greater New York sees daily violations of the smoke amendment. What is Health Commissioner LEDERLE doing? Has he not subordinates to command and power to suppress this nuisance?

CANADA AND TEXAS.

A Federal judge sitting at Dallas on Thursday postponed the sale of a railway in foreclosure until after the Legislature of Texas has had an opportunity to amend a law passed at the last session with only a total of seven votes against it in both houses. The Legislature was only that much removed from unanimity in enacting a law which a Judge thinks makes it "injudicious" to proceed with reorganization. The law is general in its terms, but in its application to the case before the Judge it allowed the issue of only $24,000,000 in securities, although the road is valued at $35,000,000 for taxation.

Moreover, no securities can be issued without the acceptance of a prior lien for all the unsecured debts of the reorganized property. It is forbidden even to issue securities to pay the very debts for which the law creates a lien, although the debts were incurred without the giving of any security. After the date of the law it would be impossible to create a first mortgage on a railway which would take precedence of such statutory liens. In such circumstances railway first mortgages could not be sold except upon terms which practically forbid the construction of railways. President YOAKUM the other day said that this law "hangs up" railway construction in Texas. His road had discontinued such construction as could be stopped, and he knew of hundreds of miles of other roads which would not be built.

Is this the way to cure whatever ills Texas suffers at the hand of the railroads? And is it certain that Texas is suffering so badly as it thinks? The inquiry may as well be made general, for Texas is far from being the only State which legislates in a manner offensive to the judicial sense of propriety, but so agreeably to the popular prejudices that it is even proposed to remodel courts and laws in order the better to facilitate the enactment of such statutes, barbarous and immoral according to judicial decisions. What can be the explanation of popular moods so different from those existing elsewhere under conditions almost identical?

Take Canada, for example, as a contrast to Texas under conditions as nearly similar as can be expected. This week the Canadian Department of Labor has issued a report on prices showing an advance of 31 per cent. on 230 articles. Canada is an agricultural country like the United States. It is a protectionist country, and has its trusts as well as ourselves. This year there have been twenty amalgamations involving 135 corporations, and some of the combinations are more nearly monopolies than any in the United States. Yet Canadian opinion reflects hardly any sympathy with the mania in the United States. On the trust question, for example, The Toronto Monetary Times, discussing the above figures, says that there is almost no danger of a complete monopoly, or dictation of prices.

This moderation of tone is even more marked regarding railways, and with results which it would profit Texas particularly to remark, and which would not be wasted if observed in any of a score of the United States.

A Winnipeg dispatch announces the completion within a few days of surveys for a 2,000 mile railway from Edmonton to Lake Winnipeg. An Edmonton dispatch announces that a New York syndicate will build a railway across the province of Alberta, say 700 miles, and the Premier of the province has signed the first contracts. Another New York syndicate has beaten the Grand Trunk in the race for a route across Southwestern Alaska to Vancouver. In Saskatchewan the breaking of ground for the Hudson Bay Railroad followed promptly the decision at The Hague which the Canadians regard as making that bay their territorial waters. It may be doubted that either railways or trusts were ever more active than now in Canada, with the best of goodwill on the part of both the authorities and the people, and with results closely paralleling those reached under the same conditions in the United States.

What can explain this contrast? Is Canada really the worse because it lacks a wielder of the big stick? Is it not for the interest of Texas, or of any State resembling Texas in its craze, that the conditions in Canada shall not be allowed to revive on this side the border? To make the question more precise, is it better that the regulation of railways should proceed in the orderly and even sympathetic manner of the Canadian Railway Commission, or that the inquiry should be allowed to ramble and degenerate into the apparently endless and useless investigation now going on here and there throughout the United States?

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Misusing Federal Uniforms.

Gen. FUNSTON'S refusal to remain in a hotel where the head bellboy wore a uniform that duplicated the one worn by Captains in the United States Army may have been, as he said, a little hasty, since it is not exactly judicious for a soldier of his rank publicly to claim for the service in matters of this sort the respect which all good citizens who have some delicacy of sentiment are glad to show. That is a task which it is usually best to leave to the civilian public. Still, the General's indignation at this misuse of the Federal uniform was well justified, and he had some reason for feeling that attention should be called to an offense which is spreading simply because nobody has taken the trouble to protest against it.

Not only in Kansas City have the managers of hotels been dressing the more conspicuous members of their office staffs in army and navy uniforms. The same obnoxious practice has of late become common in this city, and presumably examples of it can be found in many other parts of the country. Of course, the men responsible for the evil are careless or ignorant rather than unpatriotic, and have no intention of insulting or offending anybody. They copy the service uniforms merely because those uniforms are simple and handsome, and there may be in their darkened minds something of the feeling that prompts fond mothers to dress their little boys in sailor clothes and to put around their hats a band bearing the name of one of our warships. In that case the intention is doubtless complimentary, so far as it is anything more than purely decorative, and the custom is innocent enough.

It is, however, quite another matter to put close imitations of Federal uniforms on hotel underlings of adult or nearly adult age, in place of a livery indicative of the status held by those who render personal services and accept tips. That custom is not innocent enough, or innocent at all. It is distinctly indecent and should not be tolerated, not only for reasons of the sort called sentimental, but because of the highly improper and dishonest uses that can be and have been made of such disguises. An army or navy uniform, when worn by right, is, as it ought to be, a letter of introduction and a guarantee of character; when worn without right it therefore becomes a convenient instrument of deception and fraud. A new law on the subject is hardly necessary, but public opinion should make itself felt.

As Good for the Boys as the Girls.

When JAMES E. SULLIVAN speaks of athletics it is of course with knowledge and authority. His words have added weight because of his deserved repute as a man who tries to keep amateur athletics free from any taint of professionalism, and to make them something more than the mere winning of victories. Mr. SULLIVAN'S condemnation of the practice of putting men at the head of athletics in girls' schools, and of letting them serve as coaches and managers of the various "teams" in such institutions, must therefore be taken as well founded—is, indeed, almost or quite enough to compel the abandonment of the practice wherever it now prevails.

One cannot help thinking, however, that the arguments used by Mr. SULLIVAN in maintaining his contention could be easily extended to boys' schools, and to the whole field of amateur athletics. Men coaches, he says, are apt to give the girls wrong ideas as to what they should achieve in athletics, and, by emphasizing the competitive features of sport, limit to the girls who need them least the advantages which exercise can confer in the way of physical development and the giving of health and strength. But why is not what is bad for the girls equally bad for the boys—why should the latter not also be taught that athletics are a means and in no sense or degree an end?

"Gate money," too, of which Mr. SULLIVAN speaks with stern reprehension when it is taken in by girl athletes, is in the opinion of many just as demoralizing to the boys who adjust their games and sports so as to draw the largest possible amount of it from a public that gives never a thought to the gratification of anything except its own love of excitement, and is more than willing that the young contestants in the arena should exert themselves to the utmost in the mimic battles. At least a few readers of the article by Mr. SULLIVAN, which we printed yesterday, while agreeing with every word he said about men coaches for girls, will wish that a good many of the men who are now coaching boys might be replaced by the intelligent and competent women coaches whom he described as the best rulers of gymnasiums and playing fields at the girls' schools.

She Tells the Facts Concisely.

Again does an Iowa paper, this time The Cedar Rapids Gazette, provide us with an advertisement provocative of deep wonder, and of some half dozen other emotions as well. It is a rather long one, for the class to which it belongs, but as a "human document," full of novelty and interest, it seems to be worth reprinting here in full. Anyhow, here goes:

Wanted—The people of Cedar Rapids, Marion, and Linn County to know that my name is now Mrs. VAN METER. It never was TERENS. I was just his housekeeper, and I never was married to him and never lived with him as his wife, but my uncle, Mr. RADABAUGH, who suspected such a state of affairs, got me a divorce, though it was not necessary. I want to make this plain, as I am about to be married to Mr. FRANK DUDLEY near Troy Mills, Iowa, and all persons are hereby notified that I am a free woman, with a full right to marry whoever I please.

Mrs. ANNA C. VAN METER.

The peculiar thing about that advertisement is its revelation that the writer of it not only wants to stand well with the community in which she lives, but recognizes the right of her neighbors to a full and accurate knowledge of affairs that in—well, in many places out of Iowa would be considered strictly personal and private. The getting by an uncle of a divorce for a woman who neither wanted nor needed one—that, too, is a queer outworking of social forces and conditions.

For some time we shall watch The Cedar Rapids Gazette carefully to see whether or not Mr. RADABAUGH or Mr. FRANK DUDLEY has anything to say in its columns. Mr. TERENS is presumably dead, else he, too, might add an interesting chapter to the story.

ROOSEVELT AND CAPITAL.

Declines to Believe His Utterances Hurt Business.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to your editorial article, "Who Owns the Railroads?" I beg to disagree with you. While it is undoubtedly true that the savings banks depositors and the life insurance policy holders are indirectly the holders of the great percentage of railroad securities you mention, I deny that they are made to suffer as a result of the utterances of Theodore Roosevelt concerning the crook, the grafter, and the dishonest business man. It is Wall Street that is responsible for the depreciation in the value of these securities, and the sooner the country at large realizes this the better. If the stock of any corporation is worth $100 a share, and if that $100 is represented by something owned by the company worth $100, whether it be rolling stock, real estate, buildings, mills, or what not, I decline to believe that anything Theodore Roosevelt may say will affect the intrinsic value of that stock.

New York, Sept. 28, 1910. H. H. K.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"An Old Republican" in this morning's issue condemns Col. Roosevelt as "fearless in bringing misery, poverty, and distress to millions of the people of this great country, whose savings are being wiped out by his villainous attacks upon invested capital." In other words, a complaint is made against the agitation of business. Is it or is it not a better course to "operate" upon the American body politic for its evident and most serious ills in the hope of curing its defects than it would be to allow those ills to ultimately cause a more bloody revolution than the history of the Old World reveals?

It is either progressive principles or Socialistic principles that the American people have to choose between, and while making that choice they should remember that principle is far greater than policy; that evolution, while not devolution, is at least progressiveness, and that last, but not least, principles are of greater value to the free pursuits of life, liberty, and property than a mere man.

The Personal Victory.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The headlines reading "Roosevelt Wins," and "Roosevelt's Victory" in detailing the Saratoga convention are, I think, erroneous. True, it is heralded as a personal victory, claimed as a personal tribute, but not so. Roosevelt was merely the crooked stick to drive off the mad dog.

It was a fight, not for any one, but against a corrupt and demoralizing control whose arrogance had become intolerable. E. T. W.

The Growth of Cincinnati.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent issue you published what I presume was intended to be a jocular letter, commenting on the low percentage of increase in the population of Cincinnati. While it is true that Cincinnati is no longer one of the ten largest cities, when population alone is considered, she still easily holds her position as one of the largest and most important commercial and manufacturing centres in the United States, as will be seen from the following table of bank clearings of the first fifteen cities for the year 1909:

	Population, 1910.	Clearings, (millions.)
New York	4,766,883	99,257
Chicago	2,185,283	15,413
St. Louis	687,029	3,310
Kansas City	248,381	2,224
Pittsburg	533,905	2,223
San Francisco	.....	1,908
Baltimore	559,485	1,386
Cincinnati	364,463	1,326
Minneapolis	.....	989
New Orleans	.....	840
Cleveland	560,663	825
Louisville	.....	633

Cincinnati is tenth in the list, and it must therefore be conceded that she has more thrift, more energy, and a greater productive capacity per capita than Cleveland, Detroit, or Buffalo, each of which has a greater population. It takes more than mere bulk to make a real city. LOSANTIVILLE.

Dogs at Large.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"H. B." seems to miss the point made by "J. F. O.," which is that dogs should be prevented from running at large in this city. The data collected by "J. F. O." fortifies the contention he has made. That he may have "gone to great rains" to collect his data should not discredit his position. Neither should the claim that Spanish bloodhounds aided in the conquest of Mexico and Peru make us disregard the warning given by the death of a "four-year-old girl" of rabies caused by the bite of a stray dog in the street." J. S.

Brooklyn, Sept. 28, 1910.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letters published recently in your paper attacking the dog are undoubtedly written by prejudiced persons, who see no good in a dog. A dog is a more congenial companion on a hunting or fishing trip than a good many men would be. A DOG'S MASTER.

Detective Work on the Ferry.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to the investigation now being conducted by the Department of Docks and Ferries, relative to conditions in the Municipal Ferry services, it would, perhaps, be well to also consider the probability of grafting by others than the employes, i. e., families and friends of employes, small politicians, &c.

This was suggested to me upon observing in the Brooklyn Terminal of the Thirty-ninth Street Ferry that the brass hook attached to one end of the steel chain which is stretched across the passageway beside the turnstile was in a highly polished condition, denoting that it is handled many times daily. Of course, policemen and firemen in uniform are entitled to use this means of gaining entrance to the waiting room, but the brilliancy of the brass hook is in such marked contrast to that of the brass turnstile beside it, one cannot help but feel that its use may partly account for the falling off in receipts.

James F. Tracey for Court of Appeals.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I see by THE TIMES this morning that Mr. James F. Tracey of Albany is prominently mentioned as a candidate for the Court of Appeals, to be nominated on the Democratic ticket.

Mr. Tracey is a man of wide learning, very industrious habits, high integrity, and thoroughly judicial mind. He was a Judge of the Supreme Court of the Philippines for several years, having been appointed by President Roosevelt. He is a brother of Charles Tracey of Albany, formerly Congressman, he comes from an old Democratic family, and has always been a Democrat in the old sense of the doctrine. DEMOCRAT.

THE SHAME OF PROMOTION.

Thinks This and Not Failure of School Children Should Be Investigated.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Judging hurriedly from "Why School Children Fail" in to-day's TIMES, one might suppose that New York had something to be ashamed of in the fact that 17 per cent. of pupils failed at the January and June promotions. Those inquisitive municipal researchers should rather demand to be informed why over 17 per cent. were promoted, the cause for shame on the part of our educators being not the leaving back but the advancing of pupils who are unfit. No one has ever had the nerve to deny that they are promoted with 90 per cent. (or in practice even less) as the passing mark, to their everlasting injury, since they could study if they had to, just as pupils in previous times did.

Associate Supt. Walsh is quoted as saying that inefficiency of teachers will account for much of the defects so justly marked for inquiry by the researchers. Why should Dr. Walsh appear to suppose that inefficiency is restricted to the actual teachers, likely as it is in a day and generation when Normal College graduates have not as good a chance to get License No. 1 as training school pupils have in half the time? Dr. Walsh knows, as every one else knows, that inefficiency can be found in some higher quarters. He knows very well that the higher ranks these years past have been recruited from the numbers of those advanced as a mere matter of memorizing various books and methods supposed to supply the place of good and efficient work as teachers. He could name, if he would, some principals whose records as teachers were certainly not A, whose method of speech is shown by the now classic boast of one who declared he knew "more pettagochee dan all uff de examiners togedder," and that they would fear for that reason "to throw him down." I am sure Dr. Walsh would not say he thought it tended toward inefficiency if he were asked what he thought of the "coach" system, by which any one who has the wit to take a coach can "get wise" quick enough to pass any examination and attain any license.

The Research Bureau could go further than to declare that "no one has yet tried to learn for how many failures inefficient teachers are responsible." No one wants to know, because every one is chiefly concerned to prove that numberless methods are a good substitute for application on the part of the child, and a thorough knowledge of history and mystery of education a good substituto for actual capacity to teach on the part of teachers.

One might be justified in asking what actual value the city has received from the educators since education became the science it now is, and whether things were so bad before science was applied to education; certainly some antediluvians recall days when it would have been safe to examine pupils before promotion to see whether they knew their lessons, and to do it also at graduation and publish results as well. I for one would be very peevish indeed at any attempt to lay all the blame on teachers' inefficiency; some others could fairly be brought in. ROBERT P. GREEN.

New York, Sept. 27, 1910.

I saw in a recent issue of THE TIMES an article in regard to the non-promotion of children in public schools.

It has been my experience and observation for the past ten years that one of the principal reasons why children are left back at promotion time is that there are too many studies forced upon them before they are of an age able to comprehend the lessons, many of which are never of any practical use to them. Much time is wasted that should have been devoted to the more essential studies which have to do with their earning a living in later years.

Another thing that came under my notice is that when lessons are given out in the classrooms for home work they are many times worked out under adverse conditions, poor lights, annoyance of younger children, diverting their minds from their lessons, and many times teachers who are not inclined to help them.

Many high school graduates who apply for positions are very incompetent because of lack of knowledge of the simplest forms of business, poor readers and spellers, and can hardly compose a letter of application for a position intelligently. A FATHER.

The Library Lions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a citizen of this city may I enter a protest against the lions which are being placed before the new Library at Forty-first Street? I cannot criticise them as an artist, but any one with a child's knowledge of animals must need stand in open-eyed wonder before these monstrosities. The head is possibly a lion's. The body resembles what might be a cross between a hippopotamus and a cow; as for those semi-human hind legs, words fail. E. C. B.

New York, Sept. 28, 1910.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You are indeed close observers, and I say this in reference to the library lions at the new Public Library. The modeling may be appropriate now, but sure for the criticism of the future, and as effective studies we do not want square-jawed lions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

This morning you publish an account of a serious accident at Poughkeepsie, a taxicab having been run into by a train of the Central New England Railroad.

This is incomprehensible. I have traveled on the Central New England Railroad, and the only theory by which I can account for one of its trains having gotten into collidable proximity with an automobile is that said automobile was going backward.

UPHOLD FUNSTON ON UNIFORM

General Left Hotel Where Bellboys Seemed to be Dressed as Army Captains

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Army officers in Washington applaud Gen. Funston's action in Kansas City yesterday in withdrawing his patronage from a hotel where the bell-boys were clad in uniforms which the General thought were those of a Captain in the United States Army.

It is a matter of regret to the War Department that it has not been possible to secure legislation that will prevent the use of the army uniform by persons not in the service. Several attempts have been made in that direction, but an obstacle has always been found in the fact that the Government itself sells large quantities of discarded army clothing, and Congress was disposed to uphold the right of the purchasers to wear it if they saw fit.

Sometimes where the uniform is abused it has been possible to apply a remedy through a charge of false pretenses. Thus it happened that a performer in a local vaudeville theatre gave a skit involving a fancy drill by a number of youths clad in the army uniform. There was no way to stop that, but when the department found that the man was falsely advertising himself to be a United States Army officer it served sharp notice upon him to cease under penalty of prosecution.

TAFT SCOUTS BRING GLOOMY REPORTS

CABINET PARTY EXTENDED

Prison Reformers Told Not to Make Prisons Too Comfortable—Cardinal Vannutelli Received.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The usual variety of incidents and routine business kept the President busy on the fourth day of the Executive house party at the White House. He discussed the postal bank system with Senator Penrose, Chairman of the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads. He talked politics and local affairs with a number of Congressmen. He received the American Prison Association, and spoke briefly on prison reform. Then he gave audience to Cardinal Vannutelli, who represented the Pope at the recent Eucharistic Congress in Montreal, and received a kreese, or Philippine sword, from one of the dattos in the suite of the Sultan of Sulu.

Before the Cabinet met the President received confidential reports on the political situation from Representative Duncan McKinlay of California, Representative Kothermel of Pennsylvania, and Senator Warner of Missouri. Mr. McKinlay, who was defeated for renomination by an insurgent, has been touring the country to sound public sentiment and count up exactly how many members the Republicans will elect to the next House of Representatives. He talked confidently of a Republican majority, but his voice inclined rather low when he came to telling how big the majority would be.

The assembled Cabinet discussed the States which are to be visited by members of the Cabinet, who will make "keynote" speeches in the campaign. No announcement, however, was made as to the route marked out for any of the Cabinet speakers.

The general result of the talk about politics appears to be that the leaders are pessimistic about the outlook, and will not be surprised to meet with defeat at the hands of the Democrats.

The Cabinet is still the "house party" of the President, who has extended the "party" period until to-morrow instead of ending it this morning. Mr. Taft and his official family have waded through a vast deal of administrative detail, and they feel they have accomplished much. Another day was necessary in order to allow the completion of what they had laid out.

Other Congressional callers who were received at the White House before the Cabinet assembled for business were Representatives Graham of Pennsylvania, Austin of Tennessee, and Woodyard of West Virginia. Archbishop Blenk of the Catholic Diocese of Louisiana was also received.

The President at 10 o'clock received the delegates to the American Prison Association, which began its annual session to-night, and the delegates to the International Prison Congress, which convenes Monday. To the foreign delegates, who have been on a tour of the prisons of the United States, the President issued a caution against making prisons so comfortable as to furnish a motive for violating the law. He said that sometimes when he had visited the prisons of this Government he had thought they were stronger in theory than in practice. Mr. Taft expressed the hope, however, that this Government now had prisons that illustrated at least some of the improvements that the prison congress recommended. He said that Attorney General Wickersham, who had given some attention to the matter, would be at the coming conference to make and receive suggestions.

It was after luncheon that President Taft received Cardinal Vannutelli. The Cardinal was escorted to the White House by Archbishops Ireland and O'Connell. The Cardinal is an old friend of the President, having met him when the negotiations with the Vatican over the Friars' lands in the Philippines were going on.

The Cardinal on his arrival in Washington had been greeted by so many Catholics that the crowd filled the concourse of the station and choked its entrances. He had marched from the train through a lane of children, who waved American flags and sang "The Star-Spangled Banner" and hymns of the Church.

$1,000,000 NAVY SAVING.

Result of Competitive Economy Among Ships in Coal and Oil Consumption.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—A saving of approximately $1,000,000 was effected by the navy during the fiscal year of 1909-10 through economy in coal and lubricating oil as the result of an engineering competition among the warships.

To the battleship Nebraska has been awarded the trophy for achieving the best results at the least proportionate cost of any of the twenty-five battleships and armored cruisers competing. The Preble won the engineering trophy among nine competing torpedo boat destroyers.

The engineering force of the Nebraska will receive a pecuniary reward in addition to the trophy. Congress appropriated $5,000 to defray the expenses of the competition. Rear Admiral Evans inaugurated engineering competitions among ships of the battleship fleet at Rio de Janeiro on the famous trip around the world. So satisfactory were the results attained that Rear Admiral Sperry continued them when he succeeded Admiral Evans in command of the fleet.

The Montana was a close second to the Nebraska in the last competition, and she and the California and Mississippi, also close to the lead, will be classed as star ships.

Another competition will be started on Oct. 1, and trophies will be awarded to battleships, torpedoboat destroyers, and submarines. Congress has made an appropriation of $10,000 for the expenses of this friendly contest, which ends on July 1 next.

BIG PANAMA LANDSLIDE.

Another Slip In Culebra Cut Buries Tracks and Fills Ditch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—A big section of the Panama Canal cut was filled up by a great landslide on the night of Sept. 16. The earth and rocks not only covered up all of the tracks on the east side and filled the canal ditch, but spread over one track on the west side. The slide occurred in Culebra Cut, at Cucuracha, where the cut is deepest, and the inconvenience will continue until the end of the month.

There are 500,000 cubic yards of earth and rock slowly moving down the mountain side, and, having exhausted every other means to stop it, the engineers have made up their minds that all of this material, representing more than one-half of 1 per cent. of the total excavation in Culebra Cut, must be slowly dug out and removed.

Meantime wonderful performances by the steam shovel men at Panama are reported in the Canal Record. On the 15th instant sixteen shovels in the Culebra Cut excavated 27,797 cubic yards of material in an eight-hour day, breaking all records.

NEW GUNS FOR THE GEORGIA.

12-Inch Turret Rifles to be Replaced and the Muzzles Protected.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The Navy Department has decided to replace all the 12-inch turret guns on the battleship Georgia with new weapons. The latter will be banded clear up to the muzzle, thus effectually guarding against the muzzle being blown off, as happened recently to one of the Georgia's guns.

One of the new guns is already on the way from here, another is nearly completed at the Washington Navy Yard, and two others are at the Boston Navy Yard.

ALL JERSEY TAKES UP ESSAY CONTEST

Superintendent of the State Schools Directs All Pupils to Write on Bergen's History.

COMMENDS TIMES ARTICLES

Those by Daniel Van Winkle Practically Only Source of Information Available—Prizes and Conditions.

In a circular letter received by the County and City School Superintendents throughout New Jersey yesterday concerning the celebration in Jersey City next month of the 250th anniversary of the founding of Bergen Village, State School Supt. Charles J. Baxter directs that the schools of the State celebrate the event with compositions by the pupils on Wednesday, Oct. 19, and points out for ready information on the history of Bergen, the seven articles, by Daniel Van Winkle, which THE NEW YORK TIMES is to publish from Oct. 3 to 9, inclusive, as the bases of its awards to the pupils in the Jersey City schools.

As has been said already in THE NEW YORK TIMES, the first settlement made in the State of New Jersey was at Bergen in 1660; so that, though the settlement there has a distinctive local interest in Jersey City, it has a State-wide interest as the beginning of the history of the State. Ten days ago City School Supt. Henry Snyder of Jersey City advised the State School Superintendent of the approaching local observance of the anniversary, and suggested that its importance in the annals of the State might justify its observance in all the schools of the State. State Supt. Baxter was quick to see the value of the suggestion, and his circular to the County and City Superintendents all over the State is the result.

Supt. Baxter's Recommendation.

In his circular Mr. Baxter quotes Mr. Snyder's letter to him in full; quotes also a letter sent to him by THE NEW YORK TIMES calling attention to its purpose of printing the special historical articles, and makes these two communications the basis of this recommendation:

> Because of its educational value to the children of the State, I would recommend the observance of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Bergen in all the schools of the State on the afternoon of Wednesday, Oct. 19. No more interesting and profitable method of observing "Bergen Day" occurs to me than the the preparation and reading of compositions by such of the pupils as local school authorities shall assign said duty. I believe, however, that the character and length of the exercises may be safely left to the discretion of the districts.
> Besides the series of historical articles to be published in THE NEW YORK TIMES I would suggest as additional sources of information, wherever they shall be available, New Jersey School Report of 1879, pp. 83-58; Historical and Commercial Review of New Jersey, published in connection with the Jamestown Exposition, pp. 41-54, and Murray's History of Education in New Jersey, pp. 151-182.
>
> State Superintendent.

It may be added that the other sources of information referred to by Mr. Baxter are not accessible to the pupils in the schools of the State, to a very few of them at any rate, and that the circular letter practically points out the seven articles of Mr. Van Winkle to appear in THE NEW YORK TIMES as the readiest source of information for them, on the history of the earliest of the State's settlements.

These articles, thus commended to the attention of the school children of New Jersey, are those upon which the compositions of the competitors in the Jersey City schools for THE NEW YORK TIMES's awards are to be based. The awards to be made by THE TIMES to the Jersey City school children are repeated, as follows:

1. To the pupil in each class in the grammar department of the public and parochial schools writing the best composition, a Tiffany silver medal.
2. To the pupil writing the second best composition, an engraved certificate of merit.
3. To the pupil in each grade of the Jersey City High School offering the best composition, a cash prize of $10.
4. To the pupil in each grade of the Jersey City High School offering the second best composition, a cash prize of $5.
5. To the pupil in each grammar grade of the private schools offering the best composition, a Tiffany silver medal.
6. To the pupil in each grammar grade of the private schools offering the second best composition, an engraved certificate of merit.
7. To the teacher in each grade of the grammar departments of the public and chial, and High Schools, whose pupils shall produce the five best compositions, a cash prize of $10.

Only those who read Mr. Van Winkle's articles can qualify for the competition.

REBECCA H. DAVIS, NOVELIST, IS DEAD

Mother of Richard Harding Davis Dies at Her Son's Home in Mount Kisco, Aged 79.

WROTE FIRST STORY AT 19

"Life in the Iron Mills" Attracted Immediate Attention—Her Many Works —Widow of the Late L. C. Davis.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT KISCO, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Mrs. Rebecca Harding Davis, 79 years old, widow of the late L. Clarke Davis, at one time editor of The Philadelphia Public Ledger, mother of Richard Harding Davis, the novelist and dramatist, and herself a novelist and editorial writer of power, died here to-night of heart disease at Cross Roads Farm, the home of her son. She had been failing in health for some time, and came from her home in Philadelphia to be with her son early last Summer.

She was born in Washington, Penn., but when she was a girl her parents moved to Wheeling, West Va. In 1861 she sent to The Atlantic Monthly a story entitled "Life in the Iron Mills," depicting the grinding life of the working people around her. She was then less than 20 years old, but the story was accepted by the famous Mr. Ticknor, and was published anonymously. It attracted attention from all over the country. The next year The Atlantic published serially her story, "Margret Howth," still anonymously. After that she always signed her name.

Miss Harding's early writings attracted the attention of L. Clarke Davis of Philadelphia, at that time editor of The Law Reporter, who wrote to congratulate the young author upon her noteworthy achievements. Out of the correspondence sprang a strong friendship, which developed into love, and the couple were married in 1863. Mr. Davis was himself an occasional writer of fiction, though his chief work was that of a journalist.

Besides a number of short stories, which would fill several volumes, Mrs. Davis wrote "Waiting for the Verdict," "Dallas Galbraith," "John Andros," "A Law Unto Herself," "Earthen Pitchers," "Kitty's Choice," "Kent Hampden," "Natasqua," "Silhouettes of American Life," "Frances Waldeaux," "Dr. Warrick's Daughters," and "Bits of Gossip." In 1869 she accepted a position on the editorial staff of The New York Tribune, which she held for a number of years.

When "Life in the Iron Mills" appeared in The Atlantic Monthly many thought that the author must be a man. The stern but artistic realism of the picture she put alive upon paper suggested a man, and a man of a power not unlike Zola's.

JOHN LEE QUITS WHITE STAR.

Ill Health Causes Veteran Steamship Official to Resign.

John Lee, New York manager of the White Star Steamship Line and one of the Vice Presidents of the International Mercantile Marine Company, has decided to retire from active business. His retirement is due to ill health, chiefly a nervous breakdown. The Directors of the International Mercantile Marine Company have up to now refused to accept Mr. Lee's resignation, urging upon him that he take a long vacation instead, but upon advice of his physicians he will insist, it is said, that his resignation take effect as soon after Nov. 1 as possible.

Mr. Lee was born in Derbyshire, England, sixty years ago. After he was graduated from the Chesterfield Grammar School and the Collegiate Institute, at the age of 17, he was apprenticed to G. H. Fletcher Company, Liverpool, receiving for his services something like $100 a year. G. H. Fletcher, the senior partner of the Fletcher firm, and Thomas H. Ismay, were the founders of the White Star Line, and in 1867 Mr. Fletcher selected Mr. Lee to come to New York as the junior inward freight clerk for the line. The next year he was put in charge of the outward freight department of the line and became the company's representative on the Produce Exchange. In 1899 Mr. Lee was made general agent for the White Star Line for the United States and Canada.

The retirement of Mr. Lee will leave Vice President P. A. S. Franklin, with whom Mr. Lee as Vice President has been associated in the management of the affairs of the International Mercantile Marine Company on this side, in complete charge. F. Toppin, the company's Boston manager, will come to New York to be Mr. Franklin's assistant, and John H. Thomas, manager of the steamship department in New York, will go to Boston to fill the place left vacant by Mr. Toppin. F. W. Ridgway, Mr. Thomas's assistant here, will take his place.

NUISANCE IN SMOKING AUTOS.

An Appeal to Commissioner Lederle to Enforce the Law Against Them.

The nuisance of smoking automobiles was brought again before the Health Department by a meeting of representatives of the West End Association, the Women's Municipal League, and the National Highways Protective Society. This letter was dispatched yesterday to Health Commissioner Ernst J. Lederle:

> National Highways Protective Society,
> No. 46 East 29th Street,
> New York City, Sept. 29, 1910.
>
> Dear Sir: Last April the Board of Health amended the Sanitary Code so that automobile enginemen would be prohibited from causing dense smoke to be emitted from the exhaust pipes of automobiles that they are operating, the amendment to take effect July 1, so as to give sufficient time and warning to the operators of automobiles.
>
> At a meeting to-day of representatives of the West End Association, Women's Municipal League, and the National Highways Protective Society, it was voted that the Board of Health be publicly asked that immediately see that the provisions of this ordinance be rigidly enforced, as the nuisance is daily becoming greater and the smoke from automobiles is endangering the health and damaging the person and property of our citizens. Very truly yours,
> EDWARD S. CORNELL,
> For the Committee.

> Dr. ERNST J. LEDERLE,
> Health Commissioner, City of New York.

THIS IS RICE DAY IN TEXAS.

Travelers and Sojourners There Will Find Little Else to Eat.

Special to The New York Times.

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 29.—To-morrow will be Rice Day in Texas, and a conspiracy has been entered into by the railroads, the hotels, the restaurants, and even the free-lunch counters to offer little else to eat on that day. The patriotic householders will, of course, serve rice anyhow. They always do, and speak about its manifold virtues to guests, particularly those from outside the State who are not supposed to know all the good qualities of the cereal as grown in Texas.

Perhaps fifty railroads runninig in and out of Texas have agreed to serve rice on their dining cars. Much benefit is expected from their doing so, for there will be many people who cannot know how good Texas rise is properly cooked. The dining car chefs have been instructed in twenty or more ways of cooking rice. It will be useless for a man on a train to try to escape the rice menu by dashing into a railroad lunch room. He will find all the varieties of rice dishes there, too, and a cook book full of rice recipes will be pushed into his hands.

The institution of Rice Day is due to the fact that last year rice production in Texas was such that it far exceeded the demand and prices went down. The object is to make the demand aproach the production. The Texas Rice Growers' Association, the Business League, and the railroads started the campaign to name Sept. 30 Rice Day.

DIAMOND NECKLACE GONE.

Waldorf Guest Offers $100 for It In The Times Lost Column.

When she was at the theatre on Wednesday night a woman guest of the Waldorf-Astoria discovered that a diamond necklace she had been wearing had disappeared. So anxious was she to find it that she left the theatre with her party, drove back to the hotel, and started the waiters searching about the table where they had dined. Her efforts falling there, some trace of the neckpiece was sought in the taxicab in which they had ridden and in the dining room of the Hotel Knickerbocker, where they had stopped for a short time.

The piece of jewelry was not found, however, and its owner is now endeavoring to trace it through THE TIMES Lost column. It is described as a diamond neckpiece set in platinum, with three pearl pendants on platinum. A reward of $100 is offered for its return through the cashier of the Waldorf-Astoria.

SAM SHUBERT THEATRE.

New Brooklyn Playhouse to be Opened on Oct. 17 with Eddie Foy.

The new Shubert theatre in Brooklyn, at Broadway and oMnroe Street, is completed and will be opened on Oct. 17 with Eddie Foy in "Up and Down Broadway" as the first attraction. The house will be called the Sam S. Shubert Theatre.

The building runs through from Monroe to Madison Street, with the main part of the theatre on the latter street. The Monroe Street side will be devoted to non-theatrical purposes. The lobby, main entrance and box office, however, will be on this street.

The seating capacity of the auditorium is a little more than 1,800, divided among the orchestra, balcony, gallery and twelve boxes. The interior decorations are gold and old rose. The balconies are supported by cantilever trusses and there are no posts in the auditorium.

The stage is 72 feet wide and 45 feet deep. The proscenium measures 32 feet in width and height. There are sixteen dressing rooms in the rear of the stage, separated by fire walls.

The building in front of the theatre is seven stories high. The ground floor is to be devoted to a café and restaurant with a rathskeller in the basement. A banquet hall will occupy the second floor, bachelor apartments and offices will have the fourth floor, and lodge rooms will be on the fifth. The sixth and seventh will be used as a ball room, with a miniature stage for amateur performances. The building has cost about $500,000 to erect, and is owned by the Monroe Investing Company, composed almost entirely of Brooklyn men.

IRVING PLACE THEATRE OPENS

German Actors Present "The Smugglers," and Are Warmly Greeted.

The opening of the season at the Irving Place German Theatre last night was made an important social event by the German patrons of the house. There were flowers for most of the principal members of the new stock company, for the old ones, and for Director Burgarth, who had to make a speech at the end of the third act.

The opening play was "Die Schmuggler" ("The Smugglers,") an Alsacian comedy in four acts, by Dr. Arthur Dinter, and the audience seemed to find it very amusing. The principal rôles were played by Adolf Kuehns, Georgine Neuendorf, Ella Robba, Heinrich Oesfeld, Carl Neumann, Eugene Hohenwart, Henry Volmers and Robert Brein. The actors entered into the spirit of the piece with enthusiasm.

"Die Schmuggler" will be continued for the rest of this week and a part of next, while preparations are being made for the first comic opera production, which will be "Der Rastelbinder" ("The Rat Trap Peddler,") by Victor Leon and Franz Lehar.

MAHLER'S EIGHTH SYMPHONY

Stock May Produce It In Chicago Before Composer Presents It Here.

Frederick Stock, the conductor of the Theodore Thomas Orchestra of Chicago, who is in New York on his way back to Chicago from Munich, said that he might produce Gustav Mahler's eighth symphony in Chicago before the composer presented it here.

"While the success of the symphony in Munich was to some extent due to the manner in which the composer directed," said Mr. Stock last night, "the work itself made a tremendous impression on me. It is really more like a symphonic cantata than a symphony. It is divided into two movements, of which the first lasts about twenty-five minutes and the second about fifty-five. It is choral throughout, but the treatment of both solo and choir voices is more orchestral than vocal."

CLARA MORRIS HOLDS HOME.

Husband Says Sufficient Sum Has Been Raised to Clear Mortgage.

F. C. Harriott, husband of Clara Morris, last night denied the report that the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company had given them notice to remove at once from their home, the Pines. The company holds a mortgage on the property, payment on which is long past due. The amount of this mortgage is $27,000.

Thomas C. Feltnor of 67 Wall Street and other admirers of the noted actress took it upon themselves to organize a Clara Morris holding company recently, the object of it being to lift the mortgage.

"We have no fear whatever about being put out," said Mr. Harriott, "having been assured that sufficient money has been raised to clear our debt."

Miss Morris is still confined to her bed, blind, and with her aged mother in constant attendance. Among her recent visitors was Col. Henry Watterson, an old friend.

Mr. Gillmore appeared with Mrs. Fiske in "Becky Sharpe," "Tess of the d'Urbervilles," and other plays, and has since been with George Fawcett, Forbes Robertson, Henrietta Crosman, Mary Mannering, and Elsie Ferguson.

In the production of "The Merry Wives of Windsor," Edith Wynne Matthison will be seen as Mistress Ford, Rose Coghlan as Mistress Page, and Louis Calvert as Falstaff.

Frohman, Klaw & Erlanger announced yesterday that they had closed a lease for a new theatre in Vancouver, British Columbia, to be ready for occupancy by the first of next July. The house will have a seating capacity of 1,600. This firm has now obtained theatres in Seattle, Portland, Victoria, Vancouver, and Butte, and Marc Klaw, who is on a Western tour for this purpose, is now in Spokane.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

The date of the opening of Marie Cahill in "Judy Forgot," at the Broadway Theatre, has been changed from Tuesday to Thursday, Oct. 6.

Liebler & Co., in conjunction with the Shuberts, have closed a contract by which they will manage the tours of Olga Nethersole for the next two years. Miss Nethersole will appear in a repertoire of the plays in which she has been starring for several years, and will also have at least one new play.

William Morris announced yesterday that he was arranging to present a Christmas pantomime ballet during the holidays this year similar to those given at the London music halls. His present plan is to make a production of "Cinderella."

WASHINGTON ACTS ON BERLIN ASSAULT

State Department Asks Embassy for Report of Attack on Times Correspondent.

MORE WOUNDED LAST NIGHT

But Rioting Was Less Serious Than Previously—Seventy-three Persons Badly Hurt on Wednesday.

BERLIN, Sept. 29.—There were renewed disturbances in connection with the coal strike in the Moabit Precinct this evening, but they were slight compared with the rioting of the two preceding days.

A strong force of police, fifty of whom were armed with carbines, prevented gatherings in the streets, which were more crowded than ever. The authorities strictly enforced the closing of doors and windows of all houses.

Several minor skirmishes occurred, some shots being fired and about twenty persons being seriously wounded.

The Minister of the Interior, Herr von Dallwitz, remained on the scene for several hours.

At midnight all was quiet.

It was officially reported to-day that seventy-three persons were wounded severely in the conflicts between the coal strikers and the police last night. As usual, nearly all the hundreds who were arrested were released later on their own recognizance. Twelve alleged ringleaders were held.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The State Department to-day took prompt action in regard to the assault last night in Berlin on Frederick Wile, correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES, who, in company with the correspondents of The Sun, The World, and The Reuter Telegram Agency, was attacked and badly beaten by Berlin policemen armed with swords.

Mr. Wile is an American citizen, accredited at the German Foreign Office as a newspaper correspondent, and he and his colleagues were all supplied with police passes entitling the to go at will through the disturbed district.

The details of the assault on Mr. Wile were laid before the State Department this afternoon by the correspondent here of THE NEW YORK TIMES. Though Secretary Knox is in Washington and attends the daily Cabinet meetings at the White House, he goes but rarely to the Department of State, and is not technically in charge. Mr. Adee is Acting Secretary of State, and he at once asked Julius Taylor, Chief of the Diplomatic Bureau, to prepare a telegram to the American Embassy at Berlin inquiring into the matter.

The telegram set forth the alleged details and asked that the embassy make a full investigation and report as soon as possible. Dr. David Jayne Hill, the Ambassador, is not now in Berlin, and the cablegram will probably be received by Mr. Laughlin, the First Secretary. A day or two will, it is expected, elapse before a reply is received.

The ordinary procedure in such cases is for the embassy to lay the allegations of the complainant before the Foreign Office and to ask for an explanation. The Foreign Office will in turn call upon the Department of the Interior, which, in Germany as in most Continental countries, controls the domestic police. The Interior Department will get explanations from the police officials immediately in charge at the point where the outrage occurred, and after the report is turned over to the Foreign Office it will be discussed in detail with the complaining diplomat.

ACCIDENT INSURANCE RULING.

New York and Massachusetts Direct Modification of Policy Forms.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 29.—The Insurance departments of New York and Massachusetts to-day issued a circular of rulings and suggestions relative to the forms of health and accident policies to be filed with such departments for approval. The so-called uniform health and accident provision bill became a law in these States through action of their Legislatures of 1910; it will probably become a law in many of the States next year. Its purpose is to standardize certain provisions in insurance policies of this class and to prevent the use of other provisions that have been found unsatisfactory or delusive. The rulings and suggestions given out to-day phrase for the insurance companies the so-called nine standard provisions and indicate the views of the departments as to certain other provisions generally found in policies of this kind. Two notable changes in the practice of health and accident companies will probably be accomplished as a result of these rulings.

Heretofore it has been the custom of most casualty companies to dispense with applications signed by the proposed insured, but in lieu thereof there has been printed on the back of the policies so-called schedules of warranties, purporting to be statements made by the insured at the time of the application but in reality filled in by the agent, and to the truth of which the insured is bound by the terms of the policy on its being accepted and paid for by him. The two departments have ruled that this practice must be stopped; that schedules of warranties will no longer be permitted; and that, while casualty policies can be written without formal application, if there is a written application, it must be signed by the insured. It is also suggested to the companies that the application forms be so phrased as to direct the attention of the insured specifically to the representations made therein.

It has also been the custom of companies of this class to insert clauses in their policies to the effect that the issuance of a new policy on the same insured shall cancel every prior policy written by the same company. Inasmuch as the insured has by the terms of the old policy often acquired a vested interest in certain benefits that he could not get from the new policy, it has been thought wise to suggest the reversal of the rule. Hence, the departments suggest that there be inserted in all new policies written after January 1, next, a clause to the effect that such policy shall be void in case the company already has a policy on the insured, unless the new policy contains an indorsement to the effect that the prior policy may be continued in force.

The time for the companies to file their 1911 policy forms has been extended to October 15th.

Transit Student's 20-Day Trip Costs Him $33.10 in Fares.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 29.—A journey of 1,193 miles by trolley in twenty days, at a cost of just $33.10 for car fare, is the record reported by Henry E. Juergens of this city, who has just returned from such a trip to the New England States.

Juergens is a student of trolley transportation, and took copious notes, keeping exact figures of the cost. The distances he computed were: Trolley, direct, 1,193 miles; side trips, 250 miles; steam railroads, 469 miles; hack, one mile, and walking, aggregating twenty days, 87 miles.

The trip took him from Pittsburg, through the States of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, and Massachusetts. With the exception of five short breaks, he made the entire circuit by trolley.

It is his opinion that interurban electric traffic is improving so rapidly that the long-distance trolley trip will soon become both practical and popular.

SUES FOR 'HEROD' COSTUMES

Faversham Paid One-Half the Bill, but Isman Repudiated the Other.

Maurice Hermann, a theatrical costumer, has brought suit for $6,680 against William Faversham and Felix Isman, for an unpaid balance on the costumes of "Herod." Hermann says Faversham paid him $6,000 on a bill for $12,680, and referred him to Isman for the remainder.

Isman in his answer, says he knows nothing about the transaction.

The Opinion of Experts

If you have money to invest, you should focus your attention upon the situation now existing in the bond market. Prices of high-grade bonds are lower than they have been for a long time, notwithstanding that the value and earning power of the properties securing the bonds were never greater than at present. If, as is predicted by experts, lower interest rates are to prevail once the crops are moved, high-grade bonds purchased now are certain to prove profitable investments.

If you are especially interested in Railroad Bonds, write for our Circular No. 821. If you prefer high-grade Corporation Bonds yielding about 5%, write for Circular No. 823.

Improvement

The bond market shows indications of broadening, prices of investment bonds are slightly higher, and bonds are becoming scarcer. However, many safe first mortgage bonds are still obtainable to yield from 5% to 7%.

For instance, we offer a First Mortgage Steam Railroad Bond to yield 5.20%. The road is bonded at $8,000 a mile, and net earnings for the year ended June 30, 1910, were about 3 times interest charges. The country served is fertile and productive, and the road's freight revenue is largely derived from the transportation of agricultural products.

Action of English Bank in Advancing Rate Abruptly to 4 Per Cent. Arouses Interest in Situation as a Whole.

As had been expected the Directors of the Bank of England decided yesterday to advance the discount rate of that institution, which has stood at 3 per cent. since June last. Some elevation in the rate as a result of the increased demands upon the Bank, particularly the more or less temporary ones involved in the October settlements and the Egyptian gold remittances, had been looked for for several weeks, but the consensus of opinion had been that the advance would be from 3 per cent. to 3½ per cent.; the further addition, which brings the official quotation up to 4 per cent., had up to the opening of this week been in no one's mind, at least on this side. In that fact lies the only source of the least uneasiness over the money outlook. If the decision to make the advance a full 1 per cent. was based upon the prospect of an enlarged demand for money owing to the action of the German Bank in advancing its rate by that much the case is clear enough, but on the other hand if the Directors of the English institution see something more than this in the money situation then there is undoubtedly reason for extreme conservatism among our own bankers until the source of their inquietude is revealed. We have in prospect here the financing of $170,000,000 of October disbursements, a strong demand for funds from the South and Southwest and Canada, and, further along, the moving of the rapidly maturing corn crop and the carrying of the year's cotton harvest until the existing deadlock with foreign financiers over cotton bills is broken or in some way circumvented. On routine transactions with the Government since Friday last local institutions have lost above $8,000,000, and if the interior movement has been as heavy as it was a week ago and no material reduction in the borrowings has been effected heavy inroads will be made upon reserves.

It is obvious that there is no room in the money market situation for an excited stock market speculation. Bankers are very keenly alive to this fact, and it is quite probable that their intimations have had as much to do with the tendency of the trading to move back into a dull and narrow rut as have politics or any other current factors in the general financial situation. Yesterday the trading was quiet save in a limited number of specialities, while accompanying the sober trend of the dealings there was witnessed again the underlying strength quite justified by all conditions other than those political. It cannot be repeated too often that in the face of the demands from all other sources money markets require quiet stock markets for some time to come if the Autumn is to be marked by no real stringency.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

BOSTON, Sept.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Specialties Market's Feature.

The market was one of specialties, with the activity and strength in this department centring upon such issues as Western Union, American Beet Sugar, and Consolidated Gas. Traders were willing to follow the speculation in these stocks because of the dullness in the rest of the market, and their uncertainty regarding the immediate future of prices in general, whereas they found plausible reasons for strength in the specialties, including their good earnings and their freedom of the broader influences affecting the market as a whole. For the reports regarding an early resumption of dividends on Western Union there was not the least encouragement in official quarters, but traders even professed pleasure over a programme of conservatism, and based their participation in the buying on the safe ground that the company has benefited much from its affiliation with the parent telephone company, and must continue to appreciate in market value as time goes on and the fruits of co-operation increase.

Then and Now.

The listing of $27,000,000 of the capital stock of the Texas Company, which is John W. Gates's progressive young oil concern, with headquarters at Port Arthur, has aroused interest and revived memories. There are in Wall Street a good many former followers of the house of Gates, who profess to believe that the speculative opportunities so often presented to them in the past by Mr. Gates's activities in a market way will be renewed now that his pet company is safely ensconsed on the Stock Exchange. Such expectations seem, however, in a fair way to disappointment. However unchanged the old following may be, there has come over their leader a metamorphosis not unlike that recorded of Prince Hal in his relations with Falstaff. Mr. Gates spends weeks on end in Texas, attending strictly to business. He has interested many of the most conservative men of the country in his Texas project; when in New York he drives quietly to and from business in an inconspicuous closed car; his interviews upon arrival from foreign shores are models of conservatism, and no one has heard of his offering to "bet a million" on any project for at least three years. In short, he has concentrated upon the Texas Company, and the results have been surprising. The stock, with a par of $100, sells around 135; it has paid a handsome stock dividend only recently and disburses 12 per cent. per annum as a regular thing, while its earnings, submitted to the Stock Exchange in connection with the listing, show a surplus for the year ended June 30 last amounting to $1,100,000 after the payment of $1,562,000 in dividends. It is almost safe to predict for the shares a future rivaling in sobriety and dignity that of, say, St. Paul preferred.

Chicago Expects Rate Compromise.

In the course of the rate hearings in Chicago, Wall Street has heard a good deal of gossip from there about the probable action of the commission. Dispatches yesterday quoted an anonymous official of the commission as expressing the opinion that the railroads would get about two-thirds of what they had asked. The increases proposed are estimated to bring the average rates up to 90 cents per hundred, against the existing average of about 75 cents. The compromise now predicted is that many of the proposed increases will be approved, bringing the average up to about 83 cents per hundred.

The Interborough Financing.

Although official information is still lacking, it is believed that the announcement of the new financing of the Interborough-Metropolitan by the Morgan-First National-National City banking group will not now be long delayed. The matter was again a subject of discussion in the Street yesterday, and it was agreed that at present the funds to be supplied will take no account of new subway construction. This agrees with the original conception of the banking associates' intentions. When it was first made known that representatives of J. P. Morgan & Co., the First National Bank, and the National City Bank were to go into the Inter.-Met. board and that new financing was about to be undertaken it was suggested that the money at present raised would be used for treasury purposes, and possibly for the elevated third-tracking and extensions, about which negotiations with the Public Service Commission are practically completed. There are some $25,000,000 of notes falling due next year, the refunding of which must soon be provided for. Of these the Interborough Rapid Transit Company has $23,359,000, due May 1, 1911, and there are some $2,549,400 notes of the Inter.-Met. which were extended from last July for another year.

Speculation in Cotton Active Again.

Interest in the new cotton crop from the speculative point of view promises to be as great as that which developed during last season's bull campaign. The speculation in the new crop has been on an increasing scale, and yesterday's market was estimated at more than 400,000 bales. The bad news from the cotton fields contained in the private reports of conditions which have been coming in for a week has stirred up something of a crop scare, and there seems to be no doubt that much of the money made on the bull side last season is going back into the market. The Government report of condition is due Monday.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—As had been anticipated, the Bank of England raised its discount rate to 4 per cent. to-day. The advance was due chiefly to the large outflow of gold to Egypt and Turkey, the prospective Indian demand, and the fact that the weekly arrivals are being steadily absorbed by the Continent. The recent advance in the German bank rate and yesterday's smart rise in market discounts hastened the Bank's decision.

Money was to-day in shorter supply and dearer. Discount rates were steady.

Although the settlement was concluded and no failures were announced, business on the Stock Exchange failed to improve. Prices moved irregularly, the effect of the advance in the Bank rate being discounted yesterday. Gilt-edged securities and Kaffirs were steady and foreigners easy, while home rails strengthened on dividend announcements.

After ruling dull and featureless, American securities advanced in the afternoon on Wall Street support and closed firm.

Bar silver steady at 24 13-16d per ounce.

Money, 2@2½ per cent.; rate of discount in the open market for short bills, 3½@3⅝ per cent.; for three months' bills, 3⅝@3¾ per cent.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: At Madrid, 6.95; at Lisbon, 8.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—The tone of the Bourse was steady to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 97f 17½c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 25c for checks. Private rate of discount, 2⅞ per cent.

BERLIN, Sept. 29.—Trading on the Boerse was quiet to-day, with prices firm. Exchange on London, 20 marks 48½ pfennigs for checks.

Money for short term, 6¼ per cent. Private rate of discount, 4¼ per cent.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

A $250,000 Deal in Old Greenwich Village—Negotiations Pending for Sale of Northeast Corner of 52d St. and Broadway—Thompson House on Madison Ave. Leased to Protect Adjoining Building.

One of the most important transactions in the realty market yesterday was the sale of the Llewellyn Realty Company's property in the old Greenwich Village section.

The property, which is a six-story building, occupying a plot 75 by 118, on the northeast corner of Washington and Eleventh Streets, was purchased by the R. & S. Realty Company.

The property was held at $250,000, and is under a fifteen-year lease to the Italian-Swiss Wine Colony at an annual rental of $18,000. The sale was negotiated by the Consolidated Board of Brokers.

Another sale in the heart of the old village was made by the estate of Maria Slinger, which sold through Manheimer Brothers 317 West Tenth Street, a five-story double flat, on a lot 25 by 94.

Deal On for Broadway Corner.

Negotiations are pending, it was learned yesterday, for the sale of the old Strathmore and Adelphi apartment houses, occupying the northeast corner of Broadway and Fifty-second Street, a plot 75.10 on Broadway and 94.4 feet on the street. The former house, which occupies the corner, is a nine-story structure, and the Adelphi, adjoining on Fifty-second Street, is five stories in height. The Hobart Estate Company, a San Francisco concern, acquired the properties in 1889. The prospective sale of a plot of such dimensions in that section of Broadway is of interest as showing the continued demand for property in the district between Times Square and Fifty-ninth Street for high-class improvements.

Madison Avenue Lease to Protect Adjoining Building.

A new sign went up on the residence owned by Ferris M. Thompson, on the southeast corner of Madison Avenue and Forty-first Street, yesterday, which, as exclusively told in THE NEW YORK TIMES of the preceding day, has been leased for the owner by Pease & Elliman. The new sign bears the name of S. Osgood Pell & Co., and states that the residence is again for lease.

The Osgood Pell Company acted as broker for the new lessee, Charles M. Warner of the Warner Sugar Refining Company of Syracuse, President and chief owner of the adjoining plot on Forty-first Street, having a sixty-foot frontage, upon which a twelve-story physicians' office building is nearing completion. The lease has been made, it was stated, for three years, with an option of purchase. Mr. Warner and his associates acquired the property as a protective measure to prevent the corner being taken for a tall business structure in the future and to insure ample light and air for the new building on the easterly side. While the corner residence will be leased for a short time for dwelling purposes, it was learned that no objection will be raised toward the use of the fine Madison Avenue house for a quiet, refined business, such as an art store or something similar. In view of the steady commercial encroachments down the avenue from Forty-second Street, it is the general belief that the house will eventually be taken by a business concern for high-class retail trade, such as is now seen to a large extent in the side streets between Fifth and Madison Avenues.

That a business value is being placed upon the house is seen from the fact that the option to purchase is based at about $300,000, a high price at the present time in that locality for a plot of 23.8 by 85 feet.

Laura A. Cregan has sold 309 West Fiftieth Street, a three-story dwelling, on lot 19.2 by 100.5.

The Schloss estate has sold 228 West Thirty-sixth Street, a three-story and basement dwelling, on lot 20 by 98.9.

Frank Gulden has purchased the private residence at 61 East Ninety-first Street, on lot 17 by -00.8, for occupancy.

Investor Buys West Side Flat.

John K. Moors and John T. Wall have sold the five-story flat, with store, at 186 West 102d Street for Antonio Rossi to Henry N. Boehack for investment.

The Brown Realty Company has bought from Alice Blaine and August Nedeling 215 West 148th Street, a five-story flat, on plot 37.5 by 99.11.

Big Fifth Avenue Lease.

The lease was recorded yesterday for a term of twenty-one years of the Charles A. Gould house, at 714 Fifth Avenue, between Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth Streets, to Francois & Joseph de Apòturno of Paris, a perfumery firm. The rental varies from $20,000 to $25,000 a year. THE FINEST RESIDENTIAL BUILDING IN THE WORLD

ALWYN COVRT

These apartments express every exclusive and luxurious feature of the finest private residence.

The rooms are all light—many of the suites having four exposures. In most of the suites all of the sleeping and living rooms face the street, none open on the court. The entertaining rooms, including a Living Room 19x30, Music Room 25x17, Library or Billiard Room 18x17, and Reception Room 15x21, are arranged around a uniquely constructed conservatory. Any number of large closets—one specially for millinery, etc., divided into glass-partitioned compartments—open off from the sleeping rooms.

A kitchen 13x20, probably the largest in any apartment house in New York, completely fitted out, and excellent accommodations for the servants, largely eliminate the servant troubles. Additional rooms can be rented.

Inspect one or two of the apartments that we have remaining for lease at $6,500 and $7,000—suites including eleven to fourteen rooms and five bathrooms—and you will immediately realize the many decided advantages of these apartments over all others in New York.

Leland Stanford University Books—Get Free Entry—Other Decisions.

A decision was handed down by the Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday sustaining the contention of the American Express Company for the free entry of books ordered from abroad by the Leland Stanford University. The Collector of Customs at Boston denied free entry and exacted a duty of 25 per cent. under paragraph 416 of the tariff act of 1909, which specifies "books of all kinds, not specially provided for."

An appeal then followed to the board. The books include bound volumes of the Westminster Review from the foundation of the publication in 1824 to 1908. The volumes are numbered from 1 to 170, and are valued at several thousands of dollars. Judge Waite, who writes the decision for the board, holds that all of the volumes are entitled to free entry, either as books more than twenty years old, or as being books imported by and for the use of an educational institution. The Collector's classification is accordingly reversed.

A decision has been handed down by the board in the case of the Harrison Supply Company, overruling claims made for lower duty on so-called "Tam o' Shanter hone stone assorted," and "Tam o' Shanter hone stone scrap." The Custom House authorities returned the merchandise for duty as unenumerated manufactured articles under the tariff act of 1897, at 20 per cent. ad valorem. The local appraiser reported to the board that the articles are used for polishing the surfaces of monuments. Judge Waite affirms the assessment made by the Collector, and denies claims for a reduction in duty under the provisions for waste, hones, and whetstones, or stone and sand. General Appraiser Howell handed down a decision for the board, in which a contention raised by F. Ludewig & Co. and other importers was overruled. The goods in question consisted of cotton laces and other articles which were returned by Appraiser Wanmaker as having been made on the Lever, or Gothrough machine. Duty was assessed at the rate of 70 per cent. as provided for under paragraph 350 of the Payne act. The protests were submitted to the board on the record, and without the submission of additional testimony. The General Appraiser remarks that there is nothing in the record to warrant a disturbance of the return made by the Appraiser.

FINANCING BRADEN COPPER.

The Stockholders Asked to Approve $2,000,000 Collateral Trust Bond Issue.

New financing has been planned by the Braden Copper Company on which stockholders are to vote Oct. 8. It is the company's purpose to issue $2,000,000 second collateral trust mortgage 7 per cent. five-year convertible bonds and to increase the capital stock from 2,000,000 to 2,400,000 shares of $5 par. The increase in the stock is to provide for the conversion privilege of the bonds. Of the new bonds it is planned to hold $1,000,000 in the treasury for enlargement of the company's reduction works when conditions warrant, and $1,000,000 will be issued immediately to obtain funds for general business extension. The bonds are to be offered to stockholders at par and may be called at 110.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

ROBINSON & ROSE.—Judge Holt has appointed Frank J. Waldeyer receiver for Robinson & Rose, (corporation,) tailors, at 150 East 125th Street. Bond, $1,500.

SAMET & SCHOEN CORNICE, SKYLIGHT AND METAL WORKS, a corporation, at 4,187 Park Avenue, Bronx, has made an assignment to Isaac Siegel. Liabilities are $1,777 and nominal assets $1,917.

HARRES PERELMUTER.—Harres Perelmuter of 400 Grand Street has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $5,029 and no assets. Among the creditors are Israel Karp, Morris Politziner, and J. L. Weller.

SOL. ABRAMS.—Judge Holt has granted a discharge from bankruptcy to Sol. Abrams, jobber in cotton goods and velvets, of 223 Church Street, against whom a petition in bankruptcy was filed on Nov. 6, 1909.

JOHN THAIN.—John Thain of 43 West 128th Street has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $4,441 and no assets. Among the creditors are Nathaniel Wise, William F. Cushing, and Delamater Iron Works.

FERRIS MILK AND CREAM COMPANY.—Judge Holt has appointed Edwin B. Root receiver for the Ferris Milk and Cream Company of 514 West Thirty-sixth Street. Bond, $3,000. He is authorized to hire out the horses and trucks. The Sheriff is also restrained from selling any of the property under execution in his hands.

THOMAS CONVILLE BREWING COMPANY.—Judge Holt has appointed A. Gordon Murray and John Conville receivers for the Thomas Conville Brewing Company of 328 East Forty-sixth Street, under bonds of $75,000, on application of Blumenstiel & Blumenstiel, and authorized them to carry on the business for thirty days.

ROYAL COTTON GOODS COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against David Levin, Morris Levin, and Louis Slonimsky, trading as the Royal Cotton Goods Company, jobbers in cotton goods at 40 West Third Street, by J. Richman & Co. and H. Miller & Co. Liabilities are $5,000 and assets $450.

INTERVALE ELECTRIC COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Intervale Electric Company, electrical contractors and dealers in electrical supplies at Yonkers, by the Fullerton Electric Company, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, W. R. Ostrander & Co., and the Central Electric Supply Company. Liabilities are over $1,000 and assets $700.

CARPENTER KERLIN GEAR AND MACHINE COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Carpenter Kerlin Gear and Machine Company, importers of machinery and manufacturers of gears for automobiles, of 77 White Street, by William Lenz, Jr., of Zernickow, and R. A. Rung. It was alleged that the company transferred accounts to the Coal and Iron National Bank. Liabilities are $30,000 and assets $8,000. The company acted as selling agents for French and German machinery.

RUDOLPH NOEL & CO.—Creditors of Rudolph Noel & Co., diamond dealers of 37 Maiden Lane, against whom a petition in bankruptcy was filed on Aug. 31, have been unable to find Rudolph Noel, the senior partner, and Attorney Samuel Blumberg has obtained an order from Judge Holt to publish the summons for him to appear on Oct. 13 to answer or demur to the petition. He resided at 143 West 140th Street, and he is supposed to have gone to Chicago. Jesse Watson, the receiver, was informed that three weeks before the bankruptcy petition was filed Noel went to Chicago with diamonds and mounted jewelry worth over $10,000 and disposed of the greater part of them. It was also stated that a large quantity of goods were purchased within a few weeks prior to the bankruptcy proceedings, and the greater part disposed of and the proceeds secreted. The liabilities are estimated at $50,000.

NICOLO ARBOLINO.—Judge Holt has granted a discharge from bankruptcy to Nicolo Arbolino, butcher of 2,233 Second Avenue, who filed a petition in bankruptcy on Jan. 22 last to get rid of a judgment for $1,964 obtained against him by the State Excise Commissioner as surety on a bond for a liquor license for Pietro Fumo for a saloon at 2,218 Second Avenue. Maynard N. Clement, State Excise Commissioner, opposed his discharge because he transferred his real estate at 326 East 100th Street to his wife a few weeks after he went on the bond. Stanley W. Dexter, referee in bankruptcy, recommended a discharge on the ground that the Excise Commissioner was not a creditor at the time of the transfer of the real estate, and did not become a creditor until the entry of the judgment on Jan. 8, 1910. Until then the surety's liability was purely contingent. The Judge in granting the discharge said it was without prejudice to the rights of the trustee in the action pending to recover the property, and all expenses are to be paid by the bankrupt.

BRICKLAYERS START BUILDING TIE-UP

Unions Call Out Members and Employers Declare Lockout of Those Who Stayed at Work.

OTHER TRADES INVOLVED

Construction Work in This and Other Cities Likely to be Halted Until Strike Is Settled.

Practically all the bricklayers in the city are either on strike or have been locked out. A dispute is in progress between the bricklayers' unions and the Mason Builders' Association, which takes in all the main builders of the city, and not a brick will be laid for them to-day. This means that sooner or later the work on all important buildings in the city will come to an end. As soon as the construction has reached a point at which bricklayers must work, the other trades must perforce be idle.

Moreover, the fight between the bricklayers' union and the Mason Builders' Association has spread to other parts of the country. Many of the large New York builders have contracts in other cities, and in these the local bricklayers have struck in sympathy with their New York brethren. It was announced yesterday at the forenoon meeting of the bricklayers that work had thus been voluntarily stopped in Chicago, Pittsburg, Kansas City, Denver, Portland, Ore.; Salt Lake City, San Francisco, and Seattle. In addition a number of contracts in New Jersey have been tied up through sympathetic strikes. Altogether the strikers reckon that outside the city there are not less than 7,000 of their trade who have thrown down their tools.

Bricklayers' Union 7, the last of the three local organizations which were not included in the lockout declared by the Mason Builders' Association, yesterday declared officially that they were on strike. As a matter of fact, however, the members had not waited for the announcement, but had already gone on strike without orders like the other two unions against whom no lockout had been declared.

In all, thirteen bricklayers' unions were idle yesterday and two meetings of the unions were held at the Labor Temple in East Eighty-fourth Street. No one was admitted, who could not show his union card, and resolutions were passed to keep up the fight till the Mason Builders' Association withdrew its support from F. T. Nesbit & Co., the strike against whom, the union men say, caused the lock-out. The master builders, on the other hand, maintain that the Nesbit & Co. dispute is merely an incident in the situation, and the real fight deals with a far more important question.

The Mason Builders' Association holds that the bricklayers have violated their agreements and wish to interfere with the plastering. They held a special meeting last night to consider the latest phases of the dispute. F. E. Conover, President of the association, said:

"We have letters to show that the bricklayers want to control the plastering work. They propose to classify the plastering, and if we were to give in we should have strikes of the operative plasterers in every city where we have contracts in the United States."

Arthur Stone, Treasurer of the Mason Builders' Association, took the same view of the matter. He declared that it was absurd to suppose that the fight of Nesbit & Co. was important enough to account for the attitude assumed by the international officers of the bricklayers, and there could be no doubt that whatever the bricklayers might say, they wanted to meddle with the plastering.

The International Union is now taking command of the fight on the part of the bricklayers, and it is probable that the local organization, the New York District Council, will be superseded by a body more under the control of the National organization. President Bowen and Vice President Preece of the international are here, and Peter Shaughnessy, President of Local 21 of Chicago, has also come to the city to inquire into the justification for the dispute.

A mass meeting of bricklayers will be held on Sunday at the Grand Central Palace to which the Mason Builders' Association will be invited to send representatives. On the other hand the Mason Builders' Association has appointed a special committee to take charge of the employers' end of the fight.

SUES FOR GIFT BONDS.

White's Former Housekeeper Says He Let Her Have Them Before His Death.

Supreme Court Justice Benjamin Vail, in Jersey City, yesterday, granted a nonsuit in the case of Mrs. Caroline White of 251 West 145th Street, this city, against Francis J. Baird of Sea Girt, N. J., for the recovery of five one-thousand-dollar bonds of the Union Parchment and Wax Paper Company of Hamburg, N. J. This was done at the request of Mrs. White's lawyer, John Milton of Jersey City, who has agreed to pay to Mr. Baird $1,000, and then start a suite for the recovery of the bonds.

Mrs. Caroline White, who says that she was housekeeper for Leslie White, who developed White Terrace in Newark, says that White prior to his death on April 23 told her that she was to have the $5,000 worth of bonds. He gave her a written statement to that effect, she declares. When she went to the Essex County National Bank, where the bonds rested, she discovered that White had borrowed $1,000 on the bonds from Mr. Baird. She began a suit for their recovery, and it resulted in the non-suit yesterday. Mrs. Laura White, widow of the dead man, was in court to contest the claim of the woman who she says bears her husband's name without authority.

ROSENHEIMER CASE HEARD.

Auto Victims Tell the Grand Jury How Miss Hough Was Killed.

The Grand Jury took up yesterday the long-deferred investigation of the charge of homicide against Edward T. Rosenheimer, the wealthy autoist of Pelham, who is under $25,000 bail charged with having caused the death of Miss Grace Hough. On the evening of Aug. 25 his automobile, going at top speed, collided with a horse and buggy owned by George Vedder of 226 Batngate Avenue, completely demolishing the buggy and instantly killing Miss Hough and seriously injuring Miss Anna McCabe and Vedder. The machine did not stop.

When Rosenheimer was arrested at his home, The Roses, Pelham, he denied all knowledge of the collision and insisted that he had not been out with his machine that night. But the detectives found the mudguard and the front lamps of the automobile shattered. Rosenheimer was unable to explain how the car became damaged.

The two surviving victims of the collision presented a pathetic appearance in the anteroom of the Grand Jury yesterday morning, and when people saw the crutches that Miss McCabe has to use they looked angrily about in hope of seeing Rosenheimer, but he did not put in an appearance. Miss McCabe and Vedder were the only two witnesses examined yesterday, although every one but Rosenheimer connected with the case was there. After the Grand Jury finished its examination for the day, Miss McCabe was so weak that she had to be assisted from the room by friends.

The Grand Jury is expected to make a test case of the Rosenheimer killing. Since the inquest detectives have found one of the wheels of the buggy in the woods skirting Pelham Parkway, and one of the witnesses is ready to swear that the Rosenheimer automobile stopped at the point where the wheel was found shortly after the accident.

Assistant District Attorney Turnbull, who has charge of the case, intends to bring the shattered wagon into court during the trial and also the lamps of the automobile.

AUTO KILLER SURRENDERS.

Acknowledges His Machine Struck a Woman Who Died in Hospital.

While Coroner Schwanneke was waiting to be called before the Grand Jury to testify in the Rosenheimer case yesterday he received word from the District Attorney that Alexander Pelli, a marble contractor of 68 West 117th Street, had surrendered himself for running over and killing Mrs. Alica Watzman of 1,022 East 156th Street. Coroner Schwanneke convened court in one of the ante-rooms and held Pelli under $10,000 bail.

Pelli said that on the night of Sept. 25 he was out in his automobile and that his machine struck Mrs. Watzman, who was crossing the street. Her clothing being caught on the mudguard of the machine she was dragged a distance before the automobile could be stopped. She was removed to Lebanon Hospital, where she died Wednesday night.

Pelli was not detained at the time of the accident, but the police have been looking for him since the death of the woman. He explained that he has been in Boston and that he hurried to this city as soon as he heard of Mrs. Watzman's death.

HIT BY AUTO, SAVED BABY.

Woman Threw Child from Her as She Saw Motor Approaching.

Just as Mrs. Kate Roch of 1,978 Second Avenue was crossing Second Avenue at 102d Street last night, with her 14 months' old baby, Harry, in her arms, she saw an automobile runabout, driven by Edward T. Ranney, a druggist, of 57 Webster Avenue, the Bronx, bearing swiftly down upon her from 101st Street. It was within a few feet of her before she could decide which way to turn. In a moment she had thrown the baby into the gutter, ten feet away, and in another she herself was struck by the mudguard of the auto, thrown to the street, and dragged twenty feet.

A large crowd gathered at once, but Ranney had jumped from his car and disappeared. A woman picked up the baby from the gutter. It had suffered only a few slight bumps and scratches. Others in the crowd lifted Mrs. Roch from the street. She was badly bruised about the body, and her head was cut in several places. Dr. Max Krinke of 1,704 Lexington Avenue, who had seen the accident, dressed her injuries. He said she would recover.

Ranney returned in about ten minutes and surrendered to Policeman O'Rourke. He was taken to the East 104th Street Station on a charge of assault.

AUTO HITS A POLICEMAN.

Shields, on a Bicycle, Was Chasing Dr. Blum's Machine.

After pursuing an automobile, owned and operated by Dr. Richard Blum, a dentist, of 65 West Fifty-fourth Street, for eleven blocks on Fifth Avenue, last night, Bicycle Policeman John Shields was knocked down by the auto and then got up and arrested the doctor on a charge of speeding.

Dr. Blum has an office at 576 Fifth Avenue, and early last night he started from his office with five friends, one a woman, for a spin. He only got as far as Twenty-first Street when Shields gave chase. The doctor said he was not aware that he had been speeding, or that he had been pursued. At the Mercer Street Station he put up $50 cash bond for appearance in the Jefferson Market Court this morning.

Shields says that he is convinced that he was knocked down by accident. He was not seriously hurt.

CROWDED AUTO HITS A BOY.

Lad Hurled Ten Feet While Crossing Riverside Drive with Little Brother.

A crowded touring car ran down ten-year-old Charlie Mosena, on Riverside Drive, near 103d Street, last night. The lad's skull and right arm were fractured, and he sustained numerous lacerations and contusions. He was removed to the J. Hood Wright Hospital in a critical condition. No arrest was made, but the police said the machine was operated by Clarence Briscall of Ritters Lane, and owned by E. F. Martin of 107 Shonard Terrace, Yonkers.

The boy, whose home is at 868 Columbus Avenue, with his seven-year-old brother, John, were crossing the drive when the car hit and hurled him ten feet.

Three men and two women were in the auto, but the police made no effort to find the identity of others than the driver and owner.

MORSE TURBINERS TO LEAVE THIS PORT

The Yale and Harvard Said to be Destined for Service on the Pacific.

GOING OUT OF SERVICE HERE

Purchaser Not Revealed—One Transportation Man Says They Are Going to Florida.

Announcement was made yesterday by the Metropolitan Steamship Line that its turbine steamers Yale and Harvard will be withdrawn from service between New York and Boston after this week. Their closing trips will be made on Oct. 1 and 2, respectively.

Coincidently with this announcement officials of the company said that the Yale and Harvard had been sold. The name of the purchasing company was not made public, but it was said that both steamers had been ordered to San Francisco, and would sail out of that port hereafter. A representative of the operating department said that within a few days work would be begun to get both ready for their voyage to the Pacific.

Rumors that both steamships were to be sold have been heard intermittently ever since the collapse of Charles W. Morse's $60,000,000 Consolidated Steamship Lines in the panic of 1907. The Metropolitan Line of Maine was one of the underlying operating companies in the Morse merger of Atlantic coastwise shipping. When the receivers took charge they found that the company's treasury had been stripped of cash, and its principal assets, the two turbine steamers, were heavily mortgaged.

At that time the question of selling the boats was seriously considered by the creditors, but the operating officials were able to show such profits on the Summer operations that they were again put in service in the Spring of 1908. At the end of the next season stories of the sale of the Yale and Harvard were again revived, and it was said they had been purchased by the Harriman steamship interests for use on the Pacific Coast.

The present Metropolitan Steamship Company of New Jersey, which owns the boats, was organized last year to take over the property of the Maine Company, sold by the receiver under foreclosure. The company was organized by creditors of C. W. Morse and the security holders of the Maine Company. It has always been understood in Wall Street that the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company controlled the new corporation. Besides the two steamers the company's only other asset is the Union Wharf at Boston. The old Metropolitan Steamship Company had four freight boats plying between New York and New England points, but these were sold.

Recently both the Yale and Harvard were made oil burners. On their way to the California coast they will use both oil and coal as fuel. Six of the boilers will be fitted with oil burners and the other six for coal. The vessels cost more than $1,000,000 apiece. They were built at the Delaware River Iron Ship Building and Engine Works, Chester, Penn. The Yale was launched in December, 1906, and the Harvard in January, 1907.

Some steamship men expressed a doubt yesterday that the steamships would really go to the Pacific. A Western transportation man who is in a position to know what is going on there said he understood they had been purchased by the Florida East Coast Railroad, and would ply between Miami, Fla., and Havana.

Lifts Quarantine on Southern Ships.

Dr. Doty, Health Officer of the Port, announced yesterday that the harbor quarantine on vessels from Southern ports will be discontinued on Saturday. Vessels from our Southern ports usually have to pass inspection at Quarantine from May 1 to Nov. 1. Quarantine is discontinued a month earlier this year, Dr. Doty explained, as the general absence of contagious diseases epidemics in the South justifies the selection of the earlier date.

Complain of Staten Island Ferry.

Staten Island municipal ferry commuters are grumbling over the ferry service. They arrive at St. George on time, they say, and then have to wait ten to fifteen minutes for a boat to go to Manhattan. They say they may appeal to the Public Service Commission. The trouble is said to be due to defective boilers.

CHARGED WITH EXTORTION.

Two Teamsters' Union Men Arrested—Retort with Bribery Charge.

Daniel McDonald, Business Agent for the Teamsters' Local Union 449, and Harry F. McCormack, a member of the union, were arrested by Detectives Flood and Fitzsimmons of the District Attorney's office yesterday, charged with extortion. In the Tombs Court they were held in default of $3,500 bail apiece till next Tuesday.

The complaint against the pair is made by William Davidson, a produce and commission merchant of 106 Murray Street. On Sept. 23, so Davidson says, McDonald and McCormack ordered his teamsters out on strike. After he had sustained a heavy loss on perishable foodstuffs, the two came to him and asked him for money to settle the strike. McCormack, said Davidson, arranged to meet him in a saloon at Warren and Greenwich Streets. In the saloon McCormack said he wanted $200 to straighten the matter out and let the men go back to work.

Davidson says he made the excuse that he did not have the money with him, but promised to meet McCormack at Murray and West Streets the next day and give him the money. Instead of keeping the appointment, however, he went to the District Atttorney's office. District Attorney Whitman told him to take $150 in marked bills and arrange another meeting, promising to send two detectives to arrest the men as soon as the money changed hands.

Davidson did so. He met the men at Murray and West Streets yesterday. He was about to give McCormack the money, but McCormack told him not to transfer it in the saloon, but to give it to him outside. Together the two left the saloon.

Just as Davidson was about to give the money to McCormack, however, McDonald called to Mounted Policeman MacMerrill of the Traffic Squad that Davidson was trying to bribe his companion and himself. MacMerrill arrested Davidson and refused to let him go when told of his mistake by the two detectives, who had arrested McDonald and McCormack. At the District Attorney's office MacMerrill seemed to take his mistake much to heart and apologized to Davidson.

MAKING PEARLS.

Prof. Dean Tells the Fisheries Society How the Japanese Are Doing It.

The annual meeting of the American Fisheries Society, held yesterday at the Aquarium, in Battery Park, heard something from Prof. Bashford Dean of Columbia University about the making of artificial pearls as practiced by the Japanese. They cause the oyster to secrete perfect and spherical pearls.

"There is no danger of the secret becoming known just yet," said Prof. Dean. "The invention is not treated with the importance it deserves. It is kept quiet by dealers because they fear a drop in the prices, for the new pearl costs $2, while the same pearl can be sold for $200. The secret is the discovery of the late Dr. N. Nishikawa, a graduate of the University of Tokio."

The society adopted a resolution recommending all States to encourage fish culture by suitable legislation. Assemblyman E. Hart Fenn of Hartford and Supt. Charles H. Townsend and Daniel B. Fearing of Newport, and Richard E. Follett, Vice President of the New England Forest, Fish and Game Association, spoke in favor of a continual season for the sale of cultivated trout throughout the year.

These officers were elected: President—William E. Meehan; Vice President—Samuel F. Fullerton, Secretaries—Ward T. Bower, Miss Ethel M. Smith and Dr. Hugh M. Smith; Treasurer—E. W. Willard; Executive Committee—Dr. Charles H. Townsend, George T. Mathewson, Jabe Alford, Henry B. Ward, Daniel B. Fearing, D. H. Power and John P. Babcock.

DOGS IN A CUSTOMS SALE.

Their Board Bill Is Piling Up So They Will Be Auctioned on Oct. 5.

Two dogs have been caught in the customs net, and unless they are sold soon their hotel bill will amount to more than they are worth. On Aug. 22 a small white poodle was brought in on the Anchor Liner Columbia and left unclaimed on the pier. On Sept. 6 a black bull puppy was brought in the steamship Madonna from Marseilles. It was unclaimed and sent to join the other dog at the customs "zoo," 22 Little West Twelfth Street. Imported dogs of good breed are dutiable at 20 per cent.

An allowance is made of fifty cents a day for the keep of each dog, and the Collector is worried over the expense incurred. He ordered Col. J. H. Storey yesterday to sell both animals on Oct. 5.

Col. Storey has another sale of unclaimed property, comprising 900 lots, including a suit of old clothes, a dress suit, one evening and two princess gowns, candy, riding breeches, fifteen casks of wine marked "Mafia," a barrel of decorated chinaware, a map of Switzerland, and a book addressed to Prof. Flugel of Stanford University, California. All will be sold on Oct. 4 and 5.
